WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—The major football outfits couldn't keep going without their preliminary breathers, as they now call the practice games. While our army and navy have had plenty of breathers, this war is their first big workout since 1918. Returns are coming in which indicate the effectiveness of this preliminary training. Maj. Gen. A. A. Vandergrift of the marines, commanding the Guadalcanal action which destroyed 33 Japanese planes without the loss of a single U. S. A. fighter, is a veteran of 33 years of remote brush and jungle-fighting, with no world-pennant at stake.

Gen. Vandergrift Knows Way Round In Strange Places

His performance is comparable to a 90-yard run by a new man in the big-time lineup, and so recognized by his chiefs of the Pacific high command. The encouraging thing is that it isn't exceptional. We couldn't start laboratory wars like the opposition,,but we made the most of our limited and casual schedule.

General Vandergrift has seen action in Cuba, Panama, Nicaragua, Mexico, Haiti and China and has annexed the Nicaragua and Haiti Campaign medals, the Marine Corps Expeditionary medal and the Mexican and Yangtze Service medals. He was upped to the rank of major general on March 30 of last year, and it was revealed six months ago that he had been given the marines command in the Solomon islands.

He was born in Charlottesville, Va., March 18, 1887, was graduated from the University of Virginia and joined the marines January 22, 1909. He was first under gunfire in the assault on Coyotepe, Nicaragua, in October, 1912, took part in the occupation of Vera Cruz in April, 1914, and fought against the hostile Cacos in Haiti in 1915. In China, off and on for many years, he commanded the marine barracks at Tientsin and the marine guards at the U. S. embassy at Peking. He is an outstanding reminder of the fact that the marines never were homebodies.

General Vandergrift was married in 1909 to Mildred Strode. They have one son, serving in the marines.

OFFICERS and men of the merchant marine dedicate in New York their new four-story club as a memorial to Andrew Furuseth, for more than 50 years head of the sailors' union of the Pacific. It is called by his name.

This Man Lived For What Sailors Of Today Die For

Andrew Furuseth, "The Sailors' Lincoln," died January 22, 1938, at the age of 84. That is no reason why he shouldn't be news on any later day. When we knew him, he had finished his battle against the crimps, in San Francisco, a lean, gaunt old man with a Viking face, still living in his tiny cubicle on the Embarcadero, still accepting only seaman's wages, as head of his union—still fighting for better conditions in the forecastle. In his fight against the crimps—kidnapers of seamen—a judge had threatened him with a fine for contempt of court. He said:

> "You can't make me any more lonely than I always have been. You can't give me food worse than I always have had. My sleeping quarters will be no more cramped than they have been at any time."

It was true. He had no vested interest in unionism. For many years he besieged Washington, putting forward his seamen's act, winning in 1915 after a battle of decades. He was born in Norway, gained little formal schooling, went to sea at the age of 19, and came to this country in 1880. I asked him once why he lived so meagerly. I had tried to put the question tactfully, but it plainly was an affront.

"To live better than the man I represent would be dishonest," he said coldly. There could be no better solvent of labor-industry troubles than a true and understanding invocation of his memory.

IN MARCH, 1918, Thomas Hitchcock Jr., 18-year-old member of the Lafayette Escadrille, fighting in France, got a bullet through the thigh and was downed behind the German lines. En route to a prison camp, he jumped from a speeding train and made his way to the Swiss border—to live and fight again.

This last is the news today, with word from England that Thomas Hitchcock Jr., the polo player, and seven other Americans formerly with the Lafayette Escadrille, are serving with the A. E. F.

Let's Have a Party . . . While Witches Play
(See Recipes Below.)

Halloween Pranks

October's the month which flaunts her gay, burnished colors as a prelude to winter. It's the month of apples and cider, of pumpkins and squash against dry sheaves of corn stalk, of fragrant gingerbread or doughnuts fried crisply tender in hot sizzling deep fat.

October's the month of Halloween —when witches, spooks and black cats make merry. Big ones or wee ones will love a party that mingles what's best in October with the spookiest of what's Halloween.

Pretty up with a party and give your spirits a lift with traditional food that's easy on purse strings, a hit with the party-goers. Decorations can be nature's own, a pumpkin or two whole or cut into a jolly face lit with candle glow, squash and apples banked with deep yellow, brown or red leaves, bowls of apples, grapes, popcorn and spicy drinks.

Let the children paste black cats, owls and witches onto mugs and invitations inviting guests to come as their favorite spook be it an owl, witch astride a broomstick, or a slinking cat.

Have a good hot dish if you are having the Halloween party indoors —something fixed in advance that you can put in the oven to get warm, slip out in a hurry to get to the table like tuna fish souffle, cheese fondue, macaroni and cheese with broiled bacon slices, or a hamburger roast.

Outdoor plans may include a wienie roast, with the children participating at the outdoor fireplace or grill. If you prefer hamburgers, fix the patties indoors with their seasonings, wrap in wax ready for broiling. Wienies require thorough washing.

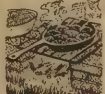
Construct a simple grill outdoors for roasting wieners if you aren't lucky enough to have a brick grill. This will take a lot of the roughhouse outdoors and save wear and tear on your house. Games will most likely be outdoors if it isn't too cold as the revelers will want to roam with spirits and ghosts.

Few foods equal the deliciousness of wienies roasted over the flames on forks or sticks fashioned from branches, depending on your degree of going in for naturalness.



Plenty of long buns, already split indoors before the party and heaped high in a basket, are indicated. They're best when toasted—with lots of butter, mustard, relish, catsup or homemade chili sauce as accompaniments for wienies roasted to doneness with a taste of smoke and ashes.

If you go in for toasting marshmallows along with wienies, try them rolled in coconut just for a taste of something different. They're really good!

You can't have enough hot foods as the weather is bound to be on the crisp and chilly side. There will be cheers from the boisterous and ahs from the more conservative if you serve this golden, pineapple drink with a suspicion of spice. The vitamins B1 and C in the pineapple won't permit any let-down in morale and pep:

LYNN SAYS:

The Score Card: Corner your share of these food bargains during the next few weeks: Cabbage, apples, plums, pears, green peppers, lima beans and cauliflower.

The well-dressed table will also wear eggs, chicken and cheddar cheese not only for variety but also economy.

Style your table with carrots, potatoes, turnip greens, beets and beet tops, mustard, spinach. Good for you, and perfect with most other foods in the meal.

Standardized bottles have been ordered for wines, jellies and preserves. Home-canning jars are not affected in this order of the War Production board.

Variety notes: if you don't have porterhouse as often, you can have excellent dishes from lesser known cuts of meat such as liver, kidneys, heart, sweetbreads and tongue.

Halloween Party

*Recipes Given

Mulled Pineapple Juice.
(Serves 4-6)

1 inch stick of cinnamon
3 whole cloves
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 quart canned, unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
Pinch of salt

Tie the spices in a small piece of cheesecloth, add them to the pineapple juice, and bring to the boiling point, but do not boil. Add salt. Serve immediately.

Gingerbread wears a party air if you decorate the tops with a frosting outline of a Halloween symbol after it is cut into slices. Here's a recipe for gingerbread that's light as down and exquisitely fragrant with spices in correct proportions:

Gingerbread.

½ cup shortening
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup light molasses
½ cup boiling water
1 beaten egg
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon ginger
¾ teaspoon cinnamon

Pour water over shortening and add sugar, molasses and egg. Beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients, beat until smooth. Bake in a waxed-paper-lined square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven. Cool in pan.

If it's doughnuts you've a liking for, I'd suggest the kind made with sour cream or milk. They have a lightness of a feather that is the criterion for a "sinker."

Sour Milk Doughnuts.
(Makes 2 dozen)

3 cups flour
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon melted shortening
½ teaspoon soda
2 eggs
⅓ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup sour milk

Sift flour, sugar, nutmeg and salt. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Beat eggs well and add milk to eggs. Add to dry ingredients, then mix in melted shortening. Roll out and cut with a doughnut cutter. Fry in deep hot fat (360-370 degrees F.) until golden brown. Drain on brown paper.

Fun's in store for the youngsters if you let them polish off the party with these old-fashioned, sugar-saving popcorn balls:

Taffy Popcorn.

4 cups popped corn
2 cups shelled peanuts
⅔ cup molasses
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vinegar
⅓ cup water
⅛ teaspoon soda

Mix molasses, sugar, butter, water and vinegar. Cook slowly and without stirring until the crack stage is reached. Add soda and stir well. Add remaining ingredients and mix well before pouring into shallow, well-greased pans. When cold, cut into bars or squares.

Freedom:

The Wireless: March of Time's dramatization of the four fliers who bombed a Jap airport with "borrowed bombs, a stolen transport and a bottle of scotch" was three times as exciting as it appeared here. Deft scripting, gentlemen, paced swiftly and loaded with zing . . . Arthur Hughes' trouping in "Just Plain Bill" via NBC is one reason that program starts its 11th year this week . . . Add Puzzles: Why Helen Hayes hasn't a sponsor. Each time the star guests for someone—she perfumes your receiving set with her rare talent . . . Kay Kyser's gripe is echoed here, too: "Why such snappy slogans as 'Slap the Jap'?" . . . Then there's the headline writers who call them "Nips"!!!

One of the local drama critics referred to a certain ham as a "bum actor." The critic received a sharp note from the victim demanding an apology. The critic replied: "I am pleased to explain and apologize —for our proofreader. Believing I had omitted the word 'actor' he inserted it. A grevious error, which I assure you won't happen again!"

There have been some complaints about the number of de luxe burlesk shows playing around Broadway, but John Mason Brown doesn't think it is a matter for calling in the police.

"Dullness in the theater," he quipped, "is the perfect censor."

The gin-rummy craze has reached all the way down to the Bowery, where two bums found a deck of cards in the gutter. They started playing gin for $1 a point—imaginary dough, of course. After an hour the bum who owed 38,000 imaginary dollars said he was quitting.

"Oh, come on, let's play some more," he was coaxed.

"No," was the stiff retort, "that's as far as I want to go."

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

They are telling the silly about the tough hombre who went into a saloon in Wyoming with a mountain lion on a leash. After the stranger drank some whisky he crushed the glass into dust and demanded a bigger one.

Suddenly a rattlesnake started to crawl out of the fellow's vest and he pushed it back, saying: "Don't you come out of there until I send for you, you hear?"

"Where you from?" asked the bartender.

"Alaska, where they're too tough," was the reply. "They ran me and two other swishes outta there last week."

A reader forwards the late Arthur Brisbane's thesis: "How to Be a Better Reporter." In it is this counsel: "Learn to edit your copy. Strike out most of your adjectives, remembering the Frenchman's remark: 'The adjective is the enemy of the noun.' Strike out 'very' always!"

Very, very good.

Quentin Reynolds says some American troops in England go to extremes to impress the girls. One lass urged Reynolds to give her a good report with one soldier's father. "Tell him I'm a nice girl, please?" she asked. "He owns the biggest orange groves in America!"

"In what city?" asked Reynolds.

"Utica," was the reply.

The Magic Lanterns: There isn't much among the film entries. "Panama Hattie" is the best of the newcomers, but inferior to the stage version. The film is refined, minus the blue tinge. Ann Sothern and Red Skelton caper through the quips and melodies, some of Cole Porter's score lingering . . . "Manila Calling," another war fable, is full of ack-ack and bombs. It's hard to tell a story with so much noise going on, so they do not worry much about the yarn. Lloyd Nolan heads the fighters and Carole Landis drops in to give the battle some oomph . . . "Counter Espionage" is more war.

Typewriter Ribbons: Anon: You can never get ahead of anyone as long as you are trying to get even with him . . . This Week: Diplomacy—the art of letting someone else have your way . . . T. Riggs: She was oblivious to the attention she created as she walked down the stares . . . Celia Cole: As relaxed as twilight . . . D. T. Lutes: The sky was so blue you wished you could wear it . . . Martin Lorrin: You never waste time; time wastes you . . . Ernest Bucklet: Her face was smudged with fatigue.

CONWAY—DUBOSE

The marriage of Miss Lera Dee Conway, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Conway of Jemison, and William Hugh DuBose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy DuBose of Jemison, was solemized withthe double ring ceremony at six thirty p.m. Saturday, October 17th at the home of the brides parents.

The Rev. Homer Carroll read the vows before an improvised altar banked with ferns and lighted by candles in standards entwined with ferns and ivy. On each side were standards of white chrysanthemums.

Preceding the ceremony, nuptial music was presented by Misses Evelyn Cooper and Melba Patton. The tapers were lighted by Misses Jimmie Ruth DuBose, sister of the groom, and Tommie Ellen Conway, sister of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of sky blue with black accessories and carried a hand bouquet of white orchids.

Mrs. Jack Peterson, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and the brides only attendant.

She wore a gown of navy blue and a corsage of red rose buds.

Only members of the immediate families and a few friends were present.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. DuBose left for a short trip after which they will be at home in Jemison.

Heave Ho! Together

FOR THE GOOD OF ALL

NEVER has unity of action for the good of all been more needed than it is now.

Today in Alabama the ABC Board, law enforcement officers and this Committee are all pulling together to maintain clean and orderly conditions wherever beer is sold.

With your co-operation, the remaining undesirable beer outlets can be cleaned up or closed up, without eliminating the great majority of law abiding outlets which are also pulling together for the good of all.

Please report (in confidence) any violations to law enforcement officers or us.

ALL COMMITTEES ASKED TO DEVOTE THEIR TIME AND EFFORT TOWARDS RAISING OCTOBER WAR BOND QUOTA

October 28, 1942.
THE CHILTON COUNTY NEWS.
Dear Editor:

We are $15,000 behind on our quota. We must not fail, look at what our boys are doing right now in the Solomon Islands, many of them have lost their lives and many more will go down in this great struggle. It will be no trouble if each and every one will do their duty to raise our quota.

Lets make Saturday 31st. Bond and Stamp day. I hope our committee will give this day in the interest of buying bonds and stamps. Remember that there is no better or safer investment for your money than in Government Bonds. I hope that Chilton County will do its duty.

Respectfully,
L. H. Reynolds,
Executive Chairman.

SCOUT TROOP 57 HOLDS IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

Troop 57 held a special Boy Scout meeting at the City Hall Thursday evening to hear Field Executive Charles B. McKee explain the fall and winter programs and to reorganize for the coming season of Scouting activity. New patrols and officer have been set up and programs planned for every Scout.

Much of the meeting was given over to demonstration of ceremonies, games, stunts, instruction suggestions, and regular procedures for meeting programs. Individuals and groups were used to illustrate the ideas and the Scouts and officers enjoyed an evening of varied activity.

The next Board of Review will be November 19th when Scouts will appear for recognition of advancing in merit or rank. The December Board of Review will be followed by alarge Court of Honor on December 17th or 18th.

Scouts are busy with the scrap drive and are led by Assistant Scoutmaster John Mullins on Saturday collections. Other defense efforts will be taken by the Troop and efforts made to make Scouting a part of the local civilian defense efforts.

Troop 52 at Alabama Mills is getting reorganized for the coming year and Scoutmaster Robinson, is looking for additional adult leadership to make the Troop a real success this season.

Field Executive Charles B. McKee will be in Clanton on scheduled visits each month to aid with advancement, camping, finance and other programs for the local Scout organizzations. District Chairman D. E. Waite and finance chairman Reedie Taylor are planning the annual Boy Scout campaign to raise funds for the 1943 operation of Scouting in this territory.

Sen. John H. Bankhead

Senator John H. Bankhead is one of the most able men in the United States Senate. He is recognized nationally as an able speaker and the people of Chilton County are fortunate in having him address them next Saturday afternoon at the courthouse.

Senator Bankhead is one of the best friends farmers have ever had in our national government. He has a good, practical knowledge of the needs and problems of the farmer and has been untiring in his efforts to improve farm conditions. The entire nation has been impressed with Bankhead's ability as a leader.

You cannot afford to miss hearing Bankhead speak. Get the yards swept and the wood in and come to town Saturday afternoon and meet this friend of yours.

MISS BEAN IS MARRIED TO R. S. WHITE

The ceremony took place at 8:00 o'clock Monday evening, October 19 with Rev. Wm. C. Crowder reading the marriage vows.

Mr. White will return to Key West to take up his duties in theU.S.Navy. at present.

CHILTON COUNTY DOWNS CENTREVILLE 18-0.

The undefeated football team of Chilton County High School defeated Bibb County High of Centreville 18 to 0, last Friday night October 23, at Centreville.

The game was a mighty battle between the two rivals. The Bibb County "Choctaws" were undefeated, untied, and unscored on until the Chilton County "Tigers" invaded their field. This game proved the supremacy of Central Alabama football.

The "Tigers" began to roll in the first quarter when Guy Higgins, right halfback, went over left tackle on a reverse for five yards to score. The score at the end of the half was 6-0.

In the third quarter the Clanton machine drove 60 yards down the field when James Payton, left halfback, went around the end for 7 yards to score. The "Tigers" were put in scoring position with the brilliant running of backs: Higgins, Mims and Payton. The Bibb County "Choctaws" received the kickoff and drove down the field past Clanton's five yard line. The Chilton Tigers held the Choctaws for downs. On the first play James Payton, raced through the line for 95 yards without a man laying a hand on him for the final score.

The team was led to victory with the brilliant quarterbacking of Lloyd McGee. The Tigers marched down the field with the sensational off-tackle runs of Higgins and the end runs of Payton. The holes were opened up with the expert blocking of McGee and Mims. Dennis and McKey, a pair of running guards, also showed plenty of down field blocking for the Tigers. The mighty Chilton County Tigers proved to be too strong for the Choctaws. The fast Choctaws, backfield failed to gain through the Clanton line.

REV. ODEN TO PREACH

Rev. Paul Oden will preach at Liberty Hill Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. Instead of services Sunday night at 7:30 moving pictures will be shown.

A SIGNIFICANT ELECTION

The election of next Tuesday is significant in many ways, the most important of which is that this will be the first general election since our nation was forced into war. We recall that no longer than two years ago many people said, and believed, that the election of 1940 would be the last free election held in our fair land if war reached our shores. We, ourselves, never believed that our system of free elections was endangered and it does us good to be able to March to the polls on next Tuesday and vote for our chosen candidates. By casting our vote we will not only be exercising one of our most cherished rights, but we will be contributing toward the winning of the war. This war is a struggle between democracy and dictatorship, and democracy cannot win unless it is kept vigorous and dynamic. The surest way of keeping our democracy vigorous and dynamic is to participate in running our government. Therefore, it is the duty of every qualified voter in Chilton County to see that his vote is put into his local box before the polls close on November 3.

The coming election is also significant because of the character of the candidates that are seeking the various offices. We have had good men running for office in past years, but we don't believe anybody could want better men to vote for than John Bankhead, Chauncey Sparks, Grover Walker, Buster Foshee, J. A. Nivens, Buck Roberts, Jack Hayes, Delos Culp, Dr. Parrish, Howard Roper, and Hoyt Freeman. We are proud of these men and we think that the people of Chilton County are.

This election is also significant because of the indications of a record DEMOCRATIC victory at the polls. Our opponents, the Republicans, have a good ticket and have fought a good fight in the campaign, but reports from over the county point to a smashing lead for the Democrats. If the good people of Chilton County give us the majority indicated, then the obligation of the Democrats will be to work harder than ever to give this county of ours an administration that will be as significant as the election is.

NEWS FROM VERBENA HIGH

Our school has been saddened in the last few days with the departure of our home economics teacher, Catherine Glasgow. She has joined the W.A. A.C.'s trying to do her part for Uncle Sam. We are hoping she has been granted a leave of absence and will be back at dear ole Verbena when Victory is won. On Wednesdey night before she left the cheer leaders honored her with a weiner roast at Gulledge's camp. Mr. and Mrs. Irby Deramus, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Fort and Miss Judith Gibson were the chaperones. We all enjoyed it very much. We are hoping Miss Glasgow will have the best of luck and will be back with us real soon.

Sarah Messe and Margaret Eiland are going to Draughn's Business College in Montgomery. They are having a lot of fun but, are also working hard.

Frances Dansby is working at Silver's in Montgomery. We hope she likes it and we believe she will rise higher and higher.

Verbena was well represented at the parade Saturday, Oct. 17. The purpose of it was to encourage people to buy more bonds and stamps. There were several speakers there including Captain Shephard from New England. He is now stationed at Maxwell Field in Montgomery.

Mary Lee Lett has now finished her course in Mechanics at Maxwell Field and is stationed at Gunter Field. She will be capable of ratings. We hope for her the best.

We are going to have a hallowe'en party Friday night, Oct. 30. There will be fortune telling, coffee, hot dogs and plates. There will also be a contest for the prettiest costume. Everyone is expecting to have a grand time so, come out and join us. The money we make will go for repairing the pianos and football team.

We are progressing very much this year in selling War Stamps. The younger children are really helping to fight in winning this war.

The Rally is for the purpose of opening the Drive in this County and although many contributions have been received the official opening will be Thursday night at the Courthouse.

CLANTON MEETS WEST BLOCTON FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday night, October 30th, at 8 o'clock the Chilton County High School "Tigers" will meet West Blocton in a game that promises to be as thrilling and as exciting as last week's game with Bibb County High. From semi-official sources it is said that West Blocton has a strong line and a good passing attack that will test Chilton's line and backfield pass defense. The game will see whether West Blocton's line can stop Clanton's tricky backfield of Payton, Higgins, McGee and Mims. Clanton's backfield is fast and has a running attack that few teams have been able to bottle up The Clanton line has proved, so far, that it is capable of breaking up a running attack and also a passing attack by crashing through and stopping the passes before they are started. Friday night's game promises to be one where there will be hard play between two lines; clever running and passing between the two backfields. Chilton County has a great deal staked on this game for it is going after its sixteenth straight win. All in all it will be a game that will thrill the spectators and worry the coaches of both teams.

CUTTING COTTON STALKS REDUCES WEEVIL DAMAGE

Uncertainty for 1943 with respect to insecticides, labor, dusting equipment and machinery required for boll weevil control makes it doubly necesasry to do everything possible this fall to destroy boll weevils by destroying cotton stalks. This is advice received by P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service, from the Extension Service in Washington and the National Cotton Council in Memphis.

Where there is a long period between the maturity of the cotton crop and frost weevils can be "starved" by destroying the stalks. Many farmers are cutting the stalks with stalk cutters while others are sowing winter legumes and disking under the stalks.

4-H ACHIEVEMENT WEEK PLANS MADE

Accomplishments of Alabama's 118,000 4-H club boys and girls during 1942 will be celebrated during Achievement Week, November 7 to 14, announces T. A. Sims, State 4-H leader, Extension Service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

High point of the week will be a message from Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard on the National Farm and Home Hour, November 7.

National 4-H Achievement Week will also acquaint rural families with what has been accomplished by their own boys and girls through 4-H work in helping to win the war.

TOMATOES SHOULD BE STORED BEFORE FROST

When frost threatens, the supply of home grown tomatoes fresh from the vines can be kept coming several weeks, by pulling the vines and hanging them in a dry and moderately light storage place says Lyle Brown, extension horticulturist.

Ripe fruits can be used at once and the ones that are well developed but not ripe will be able to draw considerable food material from the vines to help them ripen and color. If there are more vines than can be managed conveniently, it will pay to select the best ones for storage and strip the green fruits from the other vines for use as green tomatoes.

AAA PROGRAM FOR 1943 BASED ON INCREASED PRODUCTION

The AAA program for 1943 will be centered around increased production of vital foods and feeds to meet tremendous war needs, Mr. Posey, chairman of the Chilton County Agricultural Conservation committe, has revealed.

A production adjustment allowance for each farm in the county which has a cotton, peanut, potato, tobacco, or wheat allotment will be set up, figured on the basis of acreage allotments, normal yields, and rates of payment determined for each commodity. Earning of the allowance will be contingent upon meeting certain requirements in addition to compliance with special crop allotments.

A deduction of five percent of the farm production adjustment allowance for each one per cent by which the acreage of war crops on the farms falls below 90 per cent of the sum of the emergency war crop goals established for the farm will be made These war crops and the amount each farm will be allotted will be determined well in advance of planting time.

In order to encourage planting close to the full allotment of special crops—cotton, potatoes, tobacco, and wheat—and to avoid using funds to make payment with respect to allotments which are not used, deductions at five times the payment rate are to be computed for each acre for which the acreage of any allotment crops falls below 90 percent of the allotment. However, this will be only to the extent that the difference between the planted acreage and 90 per cent of the allotment is not offset by an acreage of emergency war crops and feed crops.

Mr. Posey pointed out that no deductions would be made for overplanting peanut acreage allotments since it is believed that the acreages of this crop will not exceed the numten times the payment rate will be ber needed in 1943. Deductions at incurreed for overplanting other special crops, as was the case this year.

United Nations Now Hold Most of Wheat Surplus

WASHINGTON.—The United Nations hold about 1,271,000,000 bushels of the world's known wheat surplus of 1,524,000,000 bushels, the agriculture department reported.

The remaining 253,000,000 bushels are held by a Western hemisphere neutral, Argentina.

The United Nations' surplus is about 210,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago.

The surpluses, representing expected holdings when the 1942 crop starts moving to market, were divided as follows: United States, 640,000,000 bushels; Canada, 486,000,000; and Australia, 145,000,000.

MY THOUGHTS AT NIGHT

I am thinking tonight of my dear mother who has lived here through life's race and I know there is no other, who can ever take her place.
I am thinking tonight of dear old Dad so deep in his grave he does lie,
He was the best pal I ever had and I will meet him up in the sny.
I'm thinking of my sisters and brothers
Tho from me they are away
And I know that there are others,
Who must say goodbye today,
I am thinking tonight of my dear friends,
Who are so dear and true to me
Oh I miss them yes I miss them,
All of these I do so love to see
I'm thinking of my brother whose gone away,
Where he is I do not know,
And I hope he will not stray into the path of our deadly foe,
Some day there will be a meeting way up there in the sky.
Where we will have a happy greeting,
And will never, never say goodbye.

PLANT LEGUMES FOR FERTILIZER—SMITH

Weather conditions are ideal for the planting of winter legumes and seed and fertilizers are still available. The highest yields of cotton and corn in Chilton County are being made with legumes in the rotation. No commercial nitrogen is needed for cotton or corn following a good crop of legumes. Said Pat Smith, County Agent.

Many farmers have dug more peanuts than usual this year. Peanuts are a very heavy feeder and will deplete the soil unless certain precautions are taken. The best way to keep from running down land with peanuts is by planting winter legumes either vetch or Austrian Peas. These legumes planted after peanuts should be fertilized with both phosphates (either basic slag or superphosphate) and potash. Potash should be used at about 50 lbs. of muriate per acre.

Present indications are that commercial nitrogen fertilizers will be very scarce next year. Our principal crops will grow succesfully following legumes without commercial nitrogen. For this reason it is hoped that every farmer will plant as large acreage of peas and vetch as he can handle next spring.

Peas and vetch planted early and fertilized will have sufficient growth to turn next spring. The important thing is to plant now and grow your own nitrogen for next years crop.

MARCH ON AMERICA

March on America, your fate awaits you just ahead. March on to victory, America, yours is the destiny that will live forever. No sneaking foe wil lever conquer your spirit America for the indominable spirit of free people everywhere is imbued within you. Yours is the cause that makes free men everywhere cringe in horror when some weak, misguided soul takes the path of least resistance because they are not strong enough to battle against the overwhelming odds.

March on America, you are not afraid. The light that is shining within you, the light of freedom, is too bright to allow fear or cowardice or hesitation to hold you back.

March on America the cause for which you fight is God's cause, your cause is the cause of Christianity everywhere; life without fear and peace on earth; not a bloody bondage that would keep free men chained to slavery and poverty for the glorification of one inhuman monster who in his own diabolical mind imagines himself the master of all.

No, America, you will never submit to this final humiliation. The stakes are too high. There is too much to lose. The song of freedom and equality is ringing loudly in your heart, the call of justice is running in your veins.

March on America to blaring tru pets and beating drums, echoed falling tears and cries of anguish those who have fallen. Don't st America, these sounds only increa your righteous rage against the u holy partners in crime, you are wa ing this battle against.

March on America, your heartach cannot, must not stop your march victory but must spur you on to venge the ones who have died for y They died gloriously for your sa America. You can't let them do now.

The subjugated peoples everywhe are looking to you, America, for t liberation of their bodies and sou The burning torch you hold for the must never flicker, America. Th must never doubt for one mome that you are doing your utmost snatch them from the brink of a sla ery more dark and dreary than in t Medival Days of old. They must ne er doubt your singleness of purpo in your role of liberating the peopl chained in a world of darkness.

Yes, America, you will win the w and write the peace that follows, b tears and heartaches, hard work a sacrifices and a universal desire all the people for a common brothe hood must first prevail.

SQUIRREL SEASON GOING FULL BLAST

The squirrel season is now open throughout the state, Cheif Ben C. Morgan of the Game, Fish and Seafoods Division, Department of Conservation, announced today. Opening last Thursday, the South Alabama season will continue through January 15, 1943. The season for the area lying north of U. S. Highway 80 will close January 1, 1943. The season for hunting rabbits with guns will close February 20 while the raccoon and o'possum hunting seasons will end January 31. The latter three seasons and that of squirrel for North Alabama all opened on October 1.

TO MY FRIENDS IN CHILTON COUNTY:

You are going to elect your County Officials next Tuesday who will serve you and Chilton County for the next four years. Chilton County is the only County left in the whole State of Alabama that has any Republican office holders, if I am correctly informed. I have always believed that the people of Chilton County could better serve themselves by placing Democrats in all of their offices. I think this is more necessary now than ever before.

Chilton County has made marked progress for the past eight years under democratic control. No one can deny this and no one should dispute the fact that if Chilton County should go democratic we would show more and greater progress.

I Plead with you that we line up with the rest of the State of Alabama and get that which is justly ours.

To my friends and supporters I wish to take this opportunity to express to you my deep appreciation for your splendid cooperation and fine support in behalf of my candidacy for Tax Assessor of Chilton County.

And, to all the people of Chilton County I wish to promise you that when I am elected Tax Assessor of this County I shall do my utmost to perform the duties of this office in a way that you shall not regret having cast your vote for me.

Sincerely,

N. L. (Buck) Roberts.

GOVERNOR URGES UNITED SUPPORT FOR WAR CHEST

Voices Confidence That Every County Will Raise Its Quota

APPEAL WILL START OCTOBER 20TH

Montgomery, Ala. — Governor Frank Dixon, honorary chairman of Alabama's War Chest Appeal, today voiced his confidence that every county in the state would raise its quota in the campaign, which begins October 20th.

"Every citizen of Alabama who has a relative in the armed services or one who may be called can do no less than contribute generously to the urgent need of the eight war service agencies for which this appeal is being made," the Governor declared.

"Our men in the armed forces have every right to expect us on the home front to support them on the fighting front. Alabama boys who have answered the call to the colors have given up their jobs, ambitions, comforts and loved ones. Many have already made the supreme sacrifice, others have been maimed or captured. Thousands more will eventually be fighting for us in every corner of the world.

"These boys of ours and the unfortunate people of conquered countries who have suffered so much more than we, are asking us through our gifts to continue and extend the friendly and far-reaching service of the USO which makes a 'home away from home' for men in the service wherever they go. They are asking us, through the various relief funds which Americans have organized, to help the families of our men in service and the people of our British, Chinese, Russian, Dutch, Greek and Polish Allies to supplement the food, clothing, medical and surgical supplies desperately needed for the millions of their fighting men and their civilian populations. They are asking us to help keep the peoples of Allied nations from starvation and pestilence and to assure American services to our American boys who are already or who may become prisoners of war.

"Those asked to give to Alabama's War Chest will bear in mind that this one state-wide campaign takes the place of eight appeals. The advantages of one appeal are obvious. Having one campaign instead of eight divides the work of volunteer solicitors by eight, and thus makes only one-eighth the demands on the time of busy men and women. Money is saved because campaign expenses are reduced. And the giver is asked only once instead of eight times.

"I urge every citizen of Alabama to make his or her one gift at least as much in total for this one united state-wide appeal as would be made if there were eight separate appeals, and to remember that when you give to Alabama's War Chest, you give for victory."

Former Mayor at Last Takes Citizenship Oath

YOUNGSTOWN. — Lionel Evans, who served four years as a mayor of Youngstown, has finally become an American citizen.

He was granted citizenship rights under a federal law which permits such action in cases where persons have lived for many years in the belief that they were citizens.

Evans a Welshman, was brought here as a baby and thought his citizenship was established years ago.

During his term as mayor his citizenship was questioned but it was not proven that he was not an American citizen.

"I took this step to clear up any possible doubt about my citizenship," Evans declared after he was granted his papers.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Navy is making a plea to civilians to turn in their binoculars for military use during the War. The Army and Navy both need binoculars for navigation and scouting purposes. Depending on the power of the lenses, they cost from $50 to $80 each.

If you have a set of 6 x 30 up to 7 x 50-power lense binoculars loan them to the Army or Navy. WHY T. E. WYATT REFUSES TO MEET JUDGE SMITH IN JOINT DEBATE

Gene Wyatt, a candidate for the Legislature from our County, came into the Probate Office with J. Osmond Middleton, Tom Taylor, Dewey Rockett, and asked me if I had offered $50.00 for the privilege of meeting him in a joint debate and discuss the records of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, Probate Office and the article appearing in the Union Banner on October 10, 1940. I told Mr. Wyatt that I had made such a statement and he accepted the challenge. Later on and on October 27, 1942, I thought best to put our agreement in writing of which the following is the copy of the agreement:

"STATE OF ALABAMA,
CHILTON COUNTY.

This agreement made and entered into by and between Judge J. Lee Smith and T. E. Wyatt, Editor of the Union Banner, WITNESSETH:

That the said J. Lee Smith and T. E. Wyatt have agreed to enter a joint debate on certain statements appearing in the Union Banner October 10, 1940 and October 17, 1940, and the official records in the Office of the Judge of Probate and the Office of the County Treasurer.,

It is further agreed that no other matters are to be discussed in said debate and no other speakers are to speak at said meeting, and that said meeting shall take place in the Courthouse in Clanton, Alabama on the 31st day of October, 1942, immediately after the speakings that have already been scheduled to take place at the said Courthouse by Senator John H. Bankhead and Democrat nominee for Governor, Chauncey Sparks.

It is further agreed that J. Lee Smith shall open said debate with a speech of ——— minutes, and T. E. Wyatt will speak ——— minutes in response to the speech of said J. Lee Smith and when T. E. Wyatt has finished his speech, J. Lee Smith shall have the rejoiner of ——— minutes and that both parties shall confine what they may say in their speeches strictly to said statements and records and to no other matters.

Dated this the 27th day of October, 1942.

WITNESSES:

W. M. Polk
J. C. Pattillo

J. Lee Smith

Mr. Wyatt refused to meet me on those terms and discuss the records of the Commissioners Court and the article appearing in his paper. Mr. Wyatt told me in the presence of witnesses that he would be back to see me in the afternoon of October 27, 1942 and let me know definitely what he decided to do. I remained in my office until 5 o'clock and Mr. Wyatt failed to appear.

I just wanted the people of Chilton County to know that Mr. Wyatt refused to talk to the people of Chilton County about the statements in his paper in regard to the records of the Commissioners Court, Probate Office and the article in his paper which was published on October 10, 1940. I told Mr. Wyatt that the articles appearing in his paper in regard to the financial conditions of Chilton County on October 10, 1940 was not true and that Mr. Wyatt knew these statements were not true at the time he published them.

Signed, October 28, 1942.
J. Lee Smith.

Whats Doing At Isabella High

By Jesse Culp

Isabella marched on to a 19 to 0 victory over a fighting Verbena eleven last Friday afternoon on the Isabella field. This was the Mustangs' third game and first win in this season. Contrary to what the score might indicate, little heads up playing was done.

Isabella's offense was marked by the continual line plays with Gordon "Slug" Conway toting the ball, and a gool job he did of it, too! The first touchdown came in thefirstquarter, when Capt. Robert Cummings broke loose for an approximate 70 yard run to the goal. Isabella was sucuessful in making the extra point on this score. Both of the other touchdowns came in the latter part of the last quarter, and were made by Gordon Conway.

As I have already said, the Isabella boys didn't ever get really on the move but a few times during the game. If they had, the score, I think would have been much more one-sided than it was. This may be attributed principally to the fact that many of them were not in trim so far as practice was concerned.

My advice to you Maplesvile folks whom we play this Friday is not to stick out your stakes too far. We're waiting until after the game to do our talking.

Isabella has been asked to contribute to the key collection campaign. It has been pointed out that 100 lbs. of keys contain as much vital material as 2000 pounds of scrap iron contains.

All students are asked to collect their useless keys and turn them over to Mr. Williams as soon as possible.

Also, the scrap drive is still under way. If you have any scrap or know of anyone who has, please turn in the name and address of the person, along with the amount of scrap that there is. Arrangements will be made to pick up this scrap if possible.

At their regular meeting last week, the Isabella F. F. A. elected a new secretary, due to the fact that Hollis Williams, the former secretary has quit school. Hansel Grooms, that "hog raising" member was elected as secretary, while Ernest McCary was chosen for assistant secretary.

After business was attended to, the chairman of the program committee took charge and carried out a very interesting program. Earl Wright read a couple of interesting articles, after which music was furnished by Thomas Kelley and Jesse Culp.

The chapter is continuing the scrap collection, and you should see the pile of scrap up at the agricultural building now.

A Junior Red Cross is being organized at Isabella. This is an organization of high school students (boys and girls) and its purpose is to make needed articles for men in the service. The membership fee is only one cent, and you get a card to show that you are a member. This organization is doing a great work, and we want 100 per cent membership at Isabella. If you don't know who your class chairman is, get in touch with Louise Keen. Let's get this thing under way!

Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Dennis and son Don, from Anniston visited relatives and friends here last week end. Their daughter Malinda, who is attending school at Auburn, joined theme here. The Dennis's and Mrs. A. L. Byrd and daughter from Pheonix City, Ala., and Miss Bertha Dennis, of Fayette, Ala., were here to celebrate the birthday of their mother and grandmother Sunday at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Grey and daughter spent last Saturday in Montgomery.

T. C. Marcus made a business trip to Seals, Ala., last week.

Mrs. Newt Popwell, Mrs. T. C. Marcus, Mrs. O. L. Chancelor and Miss Mamie Jones spent last Thursday in Montgomery.

Mrs. John Adams and son, of Homer, Ala., are visiting her mother, Mrs. L. D. Popwell who is seriously ill.

Miss Peggy Marcus, who is working in Greensboro, Ala., was home last week end and she and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Marcus were Sunday guests of Mrs. T. C. Marcus.

Mrs. P. T. Hinkle was happily surprised with a visit Tuesday of this week, of Mrs. Bibb Graves and Mrs. Chas. Anderson, both of Montgomery.

Don't forget the Hallowe'en Party at the High School, Saturday night!

All Junior G. A.'s will meet their Counselor, Mrs. Ben Tucker, at the church, Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

Mrs. W. P. Townes, of Tenn., was a visitor here last week end.

To The Voters Of Chilton County:

On Next Tuesday, you will vote for your County Solicitor of Chilton County for the next four years. This is the first time this official has been elected by the voters of the County. It is the duty of the County Solicitor to see that the Criminal Laws of the State of Alabama are enforced in Chilton County. It is also his duty to prosecute all violators of the Criminal Laws in the various Courts of the County.

I have offered myself as a candidate for this most important office. I have practiced law in the County for the last nine years, and I feel if elected to this office that I will be able to give the people the service they deserve. If elected I do ask the cooperation of the people of the County in the elevation of the price of Human Life in the County. It is my honest judgement that Human Life in our County is entirely to Cheap. It will only be possible to amend this condition with the help of the good law abiding citizens of the County.

I trust that I may be honored by being the first elected County Solicitor of your County on next Tuesday. Due to the shortage of tires and the call on my time by the War Effort, I have not been able to call on every voter of the County. However, I do now ask your support and vote on next Tuesday.

Respectfully yours,

A. B. (Buster) FOSHEE

Mrs. Chester Middlebrooks, left for Birmingham Sunday, she has been visiting her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Jones.

POWELL—JOHNSON

Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Johuson of Billingsley, Alabama announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel Mae, to Cpl. Thomas Gerald Powell, M.P. of Keissler Field, Miss., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Powell of Vida, Alabama.

The marriage was quietly solomnized at 6 o'clock in the evening on Oct. 24, in the First Baptist Church, Clanton, Alabama, with the Rev. Roswell Owens, former Missionary to Palestine, reading the vows.

They were two of the leading young people in their home community.

The couple plan to make their home at Keissler Field, Miss., where he is stationed with the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Circle Four of the Baptist W. M. U. met for a brief business session at the home of Mrs. Clara Curry and then made a visit to the prisoners in the County jail. The group sang several hymns, with the prisoners joining in, and Mrs. Roswell Owens read them stories from the Bible and gave a most impressive talk, after which she led in prayer. The group sang "Living For Jesus" as their closing hymn.

This was a most unusual privilege for this group, and they each received a personal inspiration for going. They also took some clothes to one of the inmates.

Mr. and Mrs. Blackketter were in Tuscaloosa Friday and Saturday.

Miss KatherineBryan of Montevallo was at home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cassaday and children of Montgomery, spent Sunday with their parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Carr of Birmingham were down, Sunday.

Walter Lee Derby, Jr., was a visitor of his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Cassaday. Sunday.

Mrs. Clyde Howze and children visited Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Jones last week end.

EMERGENCY CROP AND FEED LOANS FOR 1943

Emergency Crop and Feed Loans for 1943 are now available to farmers in Chilton County, and applications for these loans are being received in Room 12 at the Courthouse, in Clanton, Mr. John H. Thigpen, Field Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

Because of war conditions a serious shortage of nitrogen for commercial fertilizer in 1943 is anticipated. Farmers must realize, now more than ever, the importance of growing their own fertilizer. The availability at a much earlier date of the 1943 Emergency Crop and Feed Loan lending facilities should encourage eligible farmers to plant fall crops for green manure, soil building and soil conservation crops for better pasturage, to supply their needs for nitrogen in the spring.

Emergency Crop Loans are made to farmers, who own or have made arrangements for land to farm; who own or have the use of the necessary workstock and equipment with which to farm; who need funds to meet their cash requirements; who cannot obtain a loan from Production Credit Associations, or from other sources on reasonable terms; and who can give a first lien on their crops. As in former years, the money loaned will be based upon the borrower's needs in connection with his regular 1943 crop program, and the amount that can be repaid from the normal average production of cash crops under normal conditions.

Emergency Feed Loans, to finance the purchase or production of feed for livestock, are made to farmers who are maintaining livestock to be fed for the market, as breeding animals with the increase to be marketed. or for the production of dairy products, wool, etc. The same rules of eligibility and the same requirements govern the consideration of feed loan applicstions, except that such loans must be secured by a first mortgage on the livestock to be fed.

As pointed out by Mr. Thigpen, all farmers who obtain these loans can plant and cultivate crops, both for sale and for farm or home use according to USDA County War Board requirements, and the loans will be based on both their usual needs and for the production of goal crops and other products necessary and essential to help win the war. All borrowers will be encouraged and expected to cooperate in the "Food for Freedom" program. They will be required to plant home or kitchen gardens, and to produce enough feed for their work and subsistence animals. They will be required to meet their part of County War Board Goals for crops, such as soybeans and peanuts for oil, wheat, oats, and feed crops to increase eggs, milk, pork, and cattle marketing. They will be shown how goals can be met for crops not commonly grown in their communities.

Mr. Thigpen stated that eligible farmers desiring to do so may apply now for loans to take care of their crop production needs for the entire 1943 season. Loans may include immediate advances to meet cash requirements this fall, such as planting cover crops and purchasing lime and phosphate. The remainder of the approved amount of the loan will be disbursed when the borrower needs it to finance his crops at regular spring planting time. Loans are not restricted to selected applicants. They are available to all farmers who can establish eligibility according to the terms of the loan regulations and authorizing act. Loans are not to exceed $400 to an individual. The amount is based on the crop acreage or the number of head of livestock to be fed. The interest rate is 4 pc cent per year.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

We heard this somewhere: The Lord gave us two ends: one to think with and one to sit with. The outcome of this war depends upon which we use. Heads we win, tails we lose.

Ruth Kelly in the Probate office pased it on to us and asked that it be passed on to you. Youcan buy your automobile licenses there now. Of course you don't get your stickers yet, but you get your receipts, and that is just as good. You can't get your gas rationing book on November 9th without that little receipt, so you better get in line now and pay-up.

According to Mrs. J. E. Gowan spooks and goblins and the like will reign at the High School Auditorium Saturday night when the Parent-Teachers Association sponsor a Halloween Party. Well we remember bobing for apples in a tub of water and the grotesque costumes and such at Halloween. It was one of the happiest times of the year and the ladies at the High School promise young and old a good time Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock if they will be present for their good old fashioned Halloween Party.

Our thanks to Frances Conway for her aid in typing the "box holders" for this edition, we'er grateful. . . two letters just received tells us that Malcolm Lecroy and Virgil Dennis have been sent to Camp Wallace, Texas and are undergoing training in the Anti-aircraft Replacement Training Center . . . Millard Lancaster turned 50 Tuesday morning at 4:30. That's right. He told me he was there . . . Wonder if the M. C. in Jack Hayes name does mean, "Moochie Coochie." . . . Chilton County has turned in more than 925,000 pounds of scrap. Better than 33 pounds per person . . . David Reese Griffin has been promoted to 1st Lieutenant. He has been stationed at Quantico, Va.

You heard about the young soldier, (we don't think he was from here) that was at home on furlough. He was bragging how fast he was on the draw to his young wife and wasgiving her a free demonstration. Well, the way it turned out, he was faster on the trigger than he was on the draw and shot the seat of his pants out and had to have a bad gunshot wound dressed in his leg.

MARS HILL

We had a good attendance at church and Sunday School Sunday, even the weather was bad. Brother Nix delivered some wonderful sermons. We were glad to have Mrs. Nix and daughter Elaine with Brother Nix.

Miss Leafie Smith and Miss Claudine O'Barr visited friends and relatives over the week end.

Mrs. T. C. Cofer of Birmingham is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Leach.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Scott of Birmingham dined with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Roper Sunday.

Mrs. Everett Lawley, and Baby Lynell, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Scott all of Birmingham also Mr. and Mrs. T. Orben Langston and son Gerald, and Mr. Earl Langston and children all dined with Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Langston Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cofer and son Curtis of Calera visited Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Scott Sunday.

Mrs. Maggie Irvin of Selma visited her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gothard last week.

We are sory to report that Miss Mollie Gothard who is in the hospital in Clanton is not improving very fast. We do hope for a speedy recovery.

Several from our community attended the singing at Center Hill Sunday and reported a good singing.

MT. NEBO NEWS

Usual services were held at Mt. Nebo Sunday. Prayer meeting Sunday night was conducted by Mr. J. D. Culp. We wish to extend an invitation to all the young people of this and adjoining communities to attend C. E. program each Sunday night. The subject for discussion by the people next Sunday night will be "Christian Bases for World Peace."

Myradine Scott was the guest Sunday of Martha McKee.

Miss Inez McKee was the week end guest of Miss Frances Terry during the past week end.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Henley and Hoyt, and Mrs. J. D. Culp visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Culp of Highland community Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Shelley Gilliland, Olivia and Harold, and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Mims, Fannie Lee and Rose Ann visited Mr. Marvin Oats and family Sunday.

Burnice Culp was the week end guest of his sister, Mrs. J. M. Maddox of Clanton.

Alee Culp was the Sunday dinner guest of Marvorene Henley.

HAVE YOU TREATED FOR PEACH TREE BORERS THIS YEAR?

There are two ways you may treat your peach trees for borers. If you haven't, you should before the (25). One way to control the peach borer or trees four years of age and older is to apply paradichlorabenzine around the tree trunks in the fall from Oct. 10 to 25. For trees four to five years old, ¾ of an ounce should be used per tree, while on older trees 1 ounce should be applied. Growers who fail to treat their trees in the fall may apply this treatment about April 1, but this is not as effective as fall treatment. The sceond way or method of treating your trees is as falling prepare ethylene dichloride emulsion cold by stirring nine parts by volume of ethylene dichloride into one part by volume of good grade of potash fish-oil soap. This should be mixed out of doors or in a well ventilated room.

This mixture can be applied for the control of the peach borer anytime during the fall or spring and in the South applications in the winter will give good results. This mixture can be sprayed on or poured. The quantity should regulate rather closely using application much in excess of the recommended dosage may cause tree injury. Applications are made by wetting the soil immediately surrounding the tree and the lower part of the tree should receive some of the material during treatment.

A HAPPY DAY

Sunday, October 18, was a very, very enjoyable day at the Calfee home.

Around ten and eleven o'clock the cars began to arrive for a happy day to be spent with Mother and Dad, who were, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Calfee. The day was spent with good eats, including a large hen, a fryer and a ten pound fish and lots of good clean fun. The children who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Green, Martelle, Jack; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Prater and Annie Joyce from Wetumpka, Ala.; Mrs. and Mrs. Guinton White and Gwendlyn from Montgomery, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCraw, Sue and Jean of Clanton; Miss Alta Calfee from Alexander City, Ala.; Mrs. Cecil V. McKee and Annie Louise Calfee. Those visiting in the afternoon were: Mrs. Fred Oden and 3 daughters, Margaret, Mary Ann and Charlotte, Miss Sara Matthews, Mrs. Belle Veazey, Miss Pauline Veazey, Mrs. Jessie Summers and Mrs. Walter DeShazo.

The dinner was served in a picnic style, everyone enjoying it immensely. After lunch many pictures were taken.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Prater, Martelle Green, Annie Laurie Calfee, Jack Green and Mrs. Cecil McKee motored to Maplesville to take more pictures and enjoy the fresh air.

The departing hour came much too soon. Everyone left with a smile and hoping to be together soon when all the family can be here.

W. R. Prater, grandson by marriage is to be inducted into service before long to "Slap a Jap" and bring home "Victory."

Those of the family who were absent included: Mr. Robert of Indianola, Miss., Mrs. J. S. Grimes of Sylacauga, Mr. Judson and Myron Calfee of Birmingham.

They are all thankful to God that he gave us such a enjoyable day. We pray that we can always be a family of his.

ALABAMA HAS FURNISHED 155 PERCENT OF 1942 QUOTA

Dr. B. F. Austin, State Health Officer and State Chairman of Procurement and Assignment Service for Physicians, declared recently that he would not recommend that any more Alabama physicians enter service with the armed forces until other States have more nearly reached their quotas and until the demand is much more urgent.

Much has been heard in recent months about Alabama doing more than her share in supplying doctors to the Army. Evidence to back this up was recently received by Dr. Austin from national headquarters of Procurement and Assignment Service, in the form of a tabulation showing what the different States have done. It showed that Alabama has furnished far more physicians to the armed forces than was expected, this State having already supplied 155 per cent of its 1942 quota. Only one State, New Mexico, with 156 per cent, equalled or surpassed Alabama's record. By contrast, several populous States in the North and East had furnished only about one-half, or a little more than half, of their quotas. Dr. Austin made it plain that in his opinion these other States should do their part before there is any further depletion of medicla service in Alabama.

SPORTSMEN URGED SAVE USED SHELLS

Alabama hunters were urged today by Conservation Director Albert W. Gill to aid in the nation's scrap metal campaign by saving their discharged shotgun shells and rifle cartridges. The used shells and cartridges should be donated to the local salvage piles.

"Many tons of needed brass can be secured for the nation's scrap pile if our sportsmen wil lpick up their discharged shotgun shells and rifle cartridges and contribute them to their salvage committees," says Mr. Gill, "While walking through the woods or waiting in their duck blinds, hunters will find numerous used shells lying about. I do not think it asking too much of our Alabama hunters to suggest that they pick these up and turn them in with shells from current trips. I think I know our Alabama sportsmen well enough to predict that they will cooperate 100 per cent with this request."

PEANUT GROWERS AND BUYERS WARNED

Peanut growers and buyers of Chilton County were warned this week that no excess peanuts for other than crushing purposes may be bought or sold without approval of the Commodity Credit Corporation, Mr. Napoleon Posey, Chairman of the Chilton County Agricultural Conservation Committee, said this action was necessary to insure all excess peanuts being processed for oil.

"All peanut producers, buyers, and their agents are subject to the order since no person shall sell, purchase, contract for the sale or purchase of, deliver or accept delivery of, or use excess peanuts of the 1942 crop for any purpose other than crushing," said Mr. Posey.

Stringent action will be taken by the War Production Board whenever the order is violated by any person, he warned.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

A ship anchered near the bridge that spans the San Francisco Bay. The tide was in and the pilot saw that the mast pole could not go under the bridge. At midnight a new pilot came on board the ship, lifted the anchor and the ship slowly approached the under passage of the bridge. The few passengers who strolled the deck at that late hour looked up and they were sure that the mast pole would strike the bridge and they cried out with fear. The pilot at the wheel knew and with assurance he guided his ship under and on its way. There should be a Pilot on board every life who knows, and this Pilot is none other than God himself. He alone can know we can pass under the loads of life, and He alone can guide us safely pass every danger. Let God be your Pilot for He knows.

Wanting some crabs for dinner I tied a piece of meat to the end of a string and went down to the dock to make the catch. I know that the nature of the crab was to be a grabber and a pincher and so I dropped my bait down to where he lived. No sooner than the meat was near him, he would grab it and go to pinching it, while I drew him up to help fill my bucket. The nature of the crab made it possible for me to soon have a full bucket. There are human, "Grabbers and Pinchers" and they are located in almost every community. To find out who they are, just drop a tempting bait down where they live and they will grab and start pinching with all their might.

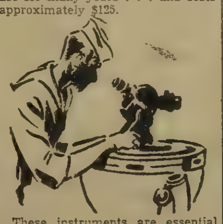
A Negro Bishop attended one of Dr. Stanley's Jones Ashrams in India. At the first session of the Ashram this man of the ministry arose to ask for information as to what was the purpose of the Ashram. Said the "Dr. Jones, I do not know what an Ashram is and I want you to tell me why and for what purpose we are here?" Dr. Jones explained the purpose of the Ashram and the only comment that the bishop made was this, "If I understand your meaning it is this. The real purpose of this Ashram is to get an old ram like I am out of the ashes." Dr. Jones still thinks well of the bishop's satement. The real purpose of an Ashram is to pull men and women out of the ashes of indifference and weakness, and clean them up and fill them with Christian power.

While wearing a blueserge suit I stopped by a fence that had been whitewashed with lime, to enjoy a chat with a friend. Without thinking of harm to my new suit I leaned against the fence and rubbed back and forth for some time. When I did step forward, it is needless to picture the results that were evident on my suit. From that experience I learned that no man can rub against a whitewashed fence and not carry some of it away with him. When we associate with good people, when we rub elbows with that which is white and clean, we are surely going to be made better. I refered to the above experience to tell you that no man con contact the good of a comunity and not carry a little of that good away with him.

There is no greater religious leader in the world today than Dr. E. Stanley Jones. He has more of the Christly spirit in him than any man I have ever known. To be with him is like being with the Man of Galilee. Great as he is I saw him with a croker sack out on the lawn in front of the Robt. E. Lee Hall at Blue Ridge, picking up the paper that careless people had scattered everywhere. He made no comment about this menial service. It was something that needed to be done and Dr. Jones was not any to good to do it. His great spirit and his unselfish example, made all the rest of us bury our faces in shame. No man is truly Christian until he is willing to stoop to the lowest service, as well as reach up to the highest honors Did I hear you say that a certain service to your fellowman, was beneath your dignity? It is not quality of service that we need to do, but service Do anything where your service will count.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

A pelorus, used by the Navy, is a device which fits over the surface of a compass to enable the operator to take bearings on distant objects. It has split hair sights, has been in use for many years . . . and costs approximately $125.



These instruments are essential equipment to every American ship which comes out of the shipyards. With the scores of ships now being completed each month, we need many of these instruments. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will help pay for them. Invest at least ten percent of your income every payday in these interest bearing Government securities.

CANDIDATE FOR REPRESENTATIVE

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY:

Most of you know me, and I have seen as many of you as I could under the circumstances and asked for your vote and support.

If elected to the Legislature I will use every effort to put into effect the old age pension, so that people who reach the age of sixty-five or more will draw $30.00 per month for the remaining portion of their lives.

I will favor a referendum on the liquor question, and if a majority of the people of the State want our State dry, let them so indicate it by their vote and if a majority of the people want liquor, let them so indicate it by their vote.

I will favor an eight months public school, as has been promised you by your next Governor, the Honorable Chauncy Sparks. I favor the seven point program as regards education, and which program was prepared by the Legislative Committee of the Alabama Educational Association and adopted and approved by Governor Chauncy Sparks, and I will use my best effort to have the same adopted into law.

I will appreciate your vote and whatever assistance you may be able to give me on November 3rd. I am,

Sincerely your friend,

G. C. WALKER.

If you're a heartsick wife—mother—or sweetheart . . . you'd do a lot to give that boy a better chance to get back safe. Well then . . . do it!

SOMEONE'S LIFE IS IN YOUR HANDS!

ROUND up your scrap metal—it's needed to make steel. Steel for armor plate to protect him from bombs and bullets. Steel for weapons to help him do the job that must be done before he can come home again.

You don't want production figures. It's enough to know that 50% of all new steel is made of scrap—that our steel mills now have only enough scrap in sight to last another 30 days at the most!

What happens after that depends on all of us. If production falls and you've not done your part, will you rest easy?

Next week we're starting a collection drive—to build the biggest stockpile of scrap metal you've ever seen. Then when the mills need it, we'll have it—because you came through . . . for his sake!

THE CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

Farmers Called On To Produce More

With American farmers being called on to produce more and more with less and less, the need for cooperation and sharing the use of certain kinds of farm machinery is due to result in the organization of many farmers cooperatives in Chilton County, in the opinion of Marvin Durbin, Rural Rehabilitation supervisor for the Farm Security Administration.

In wartime farm production, it's as unpatriotic to have idle machines as it is to have idle men, and Chilton County farmers are expected to do something about it, Mr. Durbin believes.

The Farm Security Administration he reports, is anxious to assist farmers in this county in organizing cooperatives and will, in many cases, finance the group purchase for group use of scarce farm machinery and equipment.

Such groups are small and would consist, in most instances, of neighbors forming a cooperative arrangement between each other, the supervisor explained. The arrangements are simple, he said, and participation agreement forms may be obtained, with complete information, at the Farm Security office by anyone interested. The agreement may constitute the basis of understanding between all participants, covering rental and|or service charges, kinds of records to be kept, schedule of use, and so forth.

Mr. Durbin recalled a recent address by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard in which he urged farmers to "Unite for Victory". The Secretary said, "American farmers are working the longest hours of any group in the country and this year's production of crops and livestock shows where farmers stand. Despite limitations of labor and machinery, farmers are smashing all records—not only for total production, but in the particular products that are needed most for winning the war." Mr. Durbin said Farm Security has made a good many loans in this area in former years to help farmers buy machinery on a cooperative basis, "but now with the shortage of machinery, we're a lot more anxious to help farmers with this particular phase of our program than ever before."

Glider Training for U. S. Army Pilots Is Latest

MOFFET FIELD, CALIF.—Uncle Sam's flying men who keep 'em flying with motors are now learning how to keep 'em flying without motors.

At a little desert vacation spot in southern California gliding has now become the major business for the U. S. army airmen.

At one time gliding was considered a "crazy hobby" and a sport. Now, the "crazy hobby" is a weapon of war of which the United States army corps is taking advantage.

At Elmira, N. Y., last year, the air corps sent its best pilots to learn about the motorless flying. Elmira is a mecca for soaring addicts.

The gliding course includes instruction in two-place, eight-place and 15-place gliders. After graduation the glider officers will train additional glider pilots.

Lake Michigan Covers Old German Submarine

CHICAGO.—Four hundred feet under Lake Michigan's surface, 40 miles northwest of Chicago and 20 miles east of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, lies the 800-ton hulk of the UC-97, only German U-boat ever sunk in Lake Michigan.

The United States navy, which sank her with 5-inch shells in 1921, would like to have her back today to provide the war-geared Gary steel mills with much-needed scrap iron. But in accordance with terms of the Versailles treaty, the navy picked a spot so deep that salvage would be impractical.

Captured in the last war by an American destroyer, the UC-97 was brought to this country for use in the Victory Loan drive, after which she served as a target for the U.S.S. Wilmette, naval reserve gunboat.

Towed to her place of doom, the U-boat was hit by three out of five shots at a distance of three miles by the port bow gun of the Wilmette, which swung about in time for the starboard rifle to score seven out of a possible eight.

The submarine sank in 30 seconds.

Chilton County Schools Are On The March

4000 Children ride in safety and comfort to school daily.

2000 Children are healthier and better students because of school lunchrooms.

Hundreds of out-of-school youth have received training vital to the war effort.

New and better school buildings are a credit to the county.

A longer term gives our children a better chance with children in the city and North.

Cooperation and confidence abound.

I solicit your vote and influence as an Endorsement of the Record and a mandate to go forward to Victory and Better Schools. Why swap a leader trained by four years of experience?

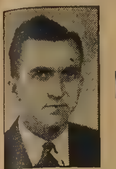
Democrats Poll Landslide In County Election



FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

They did it—the whole kit and kaboodle of them. Licked the Republicans 2 to 1 and we're proud of them. Delos Culp, County Superintendent of Education takes office at once. The Sheriff and two Commissioners take office in January, 1943 and the Tax Collector and Assessor will take their places in the courthouse next October. It is a great victory for the Democrats and we'er expecting big things from them.

Here is a piece written by Shorty Wilson, stationed at San Diego, Calif. "Shorty" is in the U. S. Marine Corps. We knew the Army brought out all there was in a man but here is a side we didn't know "Shorty" possessed.

As men go to their battle posts, to face the fearful odds,
For the glory of their Country and the Temples of their Gods.
I ask God to forgive me for the bad things I have done,
And make a better man of me, from here to Kingdom Come.
Why should I be one to grumble or to stand back with fear?
We all have to fight some day, and I'm glad my time is near.
There could be no greater cause than for the ones we love,
So, please God, protect us, and give us strength from above.
May we overthrow the Axis and keep our freedom thus.
And beat the Japs into the dirt and clear up all this fuss.
Let the happiness of our kindred and our dearest never cease
And we'll all come home as heroes with that everlasting peace.

Saw W. W. Wingard Sunday afternoon. Mr. W. W. looks good as new and is working with the TCI Company in the Ham. Says he likes his new work fine . . . Hear that Paul Williamson's wife was operated upon in a Birmingham Hospital Monday morning. We'er sorry, and hope that she soon recovers . . . John VanDerveer was home over the week-end on his way to Induction Center. He left Monday morning . . . Understand that Gordon Donnavant, Kermet Coburn and Bilie Popwell are together in St. Petersburg. This we know: St. Petersburg isn't dull these days . . . James Arnold up this week-end, looking mighty good in his new uniform. He's at Maxwell Field, where too are Gerald Burdette and "Snowey" Melton . . . Buck Bice at Chilton County Exchange says he can hatch 12,000 chicks every 21 days. Says Uncle Sam is calling for 250,000,000 this year where only 50,000,000 were hatched last year . . . Heard Lester (Britches) Jones was leaving this month for Uncle Sams Army. Around the seventeenth . . . And by-the-way Virginia Ware Johnson, Clerk at Board 1, is leaving this month for good to join her husband. He is stationed in Fla. . . The family of Adolph Smith have learned that he is O.K. and that he has landed safely on the other side.

We are very glad to learn that our Alabama Mills Correspondent, Miss Leana Glenn, who has been in the hospital for the past several weeks is fast improving.

They tell me that the Halloween Party at the High School last Saturday night was a dandy. Much of the credit goes to Mrs. J. E. Gowan who worked tirelessly to make it the big success that it was. Of course we can't name all the mothers and teachers who also contributed to the affair but their efforts were not in vain, and that in spite of the worst kind of weather.

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who has never turned around and said,
Hm-m-m-m--not bad."

Proud of Judge L. H. Reynolds is Clanton and Chilton County. He is one of 25 surviving members to the Constitutional Convention of 1901 who met in Montgomery last week. Judge Reynolds has spent a life time of service to his city, his county, his State and his country. Few citizens of this nation have had the wide experiences in governmental affairs as Judge Reynolds. He reports a fine time at the Convention and enjoyed reviving old acquaintances there.

It looks like within sixty or ninety days all who need them will be able to get some kind of tire to run on. It may not prove best, and as we understand it, the tire will not be guaranteed to go around the block, but are expected to last for at least 10 thousand miles. It looks like the committee who investigated the rubber situation decided that the best thing that they could do was to keep the 27,000,000 automobiles now on the roads in America on the move. That is, on the move where it is necessary Under the new set-up there will be no "joy riding" or the like. Every mile traveled will be a mile that is absolutely necessary to business and transportation.

STATEWIDE BLACKOUT WITHIN A FEW DAYS

Within the next few days Clanton and all of Alabama will have a blackout. According to the authorities here when you hear both the whistles at Robinson's Mill and the Cotton Mill and the Fire whistle all go off together that will be the signal and time for you to get into the house and either put out the lights or see that your air-raid curtains fit tight enough that no light shows from within.

That is also the signal for all workers to get at their posts and stand ready for any emergency. State officials will send out instructions by plane that will be dropped and the worker finding same should get in touch with his headquarters at once so that the proper action should be taken.

Earl Gore County Commander advised those who failed to hear the whisles but see the street lights go out will know that the black-out is on and to act accordingly.

COTTON GINNING REPORT

Census report shows that 7,148 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1942 prior to October 18th, as compared with 4,295 bales for the crop of 1941.

WANT TO KNOW HOW TO GET YOUR GAS RATIONING BOOK?

Here are some of the rules that you must follow if you expect to ride in your automobile after November 22nd.

1. Secure at Local Board or Inspection Station, beginning October 27, an application (Form R-534) for "A" Gas Ration Book with Tire Inspection Record attached.
2. Executes application and Inspection Record, particularly filling in the serial numbers of the 5 passenger tires he wants to keep and sells all other tires to the Defense Supplies Corporation. If Applicant has more than 5 passenger tires Gas Rations will be denied.
3. On November 9, 10 or 11 he appears at a designated schoolhouse and presents his application to a Registrar who determines that it is properly executed.
4. He receives the basis "A" Ration Book, the Tire Inspection Record which is detached from the application, and an instruction pamphlet.
5. Should the Applicant believe that he is entitled to more than the basis "A" Book, he may ask for and receive at the same time an application for additional Gas Rations.
6. The applicant should not execute the supplemental application at the schoolhouse. The executed supplemental application should be mailed or delivered to the Local Board.
7. The Applicant must have his tires inspected at an OPA Inspection Station before January 31, 1943. Thereafter, inspection is required every two months for "B" and "C" Book holders, and every four months for "A" Book holders. A record of such inspection shall be signed by the Inspector on the Inspection Report received by the Applicant at the time he received the Basic "A" Ration Book.

LAST SUNDAY AT METHODIST BEFORE CONFERENCE

Rev. T. C. Casaday, pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church urges all members to be present at the services both morning and evening this Sunday as it will be his last services before going to Conference.

Rev. Casaday says he has spent 2 happy years in Clanton and hopes all who possibly can will attend these services.

NOTICE—THIS CONCERNS YOU

The registration for Gas rationing books and the registration of passenger automobiles will be held at the School Houses on the 12th, 13th and the 14th of November.

CLANTON'S FIRST ANNUAL RETAIL INSTITUTE WILL HAVE FINAL MEETING TONIGHT

Tonight in the City Hall Auditorium the last meeting of Clanton's Retail Institute will be held beginning at 7:30 and ending at 9:30. The subjects to be discussed are "Salesmanship" and "Selling Wartime Fabrics." This Institute has been sponsored by the Chilton Board of Education in cooperation with the State Department of Education and therefore has been free of charge to all people engaged in the retail field.

Other classes were given in the general evening sessions. They were: "Food Selling for Victory" and display. Stores that requested individual classes for their employees during the two weeks of the Institute were: Levine Dry Goods Company, V. J. Elmore, The Leader, Chicago Sales and The Johnson Fashion Shop. These classes were conducted by Miss Fleda Fulmer, itenerate teacher of Distributive Education from the University of Alabama.

"The Retail Institute will be an annual event," said H. W. Yeager, lead supervisor of Trades and Industrial Education." Next year salespeople completing the units of study which are given during the Institute will receive credit cards, which will count toward a diploma in Distributive Education, that is issued by the State Department of Education, Division of Vocational Education."

"The interest shown by Clanton's merchants in the Distributive Education service has been fine according to Miss Fulmer. "In '43 we hope to have an Institute that will render a bigger and better service to the retailers of Clanton."

REDISTRIBUTION OF PHYSICIANS HELD NECESSARY

"The situation indicates that there must be some equitable redistribution of physicians in Alabama if edequate medical care is to be made available for all our citizens," Dr. B. F. Austin, state health officer, asserts in a bulletin issued by the State Planning Commission.

The bulletin revealed that the shortage of doctors in Chilton County is such that only one physician is available to every 2,024 inhabitants. The scarcity ranges from the acute condition in Washington County, where there is only one doctor for every 6,990 residents, to the situation in Jefferson County where one doctor is available for every 1,043 inhabitants (approximately the pre-war national average).

In making public the report, W. O. Dobbins, Jr., director of the planning commission pointed out that the figures are based on conditions as of September 11, this year.

UNOFFICIAL RETURNS SHOW EVERY CANDIDATE FAR IN FRONT OF OPPONENT

The Democratic Party in Chilton County made history Tuesday when they marched to the polls and declared themselves heartily in favor of a Democratic Administration for the next four years. The majority run all the way from approximately 1000 votes to 1500 votes, which in most cases was 2 to 1.

Dr. W. L. Parrish led the Democratic ticket with 2643 votes with Jack Hayes following closely with 2624.

Throughout the day the voting was quiet and orderly with the weather as fine as could be askel for the occasion.

Inthe County races total high vote was cast in the race for Sheriff between Nivens and Conway when 4040 votes were cast. Nivens receiving 2608 and Conway 1432.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

I want to thank the voters of the County for the very fine vote I received Tuesday for County Solicitor of Chilton County.

The term of this office is four years. I hope that I may hold the office, and perform the duties of that office in such manner, that the people of the county will have been honored as well as myself with the services I hope to give them.

If I can be of service at anytime as your elected public official, call upon me.

A. B. (BUSTER) FOSHEE

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY

I want to thank you for the vote of confidence you gave me last Tuesday. I shall at all times strive to be Superintendent of all the schools forall the people and ask you all to cooperate in providing better schools for our children.

Sincerely,
DELOS P. CULP.

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY

I appreciate the confidence you have placed in me and will do my utmost to justify your faith in me.

I consider being elected Tax Assessor of Chilton an honor and wish to express my appreciation to every one. If at any time I can be of service to any man, woman or child in Chilton County please call on me.

Again I wish to thank you.

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH WALLOPS WEST BLOCTON 46-0.

(James Foshee, Sports Reporter).

Friday night, October 30, at the local field, Chilton County High continued its winning way by defeating West Blocton 46 to 0. The game again displayed Clanton's power in the line and speed in the backfield.

The Chilton County Tigers began to roll in the first quarter when Payton raced off tackle for 50 yards; he was stopped on the 10 yard line. On a reverse from Payton, Higgins took the ball and went across for the first score. McKey's kick was good. In the second quarter Harold Culp, substitute right half, raced off tackle 60 yards to score. Payton passed to Smith for the extra point. Higgins plunged through center to score. At the end of the half 20 to 0. Bill (Rosie) Stanley, left tackle, blocked a kick in the end zone and Paul Smith, left end, recovered for a touchdown. Mims plunged for extra point. Payton raced around end for 55 yards to score. McKey's kick was good. The end of the third quarter the score was 34 to 0.

Acie Mims, fullback, went off tackle for 3 yards to score. A pass to Griel Popwell, substute end, set up the lasts touchdown. Mims plunged over from the 4 yard line to score 46 to 0.

The line made up of Kellum, Stanley, McKey, Davenport, Dennis, Tell, and Smith opened up the holes and the backs scooted through for the necessary yardage. The team chalked up its 16th victory by the brilliant playing of the backfield: McGee, Mims, Higgins, and Payton.

The Chilton County Tigers meet Holtville Friday night, November 6, at the Clanton field. The Tigers defeated Holtville 21 to 7 last year for the first time in five years. The Chilton County Tigers will be seeking their 17th straight victory. This promises to be a good game.

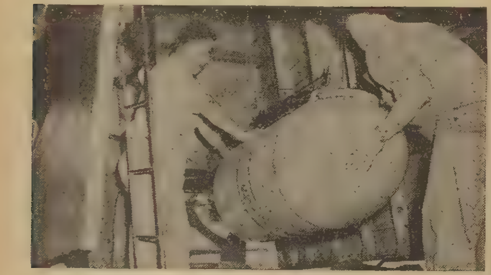
Look Out Below! 2,000-lb. Bomb!

The pictures presented herewith are the very first actual photographs of 2,000-pound bomb tests ever to be released in the United States. They were taken at the Army Ordnance department proving ground, Aberdeen, Md. In picture at top the bombs are being readied by a muscular civilian expert for the test. He is attaching the tail fin to one bomb, across which lies a red flag—warning signal to other workmen. Fins are placed on large bombs just prior to dropping, to guide them in their flight. Made of comparatively light metal, they might be bent if shipped attached to bombs. Bent fins would cause misses.

The 2,000-pound demolition bomb is trundled carefully to the bi-motored bomber. Notice the pistol worn by the soldier who is pushing the hand cart. He is armed to enforce, if necessary, rigid safety restrictions applying when high explosives are handled.



An electric winch in the bombardment plane lifts the bomb through the bomb bay to its position in the plane. These tests are conducted in co-operation with the air corps, which furnishes the bombardment aircraft and flying personnel.

Flame and smoke are sent nearly 2,000 feet skyward as the bomb explodes. Photo was taken with a telescopic lens, a mile from the blast.

These two ugly, jagged fragments of metal, held by an army officer, formed part of the case of the test bomb.

The Wireless: One famine the Nazzys can't hide from the world is their famine in ideas. Best Food Storage in Outdoor Cellar or Cave

Storeroom Style Depends On Contour of the Land

The most nearly ideal food storage space on the farm is the outdoor, underground cellar or cave.

It is set all or part way into the ground, banked over with earth, floored and lined with masonry, and fitted with one or more ventilators for air movement. This type of storage provides the best natural conditions for canned fruit, pails or other tightly covered containers, as well as for whole fruits and vegetables. It also serves as a storm cellar for the farm family.

In some areas the bank cellar may be the best solution to the storage problem this fall. The bank cellar belongs on rolling ground. The lower part is masonry construction and is set back into the sloping ground. The upper part may be made of lumber, insulated in the upper walls and roof with sawdust or commercial insulation.

Another useful storeroom—and usually the simplest and best for the home with finished basement—is the special storage room in the basement.

A small room space, five or six feet wide and as long as may be needed, is separated from the rest of the basement by a tight wall. A door is fitted into one of the partition walls. At least one outside window is needed so air circulation can be maintained and the temperature controlled to some extent. It is important that the basement room be insulated overhead and in the partition walls to cut off all possible heat transfer from the basement or from the room above.

Hundreds of grain elevators similar to this one at Grafton, Ohio, are holding grain from thousands of farms across the nation.

Agriculture in Industry

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Wormseed

In one corner of Carroll county in the state of Maryland, farmers have been growing Wormseed for more than 100 years. Western farmers would likely not even recognize the plant if they saw it growing, although in its uncultivated state, it can be found in weedy areas over the entire country.

From Wormseed is distilled "Baltimore oil" or wormseed oil which is used in the manufacture of disinfectants and sprays, in paints and lubricating oils, in the treatment of hookworm, and as a vermifuge for cattle.

The plant is an annual which is sown in seedbeds in the early spring. In June, when the plants are six to eight inches high, they are set out in the fields, either by hand or with a mechanical planter which digs a small trench, drops the plant and waters it, then covers it with soil, all in one operation. The usual rate of planting is 3 feet by 14 inches, making about 2,400 plants to the acre.

Frequent cultivation keeps the weeds down until the plants ripen and the seeds turn brown and black. The plants must be harvested at just the right time, when not too green to have a high content of ascaridole, and not ripe enough to shatter. After curing several days, the plants are hauled to the still and made into oil.

Farm Lease Essentials

In farm leases, essential points are the date when the lease is drawn, the beginning and ending of the farm lease term, method of renewal or extension, accurate description of the real estate and other property affected by the lease, reservations such as right of landlord to enter to inspect the property and make improvements, and, finally, a definite and agreed price of rental and the time and manner of payment.

HIP, HIP! HEPZIBAH!

By CHET GRANT

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"THE fact that Hepzibah is not an actual cousin," Mrs. Blake said to her son Georgie, "has nothing to do with the matter. You hop in that Iron Horse of yours and get down to the station to meet her. I don't want to hear another word about it. Now hurry!"

Georgie Blake moped out to the garage. Imagine being harnessed with a girl named Hepzibah! Georgie squirmed in his seat. He could just picture her!

Hugo Green was mowing his lawn when Georgie drew up before the house. Hugo was a good fellow, but he played the cornet. However, any port in a storm.

"'Lo, Hugo, what's new?" he called affably.

"Nothin'." Hugo eyed Georgie narrowly.

"Say," Georgie said brightly, "how about comin' up t' the house t'night? Bring your horn."

Hugo grinned. "Not for me, Georgie. I've heared about Cousin Hepzibah from Maine."

The Iron Horse slewed around the cinder parking space and came to a stop beside the station platform. Georgie dismounted and was taken aback to discover Tootles and the rest of his crowd innocently sitting on the baggage truck by the ticket window.

"Hey," Tootles yelled, "you goin' to kiss Cousin Hepzibah, Georgie?"

"You got hayseed on your collar!"

"Makin' her feel right to home!"

There was lots more, but the train thundered into the station. There were but a few passengers and only one of them was a girl. At the sight of her Georgie's heart flip-flopped. She was a small person, exquisite from head to toe. There was not so much as a snicker from the baggage truck audience.

"Are you Cousin Hepzibah?"

Wide gray eyes twinkled. Red lips parted in a wonderful friendly smile. "Yes. And you're Cousin Georgie, aren't you?"

"U'm!" Georgie answered, reaching for her bag. "I guess we'd better be moving."

Without so much as a turn of his head in their direction he led Hepzibah away from Tootles and the rest. They stood quite still, shocked into inertia by the sudden revelation of Cousin Hepzibah in the flesh. Before their brains could function normally Georgie had started the Iron Horse away from the platform.

For the first time since Easter Georgie changed his suit before supper. He looked forward to a long enjoyable evening. He and Hepzibah would pop corn, discuss a number of things and listen to the radio. They discussed a number of things first and right in the middle of it the doorbell rang.

Georgie couldn't shut the door in Tootles' face because Tootles' foot was shoving the door for dear life. "You invited me, didn't you?" he demanded, shucking off his coat. Skinny Tate came next, Bud Thornton wasn't far behind, and within ten minutes the living room held every breathing male member of Elston's Young People's Society.

When Georgie returned from work in Mack's Garage the next evening he discovered that Hepzibah was dated with Tootles. Hepzibah hinted, too, that she would be dated the following night. She was—and the next night, and the next. Georgie's own particular girl was out of town, so he moped.

The feminine portion of Elston's Young People's Society did not view Hepzibah's popularity favorably, but there was nothing they could do. Only the approach of the Annual Picnic saved the day for them. It had been decided at the last meeting that all would go by bus, except Georgie, who had to work for half an hour after the starting time. It was expected that he would follow in his car with Hepzibah.

Saturday morning Georgie tinkered with the bus engine at the garage. Later it went by the door ablaze with banners and streamers. Georgie grinned. When closing time came he went home and bathed and then started toward the picnic came upon the bus some five miles from Elston.

"Hey, Georgie," Tootles called, rubbing grease across his hot face. "Come and give this blamed engine your expert attention."

Georgie sat behind the wheel of the Iron Horse and grinned. "Not me, boys, this is my afternoon off." He stood up and yelled. "Hey, you girls want a ride? Come on!" They came running.

"Well, boys," Georgie said, "I'm sorry there isn't any more room, but it isn't more than a two-mile hike to the grounds. The girls and I'll be waiting for you!"

The Iron Horse began to pull away, snorting and chugging. "Hey," Tootles yelled suddenly, "Where's Hepzibah, didn't she come?"

"Naw," Georgie shouted back. "She went back home. Said she never saw such a big bunch of hicks in her life!" The Iron Horse churned away down the road and over it hung the musical laughter of Elston's Young People's Society—feminine portion.

Joel McCrea's a life member of the Officers' Club of Gardner Field, Calif. Recently, when buying cattle in that vicinity, with the thermometer at 110, he visited the camp and learned that the men were trying to raise money for a swimming pool. A Bing Crosby golf match had raised part of it, a Victory Committee show had helped, but they still lacked $2,000. McCrea said he couldn't sing, dance or play golf to raise money, but he could write a check—and did. You'll be seeing him soon in "Great Without Glory."

These were placed on end about 18 inches apart and a shelf of half-inch plywood was screwed to the top. A frame was then screwed to the back of the boxes as shown. A curtain rod was placed across the top and the mirror hung lengthwise under it. An arm was then hinged to the front of each box. Paint was next. SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

For years the U. S. has consumed over half the world's supply of rubber. Close to 70% of the rubber imported by the U. S. was used in the manufacture of tires and tubes and tire accessories.

Last year a 6.00 by 16 4-ply black sidewall tire weighed 21.54 pounds, of which 11.2 pounds was crude rubber. The balance of the weight was in rubber, fabric, wire and chemicals.

Several years ago a man from Seattle traded a small house for one of the earliest types of automobile tires, of which he was a collector.

The most welcome gift for a Ugandie bride of Africa is an old automobile tire, which she wears as a necklace on special occasions.

The tires on the "Spirit of St. Louis" in the Smithsonian Institution are fifteen years old and still good.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

Entered in the Postoffice at Clanton, Alabama, as second-class matter under the Act of Congress of March, 1879
MRS MARK L. TUCKER, Owner
R. M. TUCKER, Managing Editor
The Defense of American Freedom is our First Consideration

The day of the "Front Office Editor", is past. Once upon a time the "Boss" could just sit up front and tell the men in the "back end" what to do, but them days are gone for ever. Now-a-day the Editor goes out and gets the job, brings it in and does the work himself, wraps it up and delivers it and then on the first of the month goes out and collects for it. That is, of course, after getting out the regular eight page edition of his paper.

Something ought to be done about recreation for Clanton's, and for that matter, Chilton county's young folks. There isn't a decent place in Chilton County where young boys and girls can go for clean, wholesome recreation. Of course a Community House would be the answer if that were possible at this time. It isn't.

The powers that be, didn't get a community house when it was possible for the young folks.

And of course, for the duration, it is impossible.

But they could prepare some place that the sons and daughters of the taxpayers could go for amusement even though it was just a make-shift community center.

The thing is that the young people are going to get together. And they are going to have fun. It is much better that they have their good time under the watchful eye of a paid official of the county than to go around to these honky-tonks where they have to sneak in and sneak out for fear someone will see them.

The ladies' of Clanton are to be congratulated for their fine work in raising a substantial part of the monies to buy uniforms for the Chilton County High School Band. The band is a credit to the school and the county.

The Band Mothers Club sponsored many plays and entertainments for the purpose of raising this money and worked hard and diligently to make a success of their undertaking.

Let it be said here and now that it is a Big Success.

And also let it be said that the Band, under the direction of F. K. Burton is also a success. Chilton County and Clanton are proud of their Band and too much praise cannot be given those who made this Band possible.

FARMERS URGED TO PLANT LEGUMES DUE TO SHORTAGE OF NITROGEN

—By P. H. Smith, County Agent.

Agricultural workers of Chilton County this week issued a joint statement advising farmers that the nitrogen shortage will be serious next spring and urging them to plant winter legumes in an effort to overcome this shortage.

Even though it is late to plant legumes in some areas of the state the war emergency makes it especially important that they still be planted and well fertilized. In doing this farmers will not only help overcome the nitrogen shortage but will qualify for payments under the 1942 AAA program which ends November 30.

Local agricultural workers have been advised by the Extension Service and Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Agricultural Adjustment Agency, and the Soil Conservation Service that Austrian winter peas may still be successfully planted south of Birmingham, blue lupine south of Montgomery anl vetch in north Alabama. These should be fertilized with at least 300 pounds of 16 percent superphosphate or 500 pounds of basic slag per acre. In addition, where the land is poor the Alabama Experiment Station recommends the application of 50 pounds of muriate of potash per acre.

There are several practices farmers can yet carry out to earn these payments up to their soil building allowances. The practices with the payments made fo reach under the AAA program are:

1. For planting winter legumes a payment of $1.50 per acre will be made. Payment of $2.50 per acre will be made for turning or leaving a good growth of legumes on the land next spring.

2. Payment of $1.50 will be made for applying 48 pounds of available phosphoric acid. Some of the materials which will supply this amount of phosphate are: 300 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate, 270 pounds of 18 percent superphosphate, 240 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate, 100 lbs. of 48 percent triple superphosphate, or a bag containing not less than 100 pounds of triple superphosphate furnished by AAA.

3. $6 per ton will be paid for applying basic slag.

4. $30 per ton will be paid for applying 50 percent muriate of potash (or equivalent).

5. Application of ground limestone (or equivalent) will be paid at the rate of $2.50 per ton.

"MAN BITES DOG!" That's News

AN EDITOR once told a cub reporter: "No one's interested if a dog bites a man. But," he added, "if a man bites a dog, that's news!"

The great majority of Alabama retail beer distributors are operating law abiding places—that's not news. It's only news when occasionally some retail beer distributor violates the law. That's a case of "man bites dog."

Yes, "black sheep" retailers are a small minority in our state today. Our Committee, together with all law-abiding beer dealers and the whole brewing industry, is eliminating these few undesirables. You can help by patronizing only legal and reputable places. And by reporting to authorities or this Committee any violation of the law. (Your name will not be used.)

TOWARD VICTORY

It is time that we were getting really mad about this war. Here's why:

"The Japs had flattened Cavite (in the Philippines)—the only American naval base in the Orient beyond We loaded wounded and took them to Canacao hospital. There was half an inch of blood on the landing platform at Canacao; we could hardly keep on our feet, for blood is as slippery as oil. The hospital attendants' uniforms were so spattered they looked like butchers." These are the words of Lieutenant Commander John D. Bulkeley who was there when it happened.

John James owers is missing. He did not think about himself. He made sure that the Japanese ship would not sail again. Powers "wasn't going to let the home folks down" when he piloted his airplane into the umbrella of Japanese fire.

The Russians are not giving up. Stalingrad is quickly becoming the Verdun of this war. Street fighting, battling at bayonet point in streets and city squares. The factory city on the Volga River has been leveled to a battlefield by bombs and shells, thousands of Russians have died for their native land—and also for the freedom that we too, desire.

And we should also get mad—good and mad—about this war because there are soldiers under four blankets every night in Alaska. They would like to see the United States again . . . Because an American newspaper man was taken prisoner by the Japanese. The Japs amputated his ten toes . . . Because of the mothers whose sons were lost at Dutch Harbor on Bataan, in the Solomons, at Pearl Harbor . . . Because of Japanese bombing of the "open city" of Manila . . . Because someone put wax into the gasoline of the Motor Torpedo Boats which were left to defend the Phillipines . . . Because this is the fourth year of this war and we still are on the defensive . . . We can't win the war by waiting for snow and sleet to stop the Germans in Russia, by waiting for a volcano to erupt and for Tokyo to be covered with lava, by waiting for Mussalini to recognize that the war is hopeless and to sign a peace treaty.

There are many reasons why we should be ready to put forth the all-out effort we've been talking about. Every single atrocity committed by the Japanese and Germans should make us remember the job we have to do. If we can't remember the real reason behind this fight—the actual conflict of tolerance and intolerance, of tyranny and freedom, of persecution and justice—then at least we ought to be able to remember that our nation was attacked and that we must repulse that attack everywhere and anytime the enemy may be found.

But how can we do more? Do you actually think you are doing enough? Do you think we are putting forth our total effort when the Russians are begging us for a second front and all we can supply are a few airraids on Germany? Do you honestly think our men have the materials for war, even though General MacArthur has had to stay put in the South Pacific? Do you think we have enough ships and tankers when gasoline rationing is to be put into effect because we can't transport gasoline? Or are all these things merely newspaper items to be noticed and forgotten about as we turn to the sports pages to see how nearly Georgia met defeat?

Oh yes, we can do more. Time is valuable.

We certainly do not need strikes now. Before it seemed that the American people were agreed on that fact. Now, though, strikes are looming up again. Why a strike in the important shipbuilding industry Raymond Clapper, the noted columnist, says we can win this war only if we have the ships to transport men and materials to foreign lands. A strike then, in the shipbuilding industry, can hold up and extend the war indefinitely.

What about war bonds and stamps? The United States fell under quota in August. In fact, we bought only half as much as our government asked us to. Is that the way to help finance our own war?

The government needs scrap metal and scrap rubber—somthing else about which we haven't done too much.

Here are a few remedies; they are sufficient; they are merely listed for you to think about now that we are dangerously near losing this war by our own indifference:

We must get Congress to act-by petition, by public opinion, by the press, by every conceivable method. We must not wait and waste time. Every minute is valuable. We must outlaw strikes, and we must make every worker realize the necessity of doing his part. There can be no more strikes for the duration. The government should force (and that is a hard word to use in a democracy) every citizen to buy war bonds and stamps according to his means. We should quit playing around in our scrap metal drives. It is estimated that there are 300,000 tons of steel in car bumpers. Take these bumpers off; we won't need them for the duration if we are to drive 35 miles per hour. There is steel there and bullets are more important than bumpers. And what about rubber? If we can't get synthetic rubber, then let us have gasoline rationing nationwide, let us have a nationwide speed-limit. It won't hurt us to learn to walk; in fact, it is about time we did.

Are these things too much to do for the men in service? Ask yourself honestly, without prejudice. Think them over. I don't think you will find them too much. In fact, I think you'll find many more ways through which we can do our duty.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haslow, D. D.

While attending an Ashram in the mountains of India Dr. Stanley Jones saw an eagle out on its wings over the valley. At the same time he saw a storm coming down the mountain side toward the eagle and he became interested to know what the eagle would do. Would he try to outfly the coming storm, or would he just meet it and try to fight his way through it. As the storm came near the eagle, the mighty bird of the air, set his wings so that they would lift him up and up until he was above the storm. Mr. Jones said that the last time he saw the eagle he was riding the currents of the storm, like a sea gull rides the waves of the sea. What will be our attitude toward the storms of life? Will we let them battle us down, or will we rolate our life to them so that we can ride them to higher and better things?

Over in China there was a missionary whose home was shattered by a bomb. The explosion tore the house into pieces and scattered it over a large section surrounding the place where it was built. At such a disaster the most of us would have decided that it was no use to try and do anything about it. Not so with that Missionary. The very next day he was out gathering up the pieces that could be used and in a short time he had set up a small church out of the debris. He had lost his home, but out of his misfortunes he erected a place of worship for the natives. It is so Christ like for us to turn our misfortunes into worship.

I passed the humble home of a Southern Negro and seeing an old woman standing on the steps with her hands resting on her hips, I made inquiry "Mary Liza, who lives in that house?" The old woman without a moments hesitation replied, "No body boss, but me and Jesus." May I not make the same inquiry about your home? The most of us would answer, "I live there or we live there." How about that invisible guest? Your home is open to Jesus, or the devil. One or the other is living in that home with you. To be sure, some people are living with the devil when they live with each other. The devil can get into the heart of a wife, the heart of a husband the heart of children, but what about the old BOY being in your own heart? Make your home the abiding place of Jesus.

At the World's Fair in New York there was a gate into which people entered to see the exhibit on the inside. The gate was closed and only one person could enter at the time. Each person had to deposit a dime in a button hole and then push. One lady came to the door, placed her dime in the right place and stood there. The door did not open. Others stood waiting. Traffic was being jammed. Finally one lady down the line shouted to her, "Push the door lady and go in." She did so and walked in. This woman had done everything required to have an open door, but push. If she had not done that, she would never have been able to go in. There are closed doors before us. Sometimes we are so foolish as to believe that when we pay the price to enter, that the door should open of itself. I never knew success to come rolling down to us while we idled our time away. Push the door and it will open.

Whats Doing At Isabella High

By Jesse Culp

—By Jesse Culp

A mighty wave of relief from expectency enveloped the entire student body last Wednesday morning when Mr. Turner officially took over his duties as principal at Isabella. A special assembly was held Wednesday morning for the purpose of introducing Mr. Turner to the student body.

You don't have to be a very close observer to note that all the boys and girls here appreciate and respect the friendly manner and winning ways of the new "boss." Mr. Turner comes to us as a former member of the faculty at Jemison High School.

Talk about close football games, no exception was the Maplesville-Isabella game last Friday afternoon on the Maplesville field. The score, incidently, was 0 to 0.

These two teams were pretty well matched, as is indicated by the score. However, we are little inclined to think that Isabella showed a little more strength, from the standpoint that more first downs were made by them. Both teams played with plenty of determination, however. This is the all-American style and the kind that everyone enjoys.

The Senior II Class held their class party in the study hall here at school last Saturday night, October 31 (Halloween). There was a large number present.

Refreshments were served. after games had been played and enjoy by all. Souvenirs were given in t form of peanuts stuffed with corn a tied with black and white string.

These class parties are tradition at Isabella and served as an excelle form of entertainment for the indivi ual classes, thereby bringing them i to a closer degree of cooperation.

In case you haven't heard, that bu ied air and expectant feeling amo the Seniors Monday morning was b cause they are looking for their rin any day. That, of course is an eve to look forward to . . . Oh yes, w were glad to see Lomer Williams bac in school Monday. Hope he sta with us this time. . . Dear Mrs. Brow Please sympathize with the Senior II for not paying attention in Histo class Monday morning. They ju couldn't keep from listening to th pretty music that was being made b the Grammar School kids in the aud torium.

Sincerely Yours, One of the bunc

Donald Hovson, Tallassee, and party killed 21 rattlers in Elmor County in less than an hour; a larg one and three smaller ones by a lo and 17 baby rattlers, when the lo was split.

A discouraged church member came to my study to relate her troubles. She had been very enthusiastic over a program for her Sunday School class. Her complaint was that every time she started out to do something, some one would advance and pour water on her project. With tears she moaned, "I have been ducked with cold water so many times until I am ready to quit." I told her of an engine that I saw at one time, all fired up and ready to do things. The engineer came in and turned a faucet and almost cooled the engine with cold water. The steam gauge went down and there was no power. Just then the fireman shoveled in more fuel and the fire roared. Soon that cold water was heated and turned into steam and the engine was ready to go again. Why cool off and quit when cold water is poured upon you. Just fire up anew and turn that cold water into more steam and go on.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands. One Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

PERHAPS she yearns to be a "Waac" or a "Wave," feeling that if she were she would be contributing more to the war effort than by teaching youngsters in her care the principles of free enterprise—the principles under which this country has grown great.

If from her teaching the principles of free enterprise her pupils learn that these principles mean fair reward for honest effort, or stated another way—fair profit for worthwhile service—whether that service be performed by business, by labor, by the farmer or by the professional man, then she, too, is performing distinguished service for her country.

The boys and girls of today are the citizens of tomorrow. In their hands will be the destiny of this Nation after the war. If thoroughly taught these simple fundamentals of Americanism which have proven to be so sound, can anyone doubt that in their day, they too will perform distinguished service?

AS BELIEVERS in the principles of free enterprise, our effort is and has been to supply dependable electric service at a fair price. The average cost of electric service for the home has been downward for over twenty years. The cost for residential service in Alabama is less than the average for the Nation.

MRS. SARAH JANE (EVANS) SMITH PASSES AWAY

On Monday Morning, October 26, 1942 at 2 o'clock the death angel visited the home of Mr. J. P. Smith and Mrs. Carrie Hayes and took away the kind and loving spirit of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Sarah Jane (Evans) Smith.

She was 79 years old last January 8th. She was born in Jefferson County, later moved to Coosa County and for the past 40 years lived in and around Clanton.

She had been almost helpless and blind for the past three years but only in bed about 7 days and didn't seem to suffer and if she did she bore it with a smile. She was conscious of everything until about 12 hours before her death.

She was the mother of eleven children, five boys have preceded her in death, Charlie, Eddie, Linzey, Claughton (Doc) and Dudley. She also raised thre grand children, Eugene Paul Smith and Mrs Myrtle Parrish.

Eugene and Claughton (Doc) drowned together December 26th, 1928 in Warrior River..

She was a kind loving and devoted wife and mother, her personality won her friends everywhere.

She was a member of Mulberry church where the remains were laid to rest with Rev. M. Lockhart officiating.

She leaves to mourn her death a husband J. P. Smith, two sons, Curtis and Raymond Smith, four daughters, Carrie Hayes, Mary Davenport, Matilda Jones, Ida Hobley and a number of grand children and other relatives and friends.

Oh! Mother how we'll miss you but we know you were ready to go and our loss is heaven's gain.

The Husband and Children.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Act to Defer Stock and Dairy Farmers; Southwestern Pacific Control at Stake In U. S.-Jap Struggle for Guadalcanal; Wage Ceiling Sets $25,000 Limit on Pay

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

A cigarette was the first thing this wounded Australian soldier asked for and got, when the medical corps got him safely behind the New Guinea fighting lines. Fighting in the Port Moresby area, the Australian army succeeded in pushing the Japs back in the jungles beyond the Owen Stanley mountain range.

GUADALCANAL:
Nip and Tuck

It had become increasingly evident that the Japs had massed a more powerful naval force in the Solomons than the United States could assemble from a navy divided between two oceans. Moreover, the enemy had concentrated superior land and air forces in its supreme effort to knock out the United States defenders.

Outnumbered on three sides by Jap forces with heavy artillery, tanks and supplies, American marines and army units on Guadalcanal Island fought doggedly to hold a small strip of land six miles long and three miles deep and to retain control of Henderson air field.

Whether the embattled Yanks faced another "Bataan" was dependent on how soon planes, heavy weapons and supplies could be brought to Guadalcanal. That the Japs were paying dearly for every effort to dislodge the Americans from the airfield was evident from a navy communique which declared that "enemy losses in men and equipment in troop actions on the island have been very heavy as compared to our own."

Jap onslaughts were repeatedly thrown back. One attack pierced American lines south of the airfield, but prompt counterattacks recaptured the lost positions.

The critical nature of the situation was revealed by mass landing of Jap troops indicating control of the sea in the Guadalcanal area.

With the sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp reported in a communique, navy losses in the Solomons fighting were brought to 14 ships, including three heavy cruisers, six destroyers and four transport vessels.

NORTH AFRICA:
Mediterranean at Stake

American-made and American-manned planes and tanks continued to play a prominent part in the British armored offensive against Marshal Rommel's Africa corps along the El Alamein front—an offensive which might decide the control of the Mediterranean.

Britain's cosmopolitan eighth army, comprising English, Polish, South African, Australian, New Zealand, Fighting French, Greek and American detachments, smashed at Axis troop and supply concentrations. In the forward areas, crack infantrymen picked their way gingerly through tricky land mines and fortifications.

Fighting on both sides had a cautious, feeling-out character in the early stages as Allied and Axis forces tested their strength for decisive blows.

Allied troops showed their mettle in beating back counterattacks by Rommel's tank corps. Meanwhile American and British airmen continued their assaults on key Axis supply ports, bombing Tobruk repeatedly, destroying enemy planes and shipping.

Elsewhere in Africa, evidence had been mounting for weeks that action was imminent. The Vichy government had concentrated most of its available ships and men at Dakar, while American troops were reported in Freetown and Monrovia, Liberia, south of Dakar.

FARM LABOR:
Deferment at Last

Steadily worse had become the farm labor shortage. Drastic action was necessary to prevent a breakdown in the all-out war program. Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower commission, supplied that action when he ordered into immediate operation a far-reaching plan calling for occupational deferment of 3,000,000 "necessary" dairy, livestock and poultry farmers.

Under the program, draft boards are to reclassify from 3A to 3B all such workers already deferred on grounds of dependency. Local boards were likewise requested to grant occupational deferment to other farm hands who are "necessary men" and for whom replacements are not available.

A further step toward keeping essential workers on the farm was the army and navy's agreement to refrain from recruiting key farm employees.

Employers, including war plants, were instructed to cease hiring skilled farm workers. The department of agriculture moved to stabilize wages on dairy, livestock and poultry farms, while the U. S. employment service undertook to recruit farm workers from less critical occupations and shift them back to agricultural jobs.

SALARY CEILING:
$25,000 Limit

From fabulous-salaried Hollywood stars to low paid shop girls, every American wage earner would feel the impact of Economic Stabilization Director Byrnes' order putting a ceiling of $25,000 on individual salaries and freezing all other wages at September 15 levels.

Purpose of the new regulation was to combat inflation and increase federal tax revenue on corporations.

Control of all wages and salaries up to $5,000 yearly was given to the War Labor board. Under the regulations salary increases could be granted only in cases of individual promotions, individual merit raises, length of service raises, or under the operation of employee trainee systems.

Jurisdiction over all salaries above $5,000 was assumed by the treasury department. After the order was issued, President Roosevelt instructed Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau to make future payments of his $75,000 a year salary conform to the regulations. The wage ceiling covers salaries only and does not affect income from stocks, bonds or other sources.

WILLKIE:
Reservoir Leaking

American radio listeners who may have expected a rousing, table-thumping tirade from Wendell L. Willkie when he reported on his recent globe-circling air tour, got instead a quiet, solemn discourse. But there was no mistaking the urgency of action he advocated.

Appealing for second fronts in Europe and Burma, Willkie urged that we give our Allies more than "boasts and broken promises" before the great reservoir of good will toward this country throughout the world turns into a gulf of resentment.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BOSTON: Dr. Victor Heiser, medical consultant and author said that 42,000 American war production workers had been killed, either on or off the job since Pearl Harbor, "in spite of industry's best efforts to forestall accidents. Approximately 121,000,000 man days will be lost to vital war work this year because of absences from the job from all causes."

LONDON: The United States marine corps announced that additional units of marines have landed in the British Isles. Col. William T. Clement, Navy Cross veteran of Bataan and Corregidor, commanded the troops. He will serve on the staff of Adm. Harold Stark, commander of United States naval forces in the European war theater with headquarters in London.

RUSSIA:
Winter Stalemate

In battered Stalingrad, women, children and old men worked ceaselessly amid the crash of shells and bombs to turn out more weapons and ammunition and repair equipment damaged at the front. In Stalingrad, too, tough Red soldiers held off repeated Nazi frontal attacks.

Northwest of the city Marshal Timoshenko's relief army hammered at the German flanks. The weather was beginning to break in favor of the Russians. Moscow communiqués reported snows on the Stalingrad front and German reports admitted "unfavorable weather" was impeding their operations.

Southward in the Caucasus the Germans kept up a three-months' effort to pierce the Russ defenses guarding the Grozny oil fields. Failing in their attempt to reach the coveted oil by a drive through the Terek valley, the Nazis had turned toward Nalchik.

ATLANTIC CHARTER:
F.D.R. Clarifies

Renewed assurances that the Atlantic Charter applies "to all humanity" were given by President Roosevelt.

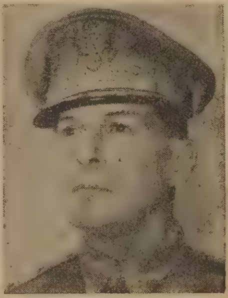
The President's statement followed Wendell L. Willkie's assertion that millions of people in Asia and eastern Europe were bewildered and anxious about America's war aims and were asking: "What about a Pacific charter? What about a world charter?"

Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that the Atlantic Charter declares among other things that the signatory governments, including Russia and China and all the other United Nations "respect the right of all people to choose the form of government under which they will live; and they wish to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them."

MacARTHUR:
No Presidential Bee

Categorically answering reports that he would be a candidate for President, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced from his Australian headquarters that he had "no political ambitions whatsoever" and added that "the only hope and ambition I have in the world is for victory for our cause in the war."

"Any suggestion to the contrary must be regarded merely as amiable gestures of goodwill dictated by friendship," he said. "I started as a soldier and shall finish as one."



GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR
". . . no political ambitions."

The Southwest Pacific commander's assertions were contained in a statement in which he praised Australia's war effort. "No nation in the world is making a more supreme war effort than Australia," he said.

NAZI SPY:
Tells Sabotage Plot

Unfolded in detail for the first time was the dramatic story of how eight Nazi saboteurs planned a campaign of destruction against key American industries to cripple the nation's war effort.

The story was told by one of the saboteurs—Ernst Peter Burger—who with another of the spies escaped the electric chair by informing on the other six. The occasion was the treason trial in Chicago in which Burger testified against Erna and Max Haupt, parents of Herbert Hans Haupt, young Chicagoan executed as a member of the Nazi band; his uncle and aunt, Walter and Lucille Froehling, and two friends, Otto and Kate Wergin. All were charged with harboring and aiding young Haupt.

Summoned from his Washington jail cell, Burger described in detail the sabotage plans. Included in the Nazis' equipment were boxes of TNT blocks, bombs disguised as coal, incendiary sticks, infernal machines and detonators landed on the East coast from two German U-boats which had brought the conspirators to America from Germany.

NAVY:
14,000 Planes

Funds were provided for the construction of 14,000 naval planes and 500,000 tons of aircraft carriers when President Roosevelt signed a 15 billion dollar appropriations bill.

The bill likewise combined contractual authority for 500,000 tons of cruisers. It was estimated that the provision for half a million tons of aircraft carriers would provide approximately 25 carriers.

NANA SERVICE

FORTY-SEVEN-YEAR-OLD, 210-pound hard-rock Jack Dempsey was putting in another busy day. Now a lieutenant in the coast guard at Manhattan Beach, the ex-heavyweight champion is directing the conditioning of several thousand men, who need this conditioning badly.

I spent the day with Lieutenant Jack, and I've never seen a busier man at work. From seven-thirty in the morning until nightfall he and his staff of instructors handle 3,000 recruits every day.

The wind was whipping in from the ocean as Jack moved from group to group, speeding up their work, giving out encouragement, helping his assistants on the job.

"They are great fellows," Jack said, "but they need this badly. More than anyone might believe. Do you know that out of 3,000 men here more than 2,500 never boxed, wrestled, or played any game to speak of? You'd be surprised how many couldn't even chin themselves once—just once. When they came here they didn't know how to hold their hands—nor how to stand. Look at 'em now."

The Dempsey Program

It was put up to Dempsey to work out this program and he's done a great job. We moved from group to group — 100 fighters here, 100 wrestling close by, a jujitsu class, a calisthenics class.

"What's this?" I asked Jack.

"That's our kicking squad," he said. "We teach 'em how to kick the enemy and how to keep from being kicked.

LIEUTENANT DEMPSEY

"Nothing fancy here. It's all rough-and-ready, hard work, toughening up. No frills. And they eat it up. These kids are great. They average around 22 years and most of them never had a chance for any form of athletics before. They find out what it does for them in just a few weeks.

Building Confidence

"What we are working on beyond fitness," Jack said, "is speed and poise. But more than all, confidence in themselves.

"When they first come here they have no confidence at all. In about three weeks they are different fellows — heads-up, come-and-try-to-take-me fellows."

Jack moves around—"Hey, keep punching — keep punching — keep those hands up—what's the trouble—one in the stomach? Well, take a little rest. Then go and get him."

You would be more than surprised to see the difference between first-week classes and fourth-week classes. The improvement in speed, skill, poise, toughness and stamina is amazing.

Each group gets two hours a day of this in addition to coast guard duties, and that leaves little time for any resting spots. Putting in eight or nine hours a day, Dempsey at 210 looks as fit as he did at Maumee Bay 23 years ago. As fast? That's something else that belongs only to youth.

About Louis and Conn

I asked Jack what he thought about the heavyweight situation.

"After another year in the army," Dempsey said, "neither Louis nor Conn can expect to be near the old fighting form. Louis isn't a kid any longer. A year's layoff, or a longer layoff, is sure to tell heavily on his speed, his timing and his reflexes.

"I laid off at times too long myself. I know what it means to see a punch coming, but seeing it too late—or rather, not being able to call on my reflexes in time—is something else.

"If Louis and Conn remain in the army two years, it will be a miracle if either ever can come back to championship form. Both are great fighters and great fellows. But army training is entirely different from the speed and the sharpness you need in the ring.

"And there's that thing they call co-ordination. After a long layoff they just don't gel any more—there's no team play between them.

"Joe and Billy may be better than anything left after the war, but they won't be the Louis and the Conn we saw in their big fight."

Can You Win Freedom From Constipation?

Too many folks go on suffering from constipation when there's no need in the world for them to do so! Why? Simply because one of the commonest causes of constipation is lack of "bulk food" in the diet. In such cases, cathartics and purges can give only temporary relief!

If this is your trouble, you can expect lasting relief from constipation — simply by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This crisp, delicious cereal supplies the "bulk" you may need—gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it. Start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today and drink plenty of water. See what a wonderful difference it makes when you correct the cause instead of trying to "remedy" the result! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Lilian M. Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., is the mother of 12 children, holds six college degrees and is a distinguished engineer. In the various moves to bring women into war work engineering, including the present forum of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at Rochester, Mrs. Gilbreth is busy and prominent. Her sixth child was born when she was getting her Ph.D. at Brown university. I asked her a few years ago if it wasn't quite an engineering problem, running a house with 12 children. She said that was proof enough for anybody that women could be, and were, good engineers.

Living Proof That Women Can Be Great Engineers

Her degrees, in literature and engineering, are from the University of California, Brown, Michigan, Rutgers and Russell Sage college. She shared the study and practice of her husband, Dr. Frank B. Gilbreth, an eminent engineer, and when he died, in 1924, picked up his work as well as her own, chiefly in the field of industrial motion study, and in combatting drudgery, inefficiency and waste in factories. She believes that tools are liberating instruments if used intelligently and the frankenstein of modern machinery can be neatly and nicely domesticated. Women, she thinks, can be a great help in this—as well as in winning the war.

She is a brisk and personable lady, 63 years old, born and reared in Oakland, Calif. As a consultant in factory processes and organization, she stresses the fact that her methods involve no "speed-up" plans.

WE ONCE knew an illustrious and talkative citizen, an authority on nearly everything of public interest, who came to grief when his ghost suddenly up and died on him. In truth there never really had been any such person as he was supposed to be. He was a synthesis of this hired alter ego and when the ghost died the great public man became quite inarticulate and helpless. Before long he was utterly forgotten.

Kaiser's Ghost but Assembles Spare Parts for Wizard

Henry J. Kaiser, the cargo plane and ship wizard, has a ghost but need have no such worries. He can say his say effectively and it is merely in the interest of his famous super-efficiency that he has Philip H. Parrish, editorial writer of the Portland Oregonian, writing his speeches and statements for him. It might mean a loss of a half dozen ships if Mr. Kaiser took time out to write speeches. Mr. Kaiser can lay the keel of a sentence or a speech as simply and soundly as the next man. Mr. Parrish, one of the best wordsmiths in the business, assembles the various parts and brings through the superstructure, all shipshape and in jigtime, and it's all authentic Kaiser.

As to transportation, Mr. Parrish started away back of scratch, several years ago, with a book, "Before the Covered Wagon." He is a fast worker and moved on handily into the cargo plane era, with Mr. Kaiser and, in charge of the editorial page of the Portland Oregonian, made his typewriter crack steam-riveter blows in the build-up of the master shipbuilder. Everybody out that way knows him as Phil Parrish, turning in a professional talent of high order to help win the war. Having started newspaper work in Olympia, Ore., on the Morning Olympian he catches in nicely the quite uniformly Olympian stride of Mr. Kaiser.

Mr. Parrish is 46 years old, a native of Constantine, Mich., educated at the Oregon State college and the University of Wisconsin. In Portland, he worked first as a reporter on the Journal and then worked on through virtually every editorial post on the Oregonian. He takes the long view of Oregon and the nation, as disclosed in another successful book of his, "Historic Oregon." He is married and has one daughter.

Harvest Supper Social

One of the nicest things about fall are those harvest supper socials when folks throughout the land gather together with the fruits of their summer labors and heap high the table with steaming chicken fricassee or beefsteak pies, fruits and vegetables, and pies, anything good to eat!

It's partially the food that makes these suppers unforgettable and partially, too, the way it brings old friends together before the long winter pulls in. Whether it's the local grange who sponsors the affair or the ladies' aid, or groups, the affair will be a tremendous success.

Remember the chicken fricassee?

Chicken Fricassee.
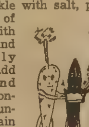
(Serves 8-10)

2 3-pound chickens
Salt, pepper, ginger
3 quarts boiling water
⅓ cup each, onion, carrot, celery
1 bay leaf
4 tablespoons chicken fat
4 tablespoons flour
Juice of ½ lemon
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 can mushrooms



Clean chickens, cut into pieces for serving. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and few grains of ginger. Cover with boiling water and cook slowly for one hour. Add vegetables and bay leaf and continue cooking until tender. Drain off liquid and surplus fat. Add flour to melted fat and cook until brown. Gradually add 3 cups chicken broth or 1½ cups chicken broth and 1½ cups rich milk. Season and cook until smooth. Add lemon juice and mushrooms. Place chicken in gravy with minced parsley and heat.

Baking Powder Dumplings

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs, well beaten
Milk

Sift dry ingredients, and chop in butter. Add eggs with enough milk to form a heavy drop batter. Drop quickly by spoonfuls into chicken broth. Cover closely and cook 10 minutes without removing lid.

Cabbage and Apple Coleslaw.
(Serves 6)

2 cups crisped, dried, shredded cabbage
Salt
1 cup diced apple
½ cup cooked salad dressing

Mix cabbage and apple with salad dressing and salt. Chill thoroughly and serve from a large bowl.

A highly prized and cherished favorite for these fall harvest suppers is Steak and Kidney pie, the meat floating in delicious gravy, topped with a flaky, crisp and golden crust:

Steak and Kidney Pie.
(Serves 6)

2 pounds beef steak (cut ¾ inch thick)
2 pork kidneys
2 small onions, minced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup flour
½ cup fat
2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce

Cut steak into 1½-inch pieces. Dredge with flour, salt and pepper. Saute with onion until brown in heavy kettle. Add sufficient water to cover meat well. Add sauce and seasoning. Place on heat to simmer.

Remove every trace of white tubes from kidneys and cut into cubes. Place in kettle, cover with cold water, bring to a boil and drain, and repeat a second time. Add kidneys to meat in kettle and simmer together until tender, about two hours. Continue to add a little liquid and stir from time to time to keep meat from sticking. Remove meat to a casserole, add enough liquid to cover, and set aside to cool. Cover with a crust of plain pastry and bake in a hot (450-degree) oven 12-15 minutes.

There are so many good foods at this autumn banquet that unless your vegetables are pointed up, their consumption may lag. There's no danger of that if you have either of these combinations:

Sauteed Corn With Green Pepper.
(Serves 6)

3 tablespoons butter
3 cups corn, cooked
2 tablespoons green pepper
Salt, pepper
¼ cup cream

Melt butter in a frying pan. Add vegetables and seasonings with cream. Cover and cook slowly until liquid evaporates.

Savory Cabbage.
(Serves 6)

1 head cabbage
1 tablespoon chicken fat
1 tablespoon flour
Salt, pepper
Hard-cooked egg

Cook cabbage in boiling salted water until tender but crisp. Drain and chop. Brown flour in melted fat, add stock, cabbage and seasonings. Cook slowly for 10 minutes. Garnish with egg.

Honey Pumpkin Pie.
(Serves 8)

2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ cup cream
1½ cups pumpkin
½ cup honey
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
1 recipe all-bran pastry shells

Prepare pastry shells. Beat eggs slightly, add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour into individual, unbaked pie shells and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and continue baking 45 minutes or until knife inserted comes out clean.

Pastry Shells.
(Makes 8)

¼ cup all-bran
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
4 tablespoons cold water (more or less)

Roll cereal fine. Combine with flour and salt. Cut in shortening. Add water, little at a time, until dough is moist enough to hold together. Roll out on a lightly floured board to about one-eighth inch thickness. Place in individual pie tins. Trim edges, leaving one-half inch beyond rim of pan. Fold under and flute. Fill with pumpkin filling as directed above.

LYNN SAYS:

Sudsy Facts: Higher industrial activity and consumer income contribute to larger soap consumption, according to a Department of Agriculture report, making last year's soap consumption the largest on record.

Domestic oils and inedible tallow will take the place of imported and tropical oils for this year's soap supply.

Healthfulness dictates cleanliness, and that means not only in clothing and personal hygiene but in clean surroundings in the home, especially in the kitchen where food is prepared. Light or white floors insure cleanliness.

You can restore freshness by laundering draperies, walls, rugs and upholstery by using a soap jelly made by dissolving 1 part soap to 5 parts hot water, letting cool, then whipping to a fluff with a beater.

DEMOCRACY STREAMLINING

If the President and the country want to get a full realization of how democracy is streamlining for action they should think back to the summer of 1941, just one year ago, when, for what seemed like unending weeks, the congress stewed over extension of the selective service act.

Senate and house isolationists were haranguing the galleries on the iniquities of keeping the boys more than one year in camp; telling the public how the navy was already convoying ships; revealing in advance that Roosevelt had sent troops to Iceland.

Finally by the thin margin of one vote, 203 to 202, and thanks to the sage generalship of Speaker Sam Rayburn, the selective service act was extended. Had it not been for that narrow victory, we should have had no army to rush to Australia, and the whole war effort would have received a tragic set-back.

But last week, a war-geared house of representatives passed the 18-19 year draft extension act in three days; and it should be passed by the senate and signed by the President inside the week.

Politically and personally, nobody wanted the 18-19 year draft extension. It was the worst time to pass it, just before elections. But congress is doing a much better job than most people realize for streamlined democracy.

ATROCITY PICTURES

A strong debate is raging among propaganda chiefs over the question of atrocity stories and pictures. The government has received a lot of such material from Allied sources, especially the Chinese and Poles, including such horrible scenes as Japanese attacking Chinese women, and pouring oil on live bodies before setting the torch to them.

Opponents of publication argue that the atrocity stories of the last war were largely invented, and when so exposed left the public disillusioned; thus the people might now react unfavorably and charge the government with pulling the same tricks.

Other officials argue, however, that the material is authentic, that it is not posters and rumors, but actual photographs, and the public should know what sort of enemies we are fighting.

It is apparently a part of the German psychological warfare to treat British and Americans with reasonable humaneness in order to keep us lulled in a state of moderate warfare. They save their worst tricks for the conquered nations and the Russians.

The Poles and Chinese are urging use of the material as a necessary means of fully arousing the American public to the menace.

Elmer Davis' Office of War Information is set to go, once the debate is settled.

DAIRY MANPOWER

Forthright Sen. Berkeley Bunker of Nevada had a long talk with the President the other day on the war manpower problem, in which he emphasized the need of swift action to meet the labor shortage on dairy farms.

"I'm from a farm area myself and I know what these dairy people are up against," said Bunker. "Unless we move fast we will have a serious shortage next year. Already, many farmers are beginning to slaughter their dairy herds because they can't get help to tend them."

The President admitted the problem was serious, and assured Bunker that the War Manpower commission was aware of it. He added, however, that he doubted any steps the government might take to relieve the farm labor shortage would be a complete answer.

"The government can't solve this alone," said Roosevelt. "We are going to have to depend on the farmers themselves for individual initiative. I'll give you an example of what I mean."

The President then told how a neighbor of his in New York state, owning a large dairy farm, had partly solved his labor shortage by employing students from a near-by high school to milk the cows.

"Boys did the milking in the morning and a group of girls from the same school took over in the afternoons," he said.

"That sounds like a good idea, Mr. President," observed Senator Bunker, "but it isn't exactly a new one. When I was a boy on a Nevada farm, I used to milk 10 cows every morning before school and 10 at night. And I had to ride eight miles to school on a bus."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Congressman Ed Izac of California, who is crusading against army and navy "cellophane commissions," is the only sitting member of congress to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor in the last war. Taken prisoner after his ship was sunk by a U-boat, Izac four times tried to escape, once jumping from a 40-miles-an-hour train. He still bears the scars of German prison camp beatings.

TWO THIRDS OF MOTORISTS NOT EXCEEDING 40 M.P.H., STATEWIDE SURVEY SHOWS

Approximately two-thirds of the motorists traveling on Alabama highways are operating at speeds not in excess of 40 miles an hour, according to a survey announced today by W. G. Pruett, state highway director and chairman of the Alabama Highway Traffic Advisory Committee to the War Department.

The survey was made at 15 points by non-uniformed investigators of the Statewide Highway Planning Survey, who clocked 1,225 cars, trucks or buses—stop—watches in hand—over previously measured distances.

The following results were observed in this area or in areas where comparable conditions prevail:

Of 60 vehicles on U. S. 80 a mile west of U. S. 31, only 24 were obeying the speed limit, 21 drove between 35 and 40 m.p.h., nine between 40 and 45, four between 45 and 50 and two faster than 50. Fourteen of the speeders were trucks.

Of 83 vehicles checked on U. S. 31 five miles south of Calera, 15 obeyed the speed law, 28 drove between 35 and 40 m.p.h., 16 between 40 and 45, ten between 45 and 50 and 13 faster than 50 miles an hour.

Of 45 vehicles checked on Alabama 45, 2 1-2 miles south of Millbrook, 26 obeyed the speed law, seven drove between 35 and 40 m.p.h., eight between 40 and 45, two between 45 and 50 and two faster than 50 miles an hour.

All checks were made for the period of one hour, during typical traffic.

Major James F. Brawner, state director of public safety and a member of the traffic committee, said it was gratifying to note from the survey that only 30 per cent of the Alabama-registered cars clocked were going faster than 40, whereas 53.7 per cent of the cars of out-of-state registry were exceeding 40. Major Brawner saw in this trend the results of a six-month enforcement of the old 40-mile limit and a growing disposition to comply with the 35-mile limit.

"Drivers going between 35 and 40 evidently are trying t ocomply with the law." sail Major Brawner. "Those between 40 and 45 are trying to chisel a little—but won't get away withit—and those over 45 just don't give a continental."

PECAN GROWER TO GET LOANS

—By P. H. Smith, County Agent.

Pecan growers will get not less than 75 percent of parity prices for 1942 orchard run nuts under a Commodity Credit Corporation loan and purchase program announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Prices during the last 10 years have averaged less than 50 percent of parity. CCC loan and purchase prices range from 6 to 16 cents per pound, according to size, variety and grade of nuts.

The loan program will be operated through the American Pecan Growers Association, Albany, Georgia. CCC loans will be made to the Association for the purchase, storage and marketing of nuts. Loans are on a non-recourse basis, maturing on or before October 1, 1943, with interest at 3 per cent per annum. The program provides also for outright purchases of orchard run nuts by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The 1942 production of improved and seedling varieties of pecans is estimated at 87,900,000 pounds. This compares with 121,488,000 pounds in 1941 and with 81,166,000 average for the 10 years 1930-39. The largest crop on record was 123,583,000 pounds in 1940. Farm prices have averaged from 7.7 cents to 12.4 cents per pound during the last 6 years.

CCC officials believe that the program, together with the smaller supply and larger purchasing power of consumers, will result in fair prices for the 1942 crop. County agents are being furnished detailed facts.

VERBENA

The Halloween party at the High School last Friday night was fun for everybody. The youngest guests and the oldest joined in the merriment, bobbed for apples, fished, had fortunes told went through the house of horrors, ate peanuts, popcorn, hot dogs or a chicken supper. The pianos can now be tuned, some football equipment purchased and also some materials for the Junior Red Cross. Thank you all for helping and coming.

Two members of the class of 43 were there Friday night, Margaret Sharp and Margaret Eiland. Sara Messer, Frances Dansby and Murrell Jones were also in Verbena for the week end. Margaret Sharp is at home this winter, while the other four girls are in Montgomery studying or working and having plenty of fun to, if Dame Rumor is correct. Another member of that class has finished her training and is now an airplane mechanic at Gunter Field. We're proud of you Mary Lee.

"How Much Should I Give to the ALABAMA WAR CHEST?"

When the Alabama War Chest makes its appeal to you next week, you may ask yourself: "How Much Should I Give?"

Here Is The Answer!

When making your donation, keep in mind that this one appeal is for eight war relief agencies that are rendering a vital service to our Allies and our own armed forces.

These are the United Service Organizations (USO), British War Relief, Greek Relief Association, Russian War Relief, United China Relief, War Prisoners' Aid Committee, Queen Wilhelmina Fund (Dutch Relief) and the Polish American Council.

If you work for wages, the Alabama War Chest is asking you for "one day's pay." If you have a larger income, the War Chest asks that "you make your standard of living your standard of giving."

Assuming that you work for wages and make $1.00 an hour, your Alabama War Chest gift would be $8.00. Is this too much to give?

Alabama's War Chest will raise all of Alabama's share for USO. The USO is serving all our men in uniform. How much would you do for them? You would certainly be willing to buy one pack of cigarettes a month for a boy in the service. That would be $2.40 a year.

In Britain, one home out of every five has been wrecked or damaged by bombs. Thousands are homeless. What will you do for them? Will you give $1.00 to buy medicines and $1.00 more to help rehabilitate some bomb shocked child? That's only $2.00 a year.

In gallant Greece, thousands are dying of starvation in the streets. Greek War Relief sends Mercy Ships with food supplies which are distributed through soup kitchens and feeding stations. Is 60c—the price of twelve soft drinks—too much to give to save one of these brave people from starvation?

In China, Russia, Poland, Holland—ravaged by a ruthless war—there is desperate need for surgical supplies, clothing, medicines and food. Is $2.00 too much for you to give to the many millions in these Allied nations who are fighting for you?

Behind barbed wire in enemy concentration camps, many thousands of our fighting men are now held prisoners. These are aided by the War Prisoners' Aid Committee. Is $1.00 too much for you to give to keep up their courage and their spirit until victory is won and they are once again free men?

ADD IT UP! Is "one day's pay from those who work for wages and much more from those who have more to give" too much for Alabama's War Chest to ask of YOU?

FARM BUREAU MEETING WELL ATTENDED TUESDAY AFTERNOON

At a Farm Bureau meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the City Hall attended by more than 100 farmers and businessmen of Chilton County, John Liles, County Agent of Jefferson county stated that farmers had been accused of causing inflation. Statistics show that there are only 22.8 percent of the American population on the farms. This population in 1941 received only 9 percent of the national income. In view of this fact and since other groups maintain Lobbysts in Washington, Congressman Henry B. Stegall, Sen. John H. Bankhead and other National leaders feel that it will be national suicide for the farmers not to maintain Lobbysts in Washington also. Only through a national Farm Organization can this needed representation be had. The Farm Bureau is taking the lead in providing this representation. Everyone knows that through the efforts of the Farm Bureau farmers are receiving double the price for their cotton that they received three years ago. It was the Farm Bureau that brought about the passing of the Parity Bill. This Bill has meant more to the farmers of the nation than any other act of Congress in the country's history.

For the information of those who are not familiar with the work now in progress by the Bureau, this organization is working untiringly to change the administrations attitude towards the farmer. They recognize the farm labor and material supply situation as it now stands and are making every effort to see that the farmer receives enough machinery, fertilizer, poison, etc., which under present regulations are not provided.

It is well that every farmer and business man realize that agriculture will need representation in Washington when the man-power bil comes up for consideration.

The farmer recognizes his importance in the War Effort. He only wishes a fair chance to do his part and he will do his part if given the opportunity.

The Clanton Pilot Club met on Tuesday evening, October 27, at the home of Olive Fiquette, with Minnie Wade as co-hostess.

Following roll call, minutes and reading of correspondence was a short business discussion. President, Ruth Waters, appointed a War Chest committee, composed of Escharles Johnson, Maude Nuss, Dottie Harris and Fay Smith, Laura Little, Olive Fiquett,e and Mary Will Browder were appointed to cooperate with committees from other service clubs in trying to abolish the County's unwholesome amusement places.

It was reported that Mamie C. Smith has completed and mailed the afghan square a donation from the Clanton Pilot Club to the Pilot's Old Ladies' Home.

After a delicious buffet supper was served by the hostesses, the entire club went to the Red Cross center and made sergical dressings for two hours.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mattie Jo Barber on November 10th.

SCOUTING'S FIRE

The subdued fellows circle about.
The ceremonial campfire ring;
Assuming a silence and air devout
That the opening ritual brings.
The flame of light to shavings and twigs.
Cause murmurs of expectation.
The burst of the fire as inwards it digs
And builds to a conflagation.
The smell of the smoke as nostrils it stings
Exciting the primitive in us;
The stunts and tricks and the fun they bring
Gives action fast and humorous.
The crackling blaze with light bright as day
Shines on the clean fought contests;
Its wavering flames with heat often flays
The front row who stirs in unrest.
Bright songs and yells with vigor and vim
Ring out as the fire burns high;
Then soft through the night the songs
To calm down as embers die.
The dreamy expressions on faces so bright
Deepen as embers fade out;
And so ends the day with prayer for Scouting's Fire burns in the Scout.

Isabella F. F. A. Ranks Among Top

The Isabella F.F.A. Chapter ranks among the top F. F. A. Chapters in Alabama in producing good leaders. During the last 14 years Isabella has turned out 16 State Farmers. Their names, year each received the State Farmer Degree, and present position are as follows:

1929—Marvin Durbin—Farm Security Supervisor of Chilton County. Oliver Manning—Captain in Army serving in New Zealand.

1930—Delos Culp—Superintendent of Education in Chilton County.

1931—Clifford Manning—Working with T. C. I. Company in Birmingham.

1933—Homer Morgan—Teaching Vocational Agriculture in Samson, Ala.

1934—Will E. Martin—Working with Alabama Extension Service. S. L. Broadhead, Jr.—Teaching Government Radio School in Livingston. Woodrow Durbin—Serving in Air Corps as a mechanic. James Calfee—Serving in Navy around the Solomon Islands.

1937—Willard Davenport—Deceased Herbert Morgan—Student at A.P.I. in Auburn.

1939—Bill Traywick—Serving with the Army at Keesler Field, Miss.

1940—Willard Ratliff—Working with Moore-Handley Hardware Co. in Birmingham.

Jack Tucker—Serving with the Army.

1941—Hudson Calfee—Senior at Isabella High School.

1942—Hansell Grooms—Member of Senior II Class at Isabella High School.

In order to qualify for the State Farmer Degree each member had to satisfactorily complete at least 2 years of instruction in Vocational Agriculture and hold membership in the F.F.A. with an outstanding supervised farming program in the operation. Also, each member had to show his leadership ability by having held responsible positions in connection with his other school work.

PARENT-TEACHERS ASS'N MET AT HIGH SCHOOL

The High School P. T. A. met in the Clanton High School on Tuesday of this week. With the President, Mrs. J. E. Gowan presiding, Mrs. Omar Reynolds, secretary read the minutes. And Mrs. Cornell gave the treasury report. As the new Superintendent was not able to attend. Hr. Hicks gave a very interesting talk on grading children's school papers and the why's and the what for's. Miss Kenny gave the Devotional which was very interesting, and we had a good attendance. That is so encouraging to those trying to do the things that help your child as well as it helps their own. We hope for a still better crowd next month.

DON'T DISTURB THE RUN IN YOUR STOCKING: IT WILL KEEP THE ENEMY ON THE RUN—

The Study Club in its all-out war effort is getting ready for the new drive. The Silk-Nylon Scrap Drive which will open officially on Nov. 16.

Any worn hose made in whole or in part of silk or nylon are needed to be remade into powder bags and other munitions.

In conjunction with all hosiery retailers in Alabama. Clanton hosiery dealers, are asked to set up collection boxes to receive same.

At the request of the War Production Board, the Alabama Salvage committee requests that the following four rules be observed:

1. As soon as a run is discovered think of your Uncle Sam.
2. Remove the hose at once, salvage others discarded.
3. Wash hose carefully and dry thoroughly.
4. Take to some Hosiery Collection Depot Box set up at one of the Clanton hosiery retail dealers.

Honorable mention will be given to the dealer leading in collected hosiery each week. Mrs. Grady Heflin is the chairman for the Clanton Study Club.

Every person in Chilton County is asked to cooperate.

Does your hosiery have a run,
Give your enemy the gun,
Uncle Sam needs 'em for powder bags.
Let's give him a ton.

COUNTY FAILS TO REACH QUOTA FOR OCT. WAR BONDS

November 10, 1942

Editor of The Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.
Dear Sir:

We did not get our quota for October. I hope and trust that we will get our quota for November. We are now in the midst of a fierce struggle. Perhaps the greatest battle is now being fought that history has ever recorded American boys are now fighting on every front and around the world, and they are doing their full duty. Thousands are being sacrificed but they are dying bravely for you and me Surely the people that have idle money wil buy bonds and stamps to buy bombs with which to maintain our freedom and liberty.

Our forefathers came to this country with a Bible in one hand and a sword in the other one. This country was founded on a Christian spirit and we are going to win this war trusting in God and His Mercies, as Abrahan did when he climbed that famous hill with his son Isaac, to offer him as a sacrifice. I imagine that it was a gloomy day for him but he trusted in god and Isaac was saved. There are mothers, fathers, brothers, and sisters in this county that are spending sad moments on acount of the boys that are now fighting at the fronts. Let's trust in the God that Abraham trusted, that our boys will be spared and that when the war is over they will return to us. Let's do our full duty.

I want to congratulate the school teachers in this county and especially do I want to praise every student in the schools of this county, that is buying stamps and bonds. We have 1465 students in the county that have been reported that are buying stamps and bonds. A good many of the teachers have not reported.

I wish I had the opportunity and time to say to the students of the county how proud I am of their effort. and again I want to repeat that the program of buying bonds and stamps is a great lesson to learn young people how to save and spend money.

I enclose a copy of a letter I received from Professor James H. Boockholdt, who is principal of Stanton High School.

Stanton, Alabama
November 2, 1942

Mr. L. H. Reynolds,
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Mr. Reynolds:

I thought you might be interested in the following data concerning stamp and bond purchases at Stanton School.

During the month of October our School bought stamps to the amount of exactly $174. This is an average of $1.17½ per pupil for our school. We arranged for a special Defense Saving booth at our Halloween party. A total of $104 of stamps and bonds were bought at this booth.

We have a $25 a week quota for our school. Each room has a quota, and a weekly check up at assembly shows how each room is doing. The above amount ($174) included only the purchases made by the pupils themselves and does not include bonds bought by parents for the pupils.

Yours very truly,
James H. Boockholdt, Prin.

From reports in newspapers and over the radio it seems like the American boys are doing a heroic job, and that the materials and the bullets bombs, and places that the United States is sending to the various fronts, together with the boys, wil soon wind this war up.

I urge each and everyone that can to go to the Post Office or bank and buy bonds to furnish materials for our boys to fight with.

Respectfully yours,
L. H. Reynolds,
Executive Chairman.

CHURCH SERVICE AT MULBERRY

GAS RATIONING POSTPONED UNTIL DECEMBER 2ND

Chilton County High Down Holtville 31 to 6

By James Foshee, Reporter

In the game last Friday night Nov. 6, featured by the two 60 yard runs by James Payton, flashy left halfback the Chilton County Tigers defeated Holtville 31 to 6.

The Tigers began to roll in the early part of the first period with the sensational end runs by Payton and the line bucks by Higgins, fullback. Guy Higgins plunged off tackle of 2 yards for the first score. James Payton raced off tackle for 62 yards to score in the second period. The end of the half the score was 12-0.

In the early moments of the third quarter James Payton broke loose through the line for a 60 yard run. Acie Mims, plunging fullback, went over from the 5 yard line to score. He also plunged over for the extra point. Loyd McGee, quarter back, scored the last touchdown on a quarterback sneak. Evans scored for the opponents from the 4 yard line. The score was then 31 to 6.

In the last minutes of the first half Guy Higgins, hard driving fullback, was taken from the game with a broken collar bone. Higgins also played right halfback in the early minutes of the game. He played one of the best defensive and offensive games of the year.

The line composed of Kellum and Smith, at ends, Stanley and Teel at Tackles, McKey and Dennis at guards. Davenport at center, played one of the best games of the year by stopping the hard driving backs of Holtville.

The Holtville line outweighed Clanton's line between 5 and 10 pounds per man.

The backfield composed of Payton, McGee, and Higgins alternating between fullback and right halfback with Mims and Culp filling in proved to be too fast and powerful for the Holtville eleven.

The Chilton County Tigers meet Isabella this Friday night, November 13, at the local field. The Chilton County High wil be seeking their 19th straight win. The Tigers have scored 271 points to the opponents 24.

ALABAMIANS URGED TO PREPARE FOR EMERGENCIES

Alabamians wer urged today by Dr. B. F. Austin, State Health Officer to prepare themselves for emergencies in the home, on th highways and in time of possible air raids by attending first aid classes.

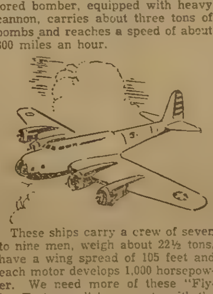
"At a time of a serious accident or sudden illness the patient's chances of survival are usually inverse ratio to the time that elapses between the occurrence of the emrgncy and the beginning of some form of treatment, he said. "In normal times many lives are lost annually because physicians cannot be obtained immediately. With thousands of physicians in the armed services and other thousands almost certain to be, it is dangerously risky to depend upon being able to obtain medical care promptly. Under such circumstances, it is the part of wisdom to be prepared to render proper first-aid whenever an emergency arises."

Dr. Austin pointed out that first aid is not intended to invade thephysician's province but equips the first-aider with knowledge as to what to do and what not to do before a physician can be obtained.

Opp Baptists, at a recent service laid $13,398.50 on the table, an amount more than sufficent to retire the building debt. The structure cost approximately $65,000 in 1925.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

A Flying Fortress is to America's air fleet what heavy artillery is to the Army. This gigantic four-motored bomber, equipped with heavy cannon, carries about three tons of bombs and reaches a speed of about 300 miles an hour.



These ships carry a crew of seven to nine men, weigh about 22½ tons, have a wing spread of 105 feet and each motor develops 1,000 horsepower. We need more of these "Flying Fortresses" to compete with the Nazi air force. You can help by investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday. Buy them from your bank, postoffice or other convenient issuing agent.

U. S. Treasury Department

Take a breather you motorists. You get to drive your automobile as of old for another week or so. Due to something or other Uncle Sam has postponed Gas Rationing until December 2nd and registrations at the Schools of the county until the 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st of November.

Registration for gasoline rationing books will be held next Wednesday and Thursday, and Friday, November 18, 19th and 20th afternoons from one o'clock to five o'clock and on Saturday from 8:30 to 12:30 at the following schools:

Verbena, Concord, Jemison, Stanton, Coopers, Thorsby, Maplesville, Vermont, Clanton (both schools), Collins Chapel, Isabella, Enterprise, Chilton County Training School, Clanton Colored School.

The owner of each car must obtain form R534 at a filling station or his registering school and furnish the following information on said blank:

Here are five rules to remember:

1. Dispose of all tires with the exception of five (5) at the nearest Railway Express Agency, regardless of condition of the tire before November 22nd. This is imperative.
2. Go to a Service Station and obtain application form 534. If you do not obtain this form at the Station you can get one at the School when you go there to register.
3. Enter the serial number of all 5 tires in the upper left-hand corner on the back of the application and in the heavy black box on the same side.
4. When you go to register be sure and carry the serial numbers of all your tires—your 1943 license tag receipt—your 1942 license tag number and the serial number of your Federal Auto Tax Stamp.
5. If you feel you are entitled to additional gasoline (and very few wil lbe) you may obtain at the school site Form No. 535. Complete this and mail it at once to War Price and Rationing Board, Clanton, Alabama.

If you must have additional gasoline by December 5th it is very necessary that this application be mailed before Nov. 25th.

2500 SET AS NOVEMBER NAVY ENLISTMENT QUOTA

Unfounded rumors that Navy recruiting will be discontinued were denied as the Birmingham recruiting district of Alabama and Northwest Florida. headed by Lt. Comdr. J. E. Meredith in Birmingham.

All daily records were broken by the enlistment of 159 men in one day in October against a previous high of 120 in July, while the total enlistments for October mounted to 2,352 men against the September record of 2121.

Rumors that Navy recruiting would be discontinued have been denied by Lt. Comdr. Meredith, and his refutation was followed by a telegram from the Navy Department as follows: "The numerous rumors to the effect that the Navy is going to discontinue obtaining recruits by voluntary enlistments are without foundation whatsoever and the present method will be continued."

There are 15 subrecruiting stations in the Birmingham district, including Birmingham proper and the Maritime Service Enrolling office, where Merchant Marine applicants are sworn into the naval reserve by Ensign D. A. Brockington, Jr., in the Empire Bldg. Birmingham.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Angless Chambers who passed away Nov. 3rd, 1938.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Sweet to remember him who was here,
Who tho absent is just as dear.

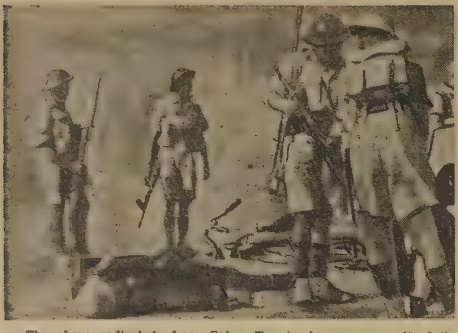
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Heavy Artillery, Planes Dominate Action As British Strike at Rommel Positions; See 10½ Billion Farm Income for 1943; Baruch Urged to Make Manpower Study

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



The above radiophoto from Cairo, Egypt, shows one result of the initial Allied thrust against the Axis in the western desert. A member of Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps lies dead in the dust following the capture of a forward strong point in the Nazi lines.

SOUTH PACIFIC

Costly Exchange

When Navy Secretary Frank Knox told his press conference that Jap fleet units had retired from the scene of action around Guadalcanal and that the "first round of the battle" was over naval experts began trying to figure out who got the decision in the encounter. U. S. citizens heard the bad news first: the navy had lost the destroyer Porter and an aircraft carrier. (This was in addition to the loss of the carrier Wasp, announced earlier.) This brought to a total of four plane carriers that have been destroyed by the Japs in this war.

Then came news of a bit brighter note: Before the Japs left the area to "lick their wounds" and return for more action, U. S. forces had damaged two aircraft carriers, two battleships and three cruisers. More than 100 enemy airplanes were destroyed and about 50 others probably destroyed in what the navy described as the greatest battle yet fought in the Solomons area.

But the most important result of this heavy sea and air fighting was that it brought at least temporary relief to the hard-pressed marine and army units holding their positions on Guadalcanal itself. The Jap objective in launching the big battle had been to dislodge these outnumbered units who in mid-August had pushed the Japs out.

Meanwhile, dispatches from U. S. headquarters in Australia revealed that land-based army planes had been slashing constantly at Jap positions in the areas of the Buin-Faisi harbor in the northern Solomons and at Rabaul, New Britain island. Forty Jap ships were reported hit in a ten-day period. All of this meant much-needed diversion of Jap strength which was directed at capture of the Solomons, and then pushing forward to cut supply lines from the U. S. to Australia.

DESERT WARFARE:

Allied Air Umbrella

Slam-bang warfare continued on the Alamein line between the Mediterranean sea and the Qattara depression in Egypt as Britain's eighth army struck sledgehammer blows at German and Italian positions.

Although Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces struck back savagely, the British infantry held on to early gains. Protected by hundreds of guns and a supreme Allied air umbrella, the infantry jolted enemy troops loose from another section of the Alamein line.

The great tank battles of previous campaigns in the desert were missing in the initial onslaught of the new British drive. Heavy artillery and planes played the dominant role. American fliers strengthened the drive, sweeping over enemy areas, shooting up troop concentrations, tanks and airfields.

Cairo reports to British newspapers said that Allied forces had "trapped several thousand Axis troops" in a narrow pocket west of El Alamein near the Mediterranean coast.

While it was the avowed intention of the British command to destroy Rommel and his army, some sources saw another effect: Germany might be forced to withdraw German planes and men from Russia to meet the even more critical threat on the desert.

FARM INCOME:

Increase to Continue

Estimating the net farm income for 1942 at $9,800,000,000, including government payments, the department of agriculture forecast that next year's net income will total approximately $10,500,000,000.

The 1942 figure is about $1,000,000,000 above the previous record of 1919, the department said. Total agricultural production this year is nearly 12 per cent greater than the record set in 1941, and 40 per cent greater than in 1918.

The department stated "October estimates indicated, for the first time, that the corn crop this year may exceed the record set in 1920; and it is being grown on 12 per cent less acreage. Abundant feed supplies and good prices are expected to stimulate increased livestock production again next year. However, unless the weather is again exceptionally favorable it is unlikely that crop production will equal the volume of 1942, when per acre yields appear to be averaging 13 per cent above previous records."

The department reported that military and lend-lease food purchases next year are expected to be 50 per cent greater than in 1942 and will take one-fifth of current farm production. Civilian demands will continue to advance slowly and prices for farm products in 1943 under ceiling limitations will be about 6 per cent above the average estimated for all of 1942.

LABOR SUPPLY:

Untapped Source

Even as he disclosed tentative plans for the nation-wide registration of women for work in war industries, President Roosevelt stated that the administration has reached no decision on means of solving the critical man-power problem. He warned against premature conclusions that plans for nation service or "labor draft" legislation have been abandoned.

The President pointed out that legislation will be necessary before the registration of women could be ordered. He emphasized that plans call only for the registration of women (between 18 and 65), and that there are no plans for a labor draft of women.

He stated that his recent meeting with the AFL-CIO labor war cabinet followed this general line:

With approximately 6,000,000 men now in uniform, there are not very many remaining to fill future needs of war industries, which are expected to require from four to five million additional workers. Although the labor supply problem looks satisfactory for the immediate present, wisdom dictates that it be studied from the long-range viewpoint. The registration of women is concerned with these future war needs, it was pointed out.

Baruch Study?

Meanwhile, the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce proposed that the Baruch committee, which studied the rubber problem, now turn to a study of the man-power shortage. The board's statement said that "of the many serious problems now confronting this nation and its people, the problem of the proper use of man-power is undoubtedly paramount."

RUSSIAN FRONT:

Initiative Reversed

While the Germans continued to grind forward across the Nalchik plains in the Caucasus sector the Russians had taken up the initiative in key regions further north. Stalingrad communiques were often similar in their content. This was typical of Russian announcements: "Soviet troops repulsed enemy attacks. In certain sectors our troops counterattacked and forged ahead somewhat."

Neutral military observers saw in the news from Russia that the Nazis had shifted the main weight of their drive to the Caucasus mountains. There the fury of the attack was unabated. Definitely the Russians were fighting defensive actions all along this front. Always the Soviet claimed the infliction of heavy losses of Nazi men and machines as they retreated before the furious, continuous onslaught.

IDLE DOLLARS:

Are Slackers

Attributing the rise of money in circulation to the demands of war financing and huge wartime payrolls, Federal Reserve officials in Washington at the same time declared in effect that "idle dollars are slacker dollars." Yet there are "comparatively few" dollars being hoarded among the more than $14,000,000,000 now in circulation.

Treasury department and Federal Reserve experts have been carefully watching for signs of hoarding but there is no indication that it is widespread among U. S. citizens throughout the country.

A chart showing both money in circulation and wages paid shows that the upturn in the total money in circulation exactly parallels the rise in wages. While the 14 billion dollars is the largest amount ever in circulation in U. S. history government officials explained that any upturn in business as widespread as the present war spending always increases the demand for currency because it places cash in the pockets of those people without bank connections.

FOOD PROBLEM:

Gets Attention

Although little official news came from Washington, it was reported that President Roosevelt is studying an urgent proposal for the appointment of an over-all administrator to stabilize the nation's confused food situation.

The recommendation, made by Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, with the approval of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, named no specific candidate for the job. However, two frequently mentioned candidates are Milo Perkins, executive director of the Board of Economic Warfare, and Lee Marshall, food consultant to Nelson. Perkins was director of the Agricultural Adjustment administration's surplus commodity food stamp plan during the depression.

DONALD M. NELSON
No specific candidate.

POSTWAR CHINA:

To Need Billions

China must have from five to ten billion dollars in foreign credits for postwar reconstruction, Foreign Minister T. V. Soong has reported to the People's Political council in Chungking.

The foreign minister, according to authentic reports, made the following points:

The outcome of India's demands for independence from British rule is of deep concern to China. "The future of India is closely connected with the future of China," Soong said.

Germany will be defeated by England and the United States with gigantic land forces in Europe. Japan will be defeated with overwhelming naval forces in the Pacific.

Following the war, Japan will be forced to evacuate Manchuria, Korea and the Liukiu Islands. The latter areas will become sovereign states.

CARGO PLANES:

New Contract

Andrew J. Higgins and New Orleans building facilities were back in the news again. Last July when the government cancelled his contract to build 200 freighters there was plenty of official and unofficial steam blasted in Washington. Now Higgins has disclosed that he has obtained a contract to construct 1,200 army cargo planes in the same shipyards where he was to have built the freighters last summer.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

PUNCTURE: The Office of Price Administration has reiterated its approval of a proposal that retail grocers punch holes in the tops of vacuum packed coffee cans to discourage hoarding.

DEPORTED: Twenty-six Germans and five Italians, alleged to have engaged in Nazi and Fascist activities, have been deported from Nicaragua to the United States.

FIRST: First man to drive a jeep over the new Alaska highway was Lieut. Robert H. Gill of the U. S. army air forces. The 1,450-mile trip from Edmonton, Alberta, to White Horse, Yukon territory, took five days.

BOMBLESS: Much-bombed Malta recently had its first day free of daylight air alerts for several months.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—In this war, it appears that newly appointed commanders always look more promising than the men they succeed. The dossier reveals a seasoned warrior, usually "friendly and democratic but a stiff disciplinarian." There is note of his medals and his popularity among the men. There is not available any such body of objective criticism as in the theater or the arts. The free-swinging critiques of sports and politics also are out, so far as military science is concerned, and the bleachers take on faith with the new man in the lineup.

Adm. Halsey Jr. Has Both His Sea Legs and Wings

When Vice Admiral William F. Halsey Jr. replaced Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley in command of the Solomon Islands action, we took a couple of days to look for a professionally informed and disinterested appraisal of Admiral Halsey's qualifications for his critically important job. The report is encouraging, for reasons other than those disclosed in mill-run navy biographies.

As an officer, his emphasis, and his proven ability, has been in adaptiveness and mobility. With Rear Admirals John H. Towers and Arthur B. Cook, he has combined the skills and furthered the techniques of men who, like himself, can both sail and fly. That, we are assured, is what it takes in the Solomon Islands today. This air-sea domain is a highly specialized and rapidly evolving new zone of strategy, or perhaps more precisely tactics, as the latter word puts the emphasis on knowing what to do next, rather than on what traditionally is done.

He once said: "I believe in violating rules. We violate them every day. We do the unexpected."

At the age of 60, he pilots his own plane and gets close in where action is real or impending. He is one of the most experienced men in the navy in operations such as those in the Solomons today, having been awarded the Distinguished Service medal for planning and carrying through the raids in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands. If it should happen that the desperate need of the hour, or the minute, should be for a brilliant improviser and the text books forgotten, Admiral Halsey is the man for the job.

Admiral Halsey was born and grew up in Elizabeth, N. J., and entered Annapolis in 1900. He rode destroyers for a few years and later was a member of the Annapolis executive staff.

ABOUT two years ago, the British discovered that their industrial tempo was set to the pace of "Auld Lang Syne," or "Comin' Through the Rye." One of their leading classical composers, long a foe of ultra-modern music, suddenly reformed and started tapping out hot music for factory hands. It was played in the factories to step up the punch-press and sledge-hammer rhythms. It worked. All reports were that they thus greatly increased the flow of war goods.

Steps Up Tempo Of War Industry With Vital Music

Over here, we got the point of the experiment. Professor Harold Burris-Meyer reports on researches, which he made with one of his colleagues, showing that factory music in eastern factories has stepped up production in a range from 1.3 to 11.1 per cent. But that is just a start, says Professor Burris-Meyer. He notes that "the leisure music is not the idiom of the modern industrial plant." They're setting this war to music and it is to be vital music.

In May, 1935, Professor Burris-Meyer unveiled a sound machine which, working with an audience "would induce hysteria within 30 seconds." For 12 years, at Stevens, he has pioneered the field of sound stimuli, as an augmentation of dramatic effects. Previously, he had taught at Washington and Jefferson and C.C.N.Y.

IT IS not clear whether Karl Hermann Frank has decided to exterminate the Czech people, but he appears to be thinking it over. Herr Frank is state secretary of the Bohemia-Moravia Protectorate. Berne quotes him: "The murder of Heydrich has not yet been expiated and it still constitutes a blood guilt that incriminates the Czech people in its entirety."

Herr Frank was active in the early stages of the Sudeten gangster build-up, serving as a diligent inciter of hatred and savagery.

THINGS THAT MAR FAMILY LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 27:30-35; Matthew 5:31, 32; Luke 12:13-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ.—Galatians 6:2.

Home is what you make it! Oh, yes, there may be circumstances which hinder us from doing what we would like—such as poverty, illness, unemployment, etc. These are things we cannot control and certainly they do have a bearing. But man or woman when of the right spirit can triumph over such matters and make even the poorest home the gateway to heaven. It is a matter of the attitude of heart and mind. Our lesson then is very practical, for it deals with those sins which mar family life.

Whatever our circumstances may be, we can and must turn away from sin—and in this case, the sins which hinder the home from being what it ought to be. God has provided victory over sin through Christ for all who believe in Him.

What then are the sins which stand as the enemies of the home?

I. Deceit (Gen. 27:30-35).

Whatever the circumstances of the home may be, there can be absolute honesty and candor in the dealings between members of the family.

Our recent study of the story of Jacob and Esau showed us the sad consequences of the deceit practiced by Jacob and his mother in defrauding Esau. Many elements entered in, the favoritism of the mother toward one son, the envy that the brother had of his elder brother's birthright, the wicked scheming of mother and son to outwit the aged father—all a very distressing picture of a home shot through with deceitfulness. To build anything of permanent value on such a foundation was quite impossible.

The family in which deceitful means are used by husband or wife to gain some advantage for self or a favored child is heading for the rocks and needs to turn about and get into the channel of truth and uprightness before it is too late.

II. Divorce (Matt. 5:31, 32).

One of the most destructive elements of modern life is that of divorce. Terrifying statistics could be quoted, but they are not nearly as moving as the knowledge most of us have of broken homes, delinquent children, decadent morals, etc., ad nauseam. The victims of this deadly evil are primarily the children who are sent on into life with disordered minds and hearts.

Jesus declared that the decree of divorcement allowed by Moses was not an abrogation of God's original law in this matter. Because of the "hardness of their hearts" (Mark 10:4) Moses permitted it, but the standard of God was and (note this please!) is unchanged.

Marriage, as we saw in our lesson of November 1, is God's plan for the perfect union of the man and woman whereby the two become one in the sight of God. That means that the tie is not one to be dissolved at will or on some purely legal ground; it is an inseparable union.

The only exception recognized by Scripture (v. 32) is that act of unfaithfulness which is such a breach of the holy union as to virtually destroy it. Perhaps it might be called a recognition of the breaking of the union rather than an exception. Adultery is a heinous sin, an extremely serious violation of God's law. Let us press that fact home today when it is so lightly regarded in our sinful generation.

III. Desire (Luke 12:13-15).

Money is necessary and may be a blessing, but the "love of money is the root of all evil" (I Tim. 6:10). That is not just a verse in the Bible. It is the true picture of the thing which has destroyed the happiness of millions.

Here was a quarrel over an inheritance, and in meeting it our Lord laid down a principle which would solve all the money quarrels in every home—and they are endless in number and great in bitter destructiveness.

"Man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (v. 15). Write it large over the minds and hearts of the boys and girls in our homes! Let it control in the attitude of father and mother toward money. It will solve not only the money problems of the home, but will send the children forth into life with a foundation philosophy that will bless them to the end of their days.

Notice verse 14. It is the desire for money that most often makes man desire to be a judge over his brother. The big eyes of envy cause him to look with bitter desire upon what his brother has and he wants. The fine principle of sharing the family's possessions would do much to knit the home into a unit—happy, strong and useful to both God and man. The point is to say "ours" rather than "mine," and to ask, "What can we do?" not, "What can I get?"

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Japan now controls about 89% of the rubber plantations of the world.

Regardless of whether synthetic rubber is made from petroleum, grain, shrubs or chemicals it will be some time before car owners will be able to purchase synthetic rubber tires. War purposes have first call.

A tombstone marks the spot near Sussex, England, where a tire that had served its owner 15 years was ceremoniously buried.

300 rubber parts, not including tires and tubes, are used in the modern automobile. Without rubber the car would truly be a "jolt" wagon.

There is talk these days of recapping 25,000,000 tires a year! Quite a jump from the 3,600,000 recapped - retreaded mark of 1937.

Automobiles were on over 58% of all U. S. farms in 1940; 18.5% of the farms had motor trucks and 23.1% motor tractors.

War Man Power Problem Is Still Far From Solution

National Service Act Held Back; McNutt-Hershey Conflict Complicates Situation; Competition Keen as Ever.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

"Sorry, sir," said the waiter on the dining car, "we can only serve you one cup of coffee."

"Sorry, sir," said a somewhat weary voice of the hotel room service, "we can't serve you ham with your eggs, this is a meatless day."

And so a simple, wandering Washingtonian, who had stepped outside of the capital for a brief interlude, found out there was a war going on. Back in the shadow of the Capitol dome, I began to wonder whether, before long, when Uncle Sam passed his plate for a second helping the farmer would say: "Sorry, sir, this is helpless day on the farm, we aren't furnishing food any more."

When that happens, perhaps we'll get that national service act.

Behind the delay in settling the farm-labor problem and the other problems which have arisen because the government hasn't had the nerve to tell anybody but the soldiers where to go, what to do and when to do it, is a lot of honest uncertainty, some inter-departmental friction but chiefly plain fear of stepping on the public's toes.

Many believed that the public aren't afraid of their toes and are only waiting to be told what to do and the real solution may be the one offered by Wendell Willkie when he said in his report to the nation that "it is up to us to make our leaders give us more to do."

Distribution Problem

We have plenty of people to "do," but we are not distributing them properly, not giving the right people the right jobs. We are still letting people decide themselves what they are going to do, not telling them what is the thing they must do to win the war. When I reported last on the man-power problem I felt sure that by this time a national service act would be before congress. Congress has drawn up several of these acts but administration spokesmen have told them "not yet"; meanwhile piecemeal measures are offered.

The story behind the conflict between Paul McNutt's Man-Power commission and General Hershey's Selective Service system is an example of how sand gets into the gear-box when the President doesn't clamp down the lid and give orders.

Some of the New Dealers began to worry about the danger that McNutt might grow too big politically and it might be a harder job to sidetrack him at the 1944 Democratic national convention than it was last time. And goodness knows it was a painful process then. So they contrived to hand him the hottest potato, the job that would make more enemies than any other, head of the Man-Power commission. The presumption, according to these not altogether nonpartisan friends of McNutt, was that he would either fall down on the job or do it so well nobody would like him.

Meanwhile the theory was that he was bound to come into conflict with General Hershey. One or the other had to select the men for service: either McNutt would be given the power to tell Hershey whom he couldn't take for the army or Hershey would be given power to tell his draft boards whom they could take. So the battle was on.

No Separate Systems

Since then McNutt has come out and stated that he did not believe it was necessary to set up a separate system of selection—one for military, which already exists in the draft boards, and another to classify civilian service. But, under White House orders, he made it plain that he had no bill to submit to congress. His labor-management committee submitted its report directly to the President.

While all this has been going on the Selective Service system has been pacing the floor outside the Man-Power commission's door. The commission is supposed to advise Selective Service but for many months it refused to say aye, yes or no.

According to Selective Service officials the moment they had the opportunity they submitted a plan to take care of the one sore thumb of the man-power problem that threatens to interfere with our eating, farm labor. The plan would:

1. Tell the farmer boys their patriotic duty is on the farm, that they must stay there. If they leave they would immediately be drafted.
2. Stop all voluntary recruiting.

That, according to General Hershey, would at least stop the drain of farm labor and save the boys from the stigma of remaining in civilian clothes when other boys in non-essential jobs were joining up.

According to the Selective Service officials that proposal was sat on for six months while the cries of the farmer rose higher and higher.

Complaints to Hershey

Most of the complaints were directed at General Hershey. But his aides point out that Selective Service has taken far less men from the farms than the other two sirens that lure the men away from their prosaic jobs: One is the recruiting sergeant and the other is industry. The recruiting sergeant offers adventure with a patriotic background. Industry offers big pay and bright lights.

And to show how the competition for manpower still goes on among government agencies itself, Selective Service officials charge that the United States Employment service, which recruits men and women for industry, has been just as energetic as those handsome army, navy and marine sergeants, in recruiting the boys on the farm.

When, just before the elections, both Man-Power Commissioner McNutt and Selective Service Director Hershey both testified that there was no immediate need for a man-power bill they were probably glad that they could do so—which meant that it had probably been strongly indicated from higher up that they had better do so. For neither gentleman would care to make a blanket recommendation for a measure which might give the other the real authority in administering.

The measure will probably remain something to do tomorrow until it becomes clear that tomorrow's ham and eggs may depend on action today.

OWI Proves Boon To Capital Writers

A stranger coming to Washington and watching the men and women filing into the White House executive offices for the semi-weekly press and radio conference with the President; or visiting the senate or the house of representatives on a day when important news is breaking when the press and radio galleries above the respective rostrums are filled, would think that Washington is pretty well covered for news.

There are more than 600 members of the press and radio galleries. There are many, many more reporters and broadcasters whose duties do not make them eligible for these groups.

But in addition to these men and women whose job it is to write about what is happening in your capital, 4,000 people who are spending between a million and two million dollars a month are hired by the government to disseminate information. The Office of War Information has 3,500 employees.

There are some 200 persons in the army public relations bureau and a hundred or so in the navy public relations. The Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, Nelson Rockefeller, has more than a hundred members in its public relations department. The persons doing similar work for the War Production board and the Office of Price Administration have a hundred and fifty more.

Of course, the old line agencies have their public relations staffs but we are just talking about the war news agencies.

As far as my own contact with the Office of War Information goes I must say its members have been a great help to me. If I run into a snarl of official dispatches, questionable rumors, I do what other news men do, call up the OWI and I usually get a very straight and satisfactory story.

But nursing us newsmen along is only half their job—the rest is disseminating information abroad—where it will do the most good—and don't ask who and when and where—that's not for publication.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

In recent years I have not had the heart to shoot a dove, but I well remember the days on the farm when I would shoot them. I learned then that of all the birds the dove is the most easily frightened and put to flight by firing of a gun. They seem to sense the danger if they only hear the report of the gun. Remember that the Holy Spirit is comparel to a dove, and if we begin to fire shots of anger at each other, this heavenly dove will take wings and fly away. The Spirit of God is one of love and peace, and not of tumult and confusion. All we have to do to grieve the Holy Spirit and compel Him to retire from us, is to commence firing at each other. Where there is jealousy, selfishness and pride, the Third Person of the Trinity is not to be found. Be careful never to frighten the heavenly dove from the garden of your soul.

It is not generally known, but when John Bunyan was in the Bedford jail he was often given the privilege of going to his home to see his family. In London some of his persecutors heard of this and sent one of their number to investigate. The night before this man was to appear at the jail, Bunyan was at his home. In the midnight hours Bunyan announced to his wife that he must hurry back to the jail, and in a few moments he was knocking for admittance into his room. Early the next morning the messenger arrived and asked the prison keeper if John Bunyan was in his cell. "I want to see him" replied the one on the investigation trip. Bunyan was ordered out and on seeing him the messenger waived his hand for him to be carried back to his room. When the man was gone the jailor said to Bunyan, "You may come and go as you please, for you know when to return better than I can tell you." God's Spirit speaks to His servants.

On morning a young preacher came to my study, and being much disturbed over having a consciousness of God's Spirit in his heart, he proceeded to seek for help at my hands. He was a consecrated young man and said that he had tried every way known to him to satisfy himself, but that he could not find the assurance. After talking with him for some time he arose to go and placed his hat on his head. Then he paused to talk some more. Presently he felt that he must go and started walking around in the room as if looking for something. I asked, "Charlie, what are you looking for?" Then he calmly replied, "I am looking for my hat." Then I saw my opportunity and as I bowed him to the door I said to him, "You have your hat on your head and did not know it, just as you have the Spirit of God in your life and do not seem to know that. The young minister saw the point and with a smile of satisfaction upon his face he went away with his hat and with a consciousness that God's Spirit was with him.

In Virginia a man lost his way in a dreary mine. He had only one candle to light up his way back to home and safety. There are many signs to be read, many pits to be avoided, much moisture dripping from above and the man must take the best care of that lighted candle. He guards it at every moment so that he will have a light to walk by. We are like that lost, lonely wanderer in the mine. God has given to us the light of His Spirit to guide us by all the pitfalls of sin. Many influences play about our lives to lead us wrong, and to dampen our Christian ardor and zeal. Unless we take diligent care of that Spirit of God that is with us, and keep Him as our protector and guide, we will never be able to find our way to heaven and home. Better guard God's light within with jealous care.

There is time enough to plant your turnips, mustards, kale, rape, white icicle radish, beets and set out collards, cabbage and onions.

Do not pass up the opportunity of planting a garden for your own home use and National Defense. A garden is the source of another one of life's great necessities, other than supplying exercise. We need to work some times to drive off a dull physical feeling, we need to work some times to drive off a sick mind. Our minds become sick some time and we hardly know what to do. Make your garden a source of inspiration by using it for food supply, exercise of mind and body. Study your plants, insect pests and the material to treat or combat the insects and you will not have the time to become "mind-sick."

Winter legumes: It is a fact that peanuts rob soil of its fertility where we take the peanuts and vines away. The soil is like the bank or your bank account. If crops are grown and removed from the soil without planting cover crops or legumes to turn under the soil becomes unfertile and ceases to produce to an advantage. Do not allow even one acre, on which peanuts have been grown, to pass through this winter without some legume growing to be turned under next spring. We should plant all the legumes that are available, for a source of nitrogen even if peanuts have not been grown on the land.

We have a problem of farm labor facing us for next year. Let us help ourselves by planting winter legumes in order that we may produce more with less labor and on a smaller acreage of land. This must be one of our solutions to this farm labor problem.

Now is the time to stop and get your legumes planted. What do you say We can, we shall, and we must produce food to beat "Hitler". If food will win the war—and it will—"Hitler" had better get on his return to German soil because he is beaten now. Buy War Stamps and Bonds and win the war.

B. T. Whittington, Voc. Agriculture Teacher.

FARMERS URGED TO TAKE BEST CARE OF MACHINERY

Alabama farmers are more interested than ever before in taking the best possible care of the machinery they have on hand to make it give additional years of service.

With farm machinery now being rationed and the supply available to be cut severely, J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer, gives these pointers for lengthening the life of machinery:

(1) When the farm machinery or tools are not in use put them under shelter.

(2) Tag machinery for replacements and repairs, buy needed parts, and make repairs before machinery is needed.

(3) Paint all exposed parts of machinery using ordinary outside paint, and grease all wearing parts.

"Farmers using these simple practices in taking care of their machinery should get 5 to 10 years additional service from it," says Wilson.

RURAL WAR PRODUCTION PROGRAM STARTED OCT. 26 AT VERMONT

The Rural War Production Program started Monday night October 26 with Mr. C. M. Williams as instructor.

The course now being offered at Vermont is titled "IIncreasing Pork Production". It is hoped that this course will increase the number and quality of hogs in the community.

The Rural War Production Training Program is a part of the total war effort. It is a result of a special act of Congress and is administered by the U. S. Office of Education. State Department of Education, and the local Superintendent of Education. Supervision of these courses is the responsibility of teachers of Vocational Agriculture. Any person over 17 years of age and not now in school may take any of these Rural War Production Training Courses. There is no charge for attending these courses.

The course at Vermont is under the supervision of J. H. Camp, teacher of Vocational Agriculture at Isabella High School.

RURAL WAR PRODUCTION TRAINING AT ISABELLA

The Rural War Production Training Program at Isabella High School Vocational Agriculture Department started Monday night October 19 with a very good attendance for the first meeting.

The course now being offered at Isabella is Woodworking: This course meets 3 hours per night 5 nights in the week and will last for a period of eight weeks. This will mean that the course wil end around December 11.

After this course is completed, other courses will be offered. One of the main purposes of this training program is to provide instruction which will aid indivdual farmers n "outlining a plan of action", by which production goals can be reached in the shortest time possible.

Whatever effort is put forth by farmers to increase production of food for our nation will be directed toward a United Victory. War calls for the best efforts of all men, women, and children. The Isabella community is no exception and when the time comes it will be said that, "The farmers in the Isabella community met their goals."

W. T. Tucker is instructor of the woodworking course now being offered at Isabella. This course is under the supervision of J. H. Camp, teacher of Vocational Agriculture at Isabella.

GOOD FOREST MANAGEMENT SAVES VALUABLE TIMBER

Farmers cutting fuelwood this winter should be sure to practice selective cutting and use special fire prevention measures points out C. K. Ro extension forester.

Only the defective, diseased and inferior trees should be cut for the wood allowing the smaller, thrifty trees to grow. A thorough clean-up should follow fuelwood cutting to eliminate fire hazards. Brush heaps should be burned under close supervision so that the fire will not spread. Fire not only kills young trees but damages growing and mature timber, destroys soil cover and kills wildlife.

A coral snake, one of the most deadly of the reptile species, was found and killed in the backyard of a Dotha residence. The cook thought it "just a snake," but the lady resident, who had taken a Red Cross first-aid course at once recognized the ilentity of the reptile.

TEAMWORK FOR VICTORY

YOU know how sometimes a team of five men, or nine men, or eleven men, gets inspired—how everything clicks and it can beat any team in the world?

Well, the same thing has happened to a team of more than 700 separate railroads, large and small.

For twenty years these railroads have been training for any transportation job that might come along—laying heavier rail, speeding up trains, getting more work out of every freight car. They've been rehearsing "new plays" which make the most of teamwork—not only teamwork among railroads, but also teamwork among railroads and the shippers and travelers who use them. And now, when the test has come, this railroad team is playing the kind of ball that coaches dream about.

Since long before Pearl Harbor, the railroads have taken on one "impossible" assignment after another as shortages of ships and rubber have placed abnormal loads upon them. And they are keeping all this added traffic moving with the smooth efficiency of an experienced and thoroughly trained team.

Railroads and shippers alike have a right to be proud of the job they have done. It's a great example of unity—of what American industry can accomplish by teamwork for victory.

—Thomas Paine

THESE are days when some will win and merit distinguished service medals --medals which will testify to their skill and courage in battle.

These are days, too, when every citizen can in some way give distinguished service on the farm, in the home, in factories and stores and in schools. Any citizen, young or old, who does his dead level best to help the war effort is performing distinguished service.

He may be a cotton farmer who, in the face of farm labor shortage and other obstacles, still gets his cotton picked and to the gin—some way, somehow—so that it may be made into ammunition, clothing, tents and other things needed for the armed services. He may be a power lineman with an urge to get into the fighting forces but who, for various reasons, must stay on the home front.

He may be YOU, who, because you have decided to do your job the best you can, will make possible more manpower for the Army and Navy; because you are putting every dollar you possibly can into War Bonds; because you are taking part in activities necessary to the war effort.

Yes, these are days when all can perform distinguished service. There'll be no medals. Instead there'll be a greater reward—the reward that comes from being able to say, "I did my part."

Ev'rybody Ev'ry Pay Day

6,000,000 Women Enrolled in War Savings Payroll Plan.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Women At War Week, opening Nov. 22, during which women will seek to sell the greatest single week's volume of War Bonds and Stamps will serve to put the spotlight on the mighty contribution women generally are making toward financing the war.

Six million women are on War Savings payroll plans. Their monthly deductions total $70,000,000.

The customers of 300,000 newspaper boys who have sold more than $50,000,000 in War Bonds and Stamps are mostly women.

Volunteer saleswomen run nearly all the Bond booths in theatres from Maine to California. They also are sparking the War Bond sales in retail stores.

Ralph G. Engelsman, Associate Field Director of the payroll savings section of the War Savings Staff, readily admits that without the support of women the phenomenal record of payroll savings enrollments would not have been achieved. Payroll savings plans are now in operation in 148,000 businesses and factories. Employees of twenty-five thousand of these firms are converting at least 10 percent of gross payrolls into War Bonds every payday.

Associate Field Director Engelsman says that women have contributed directly and indirectly toward this record. When a man devoted 10 or more percent of his pay envelope to War Bonds, the woman at home has had a powerful voice in the decision. Her planning, her economies and her cheerfulness play their part in the success of payroll savings.

The Treasury Department is counting upon this woman influence in its current campaign to "top that 10 percent by New Year's." By the first of the year the Treasury hopes to enroll at least 3,000,000 women workers in a payroll savings plan and 5,000,000 more men with total deductions for War Bonds over the 10 percent mark.

Letter To The Editor:

Seattle, Wash.,
Nov. 1, 1942

To the Editor Chilton County News,
Clanton, Ala.

Dear Sir:

To begin with I am not a writer but I would like to say a few words to the people back home that have a son, husbanl, brother, or friend in the military service some where. Please don't neglect to write them often. Especially do I urge you to write to the youngsters. I stand in the mail lines twice every day, and I get quite a kick out of seeing these young people get their mail. When their name is called in the mail line up. There are always some few that seem to be forgotten, and it really does touch you to see the difference in expressions in their faces when they fail to get that letter from home or some friend. If the boy is a mere acquaintance. Drop him a line tell, him of some of the things that are happening back home. Maybe it is something that doesn't even interest you but will still be news to him. Remember lots of these boys have never been away from home any distance or length of time, and I am sure you can't realize what it means to them to get mail from back home. I have seen some youngsters so disappointed they would go fall across their bunks after mail call, and could-not eat. Don't neglect them. Write them often, that is one thing they mostly look forward to. As I said to begin with I am no writer. So in conclusion let me urge you to write them I am sure they will appreciate it.

Very truly yours,

Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama,

Hello Alabama:

My prayers have been answered, for after being absent from the Dearest State in the Union, I have at last returned after graduating from the Army Air Forces Technical School at Fort Logan, Colorado on October 14, 1942. I was transferred to Brookley Field, Mobile.

The stay at Denver was a wonderfu lexperience in my life for I met friends from all parts of the Union. After this war is over I expect to continue remembering my friendships made in the army. The people in Denver were wonderful to the soldiers, inviting you to their homes and on mountain trips, and always encouraging you to look on the sunny side of life.

I arrived at Brookley Field on Oct. 16 and was surprised to see an airport as large as this one. The people of Alabama should be proud of Brookley Field, because it is the shipping pointfor the Fourth Air Service Command. After completion it will be the largest in the United States.

The Bankhead Tunnel is really a beautiful structure, and the Docks here are winning the war daily by building ships. The government is spending thousands of dollars daily here in the building projects, and someday we young men who are giving our lives will have to repay in taxes. I am pleading to all you who are beyond draft age to invest in War Bonds to save some soldier's life, for he may be your own son, husband, or sweetheart. I know that Chilton County will do its part.

On November 1st mother and dad visited me, and Millard Reynolds, Miss Ruth Hicks, and Mrs. Frank Reynolds called me over the telephone. Thanks for calling and if any of my friends from Chilton County come down don't leave without calling.

Chilton, keep fighting, for your sons are going to give all we have for you.

Your very own,
Pvt. Julius A. Sample,

FLASH! SANTA CLAUS IN CLASS A-1

IF YOU WILL WANT A WHEEL TOY NEXT CHRISTMAS, MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR IT NOW

I saw Santa Claus last week and he told me the draft had put him in Class A-1 and he wasn't going to ask for deferment, so he may be going into the army before long. He is putting many of his toy factories into war production All this means that from now on everybody will have to get along without many of the toys they'd like to have.

I have bought my stock of Christmas wheel toys—tricycles, wagons, scooters, etc.—and have them in the store now. It is very doubtful whether I can get any more. If you want to be sure of having a wheel toy for next Christmas, I strongly advise that you come in now, pick out what you want and buy iton our Lay-Away Plan.

It's the most convenient way to shop for Christmas—make a deposit, then a small weekly payment, and we will hold the toy for you in the original container until Christmas. In this way you'll have the payments made and forgotten before Christmas time.

And you'll be sure of getting the toy you want.

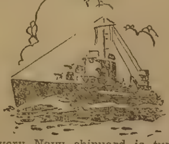
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Ships of the Destroyer type comprise the bulk of our fighting ships in the American Navy. Their average displacement is about 1800 tons, and they are fast, powerful, and hard hitting. They have been particularly effective in convoy duty and gave a good account of themselves in the Coral Sea engagement. They cost approximately $3,000,000 each.



Every Navy shipyard is turning out Destroyers in record time. They are essential for our two-ocean Navy. Purchase of more and more War Bonds will assure all-out production of these vital units for the Navy. Buy every pay day. If everybody invests at least ten percent of his income in War Bonds we can do the job. U. S. Treasury Department

"So you were at the Gray-Bell wedding, eh?"

"Yes."

"Who gave the bride away?"

"No one. She married money."

Disastrous

The usual gossip was being enjoyed over the back-garden fence.

"Did you hear about the row at No. 17 last night?" said the lady at No. 3.

"No; what was it?" asked her neighbor at No. 5 eagerly.

"Well, she broke a chair over her husband's head, but I hear she's very sorry for it now."

"Pity she didn't think before she did it then."

"Yes," sighed No. 3; "it was one of her best chairs."

TIP OFF

"I know I'm not half good enough for you, darling."

"Well, I'll marry you if you'll promise to maintain that same attitude after we're married."

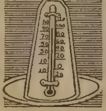
Serve the Festive Bird—Plump With Stuffing
(See Recipes Below.)

Day of Praise

Now that the frost-nipped days have come and we've gathered the harvest, Thanksgiving time is here again. It really is a Thanksgiving, for a year of plenty if not of peace, and it's to be celebrated with a dinner symbolic of the plenty of harvest. Your family will feel a deep and heartfelt satisfaction if you place yellow-gold and deep crimson autumn leaves over the mantel, or provide a blazing fire and have bowls of lush colored grapes, crisp shelled nuts, blushing pears and apples within reach.

The Bird Itself.

Select tender chicken for roasting. Pick dry. Singe and take out pin feathers with tweezers. Cut around vent and make split almost to tip of breastbone. Insert hand and take out entrails carefully from back and sides. Pull out. Be sure lungs are removed. Push back skin of neck, and cut off neck close to body. Remove windpipe. Separate gizzard, heart and liver and cut away gall bladder which is attached to liver, being careful not to break it. Cut through gizzard and clean. Remove oil sack from tail.



Wash outside with cold water. Wipe inside with damp cloth. Sprinkle inside with salt and then stuff loosely. Insert toothpicks or metal pins across opening and lace them with cord. Fold skin of neck over back and fasten with toothpick. Fold wings across back. Tie ends of legs together with a cord, then bring cord around tail and forward to tip of wings to tie. Rub skin with fat (unsalted) and place on roaster rack. Roast uncovered in a moderately slow oven (325-350 degrees) 30 minutes to the pound for a chicken under 3½ pounds, 22-25 minutes for a chicken over 4 pounds.

Stuffing.
(Makes 3½ cups)

⅓ cup rice
3 cups boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup fat
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped onion
5½ cups oven-popped rice cereal
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup stock

Wash rice thoroughly in a sieve. Drain well. Add rice to boiling water slowly as water continues to bubble. Boil rapidly about 20 minutes until rice is tender, then drain.

Brown celery and onion in fat. Stir in rice and mix well. Crush oven-popped rice cereal into coarse crumbs, add parsley, seasonings and stock. Combine with rice and mix thoroughly.

Lynn Says:

Speaking of Stuffings: The old-fashioned bread dressing is easily adapted to many variations. Here is the basic idea: To 1½ pounds of dried bread cut in one-inch cubes add ½ to 1 cup melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon white pepper, ¼ cup minced onion, cooked but not browned, and 2 tablespoons of poultry dressing. Toss lightly and stuff fowl.

If you like crisp celery tasty dressing, add 2 cups finely chopped celery to the bread dressing.

On the other hand, if you like the crispness of chestnuts, add 1 pound of chestnuts, chopped and cooked.

Giblets go well with bread dressing, cook and chop and toss into bread dressing. Mushrooms are distinctive, if simply chopped and sauteed in butter and added to bread stuffing.

Oysters make a tempting dressing. Use 1 pint, chopped and heated until edges curl in 3 tablespoons butter.

*Yams With Oranges.
(Serves 6)

2 to 3 pounds yams
2 oranges, peeled
½ cup brown sugar
1½ cups pineapple juice

Peel raw potatoes and slice into buttered casserole. Lay sliced oranges between yam slices, sprinkle brown sugar over all, then add pineapple juice. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 1 hour or until tender.

*Brussels Sprouts.

Cut off wilted leaves, leave whole, and wash thoroughly. Cook covered in a small amount of boiling, unsalted water for 10 to 15 minutes. Flavor with melted butter, salt, pepper and mix in ¼ cup chopped chestnuts.

A hot muffin with the tang of fall—these spicy apple muffins are guaranteed to whet the most listless—if there be such on Thanksgiving day—appetite:

*Apple Muffins
(Makes 20)

2¼ cups sifted flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
4 tablespoons shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 cup evaporated milk (undiluted)
1 cup finely chopped, raw apples

Sift dry ingredients. Cream shortening and sugar, stir in egg and add flour alternately with milk. Fold in apples and fill greased muffin tins almost full. Sprinkle tops of muffins with additional sugar (about 2 tablespoons in all) mixed with a dash of cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake in a moderately hot (425 degree) oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Busy homemakers like to use prepared, packaged or canned mincemeat for pies, but there are still many of you, who I am sure will like putting up some right in your own kitchen. Here's how:

*Grandmother's Mincemeat Pie.

2 pounds beef neck
1 pound suet
4 pounds tart apples
4 cups sugar
2 pounds currants
3 pounds seedless raisins
½ pound citron, cut
Juice and grated rind of 2 oranges
Juice and rind of 3 lemons
1 pint cider
1 tablespoon salt
1¼ teaspoons nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon mace

Cook beef slowly in hot water for 3 hours. Cool and force through food chopper with suet and apples, using coarse grinder. Add remaining ingredients, blending thoroughly. Cook slowly one hour, then seal in sterilized jars. This makes 6 quarts.

Line pie tin with pastry, then pour in mincemeat. Top with criss-cross or lattice crust and bake in a hot oven 35 minutes.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FOR years Hollywood has complained that there were too many extras for too few jobs. Now it begins to look as if the shoe might be put on the other foot. For the extras are getting jobs in war plants. The other day at Columbia they were shooting a big banquet scene for "The Power of the Press," with Lee Tracy, Gloria Gibson, Guy Kibbee and Otto Kruger. There were also 150 dressed-up extras—and practically all of them were studying books on welding, die sinking, etc., between shots.

Pat O'Brien ("The Navy Comes Through" is keeping him busy) owes his dramatic experience to the fact that the state of Wisconsin paid ex-service men $30 a month to complete their educations, after the last war. Discharged as a seaman, second class, he went to New York and enrolled in dramatic school, and landed on Broadway. "The Front Page," his first film, put him on the movie map.

Irene Dunne's going to have her work cut out for her in "Gaslight" if she gives a performance equaling Judith Evelyn's in the stage version, "Angel Street"; seems as if Metro might have done right by the public by letting them see her in it. She's had a lot of stage experience in Canada and England, and is a leading radio actress, with beauty and talent to burn. Several movie companies have been dickering with her, and why not—last year she won the Drama league's award for the season's most distinguished performance.

When the Red Cross army and navy nurses who were feted at Abbott and Costello's roller skating party left for foreign duty they took with them a book of radio scripts from the comics—material for the soldiers' own entertainments.

Raymond Massey played a touching farewell scene, his biggest one, when, in Warner's "Action in the North Atlantic," he bade good-by to his wife, played by Ruth Gordon. When the picture's done he'll join the Royal Canadian army as a major; he was an officer with them in the last war.

If you're homesick for the dear old days of vaudeville you mustn't miss Metro's "For Me and My Gal," with Judy Garland and Gene Kelly. It'll send you away singing the old songs. Judy and Kelly will do "Anchors Away" after she finishes "Girl Crazy."

"My Sister Eileen," with Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne and Janet Blair, is as funny as the stage play, which is saying a lot. Even though the Hays office stepped on the script—but lightly—it hasn't lost much. Don't miss it!

Since Esther Williams finished work in "Andy Hardy Steps Out" she's been waiting so serenely for her next assignment that somebody asked her how she did it. "When I was badly defeated at my first swimming meet," said she, "my mother said, 'Remember, you have to lose a long time before you win.'" And that's practically perfect advice for all young actresses, most of whom need it.

Gallant Chap's Thoughts Were but Badly Worded

She was young and pretty, and her confusion as she fumbled vainly in her handbag for small change to pay her fare on the bus was quite charming.

"Could you change a five dollar bill for me, please?" she asked, smiling shyly.

"Sorry, miss," replied the conductor. "But don't you worry; you can pay me the ten cents some other time."

"But you may never see me again," quickly replied the young lady.

"Well, what's the odds?" he said, meaning to be gallant. "It won't break my heart if I don't."

A Gentle Way to Treat Constipation!

Get up and cheer, constipation sufferers! If you are one of the millions of people with normal intestines who suffer due to lack of "bulk" in the diet — here's news of a gentler, pleasanter way to win welcome relief!

You see, many medicinal laxatives prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body. But KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, acts quite differently. It works principally on the contents of your colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination. Eat it often and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped, by this simple treatment, see your doctor.

The Unattainable Lures

There's no such thing as the biggest half in spite of the fact that we all want it.

Too many people who talk about war aims have concrete opinions—thoroughly mixed and permanently set.

It is necessary that he who commands well should have at some time obeyed.

They're More Vital

Some men need so much more self-restraint than others.

It isn't more optimism we want, but more hop-to-it-ism.

You'll never get a reputation for generosity by sharing your troubles with your friends.

Chinese 'Rights'

In New York city, every Chinese who rents a store or some other business building claims that he has a "basic property right" in it and, therefore, will not allow another Chinese to lease it until the man has purchased this right, says Collier's. When such a demand runs into thousands of dollars, the owner is seldom able to rent the property again to a member of this race.

For those smokers on your Christmas gift list give a carton of cigarettes or a pound of smoking tobacco. Particularly those smokers in the service. Surveys show cigarettes and smoking tobacco are preferred gifts. Sales records from Post Exchanges and Canteens show the favorite cigarette is Camel. And, of course, for the service man who smokes a pipe—give Prince Albert—the National Joy Smoke. You have your choice of Camels in the Christmas Carton containing 10 packages of 20's—or the Camel "Holiday House" of four boxes of "flat fifties." Prince Albert comes in the pound canister—a grand gift. All are Christmas-wrapped and ready to give. Your local dealer is featuring them now as gifts sure to please.—Adv.

FSA HELPS LOW INCOME FARMERS

The government doesn't have to start a program to utilize the manpower of its small farmers for war food production. It already has such a program. For seven years the Farm Security Administration has been helping hundreds of thousands of low-income farmers to improve their resources and productive ability.

Now, it is a fact that a large part of the increase in food production the Nation must have "to win the war and write the peace" will have to come from small farmers.

Large-scale operators already are producing at or near peak capacity. Shortages of machinery and equipment and of skilled seasonal labor are making it increasingly difficult for them to maintain, let alone raise, their levels of production. In some instances, big farmers in the 1942 season have fallen below their 1941 output because of the difficulties in getting capable farm help.

On the small farm, there is no labor shortage. The farmer and his family do the work. And they can share available implements with other small farmers in the neighborhood.

But the productive labor of vast numbers of small farmers is only partly utilized now: Figures from the 1940 Census reveal that in 1939 approximately 2,717,000 farmers—56 per cent of the bona fide farmers of the Nation—were in the below—$1,000 income class which means that the value of all the farm products they sold, traded AND used at home was less than $1,000. In the South, two-thirds of all farmers had a total income of less than $600 each. They and their families were acutely underemployed.

Every day we lost between ten million and 15 million man-hours of potential labor on the Nation's small farms. This is equivalent to destroying every day 250 million pounds of pork, or 33 million gallons of milk, or 2½ million dozen eggs or—calculating 180 man hours to produce one bale of cotton— to destroying 70,000 bales of this staple.

Most small farm operators are not getting work in war industries. They are well along in years, untrained and usually far distant from the industrial locations. The young fellow moves away or goes to war, but the average small farmer, the 45-year old operator, is still on the farm, and the bulk of low-income farmers are middle-aged, or past.

The place where the small farmer can make his chief contribution to the War Effort is on his farm, producing more food than he ever produced before. The full utilization of the labor of small farmers right where they are is essential if the Nation's war food goals are going to be reduced.

Now, this is where the Farm Security Administration comes in. This is proof that its program is needed, now as never before. Emergency? Yes, but not the same kind of emergency. It is a crisis of democracy, not of individuals. And there is no machinery except that of the Farm Security Administration which will equip the low-income farmer with credit, guidance, instruction, marketing a[illegible] giving him encouragement to work together and live together in health associations and other groups, improving the security of his tenure, helping him to the independence that long has escaped him, and leading him to the light of personal and social responsibility.

Record War Bond Sales Is Goal Of Women At War Week Nov. 22

WASHINGTON, D. C.—America's women in the cities and on the farms—in war factories and in their homes—are determined to make Women At War Week the greatest War Bond selling effort since Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt sounded the keynote for the Treasury Department's Women At War Week, Nov. 22 to 28, with an appeal to women to save on "little things" to provide money for War Bonds.

"We women want to work hard, we want to be a part of this strenuous period because unless we are, we will not be able to face the men when they return and claim our share of the future responsibility for building a peaceful world," the First Lady declared.

The overall direction of Women At War Week rests with the Women's Section of the War Savings Staff under the leadership of Miss Harriet Elliott, Associate Field Director, and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Chief of the Special Activities Unit.

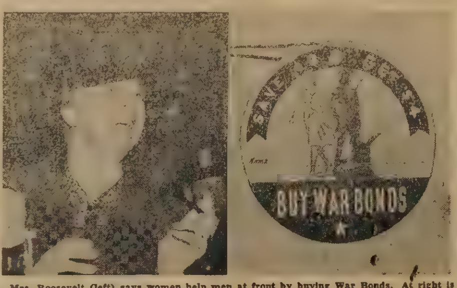
From coast to coast women in every community have made plans for torchlight parades, fashion shows, teas, rallies, store window displays, Stamp and Bond booths, pageants, civic sings, balls and mardi gras. In each locality administration of the one week drive rests with the local War Savings Committee which has worked out activities adapted to their areas.

During Women At War Week volunteer War Bond saleswomen will wear an armband similar to the one being attached to the sleeve of Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., by Miss Harriet Elliott.

Mrs. Morgenthau, in a special message for Women At War Week, declared that the spirit of America's pioneer women lives today more strongly than ever.

"The average American woman began to rise to new heights on Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941," Mrs. Morgenthau said. "This winter the average American woman will be spending less in order to save more to invest in War Bonds and Stamps. She will not, please God, ever have to fire a gun or fly a bomber. But she will, please God, always do everything she can to help buy anything—and the best of everything—that fires or flies or floats in this terrible war."

WOMEN AT WAR—Overalls, wrenches and drills replace fineries as these war workers in an Army Arsenal march to tank repair shops. Note the determination on their faces. These women are typical of hundreds of thousands who are working in war factories and investing part of their earnings in War Bonds.



Mrs. Roosevelt (left) says women help men at front by buying War Bonds. At right is the lapel tag which volunteers will wear during Women At War Week, Nov. 22 to 28.

The Enterprise Community was made sad Saturday p. m. at 5:20 o'clock by the death of one of our oldest and most beloved members and deacon's of Pleasant Valley Church. His death came as a shock even tho' he had been an invalid for months.

He will be missed by the entire community, but we feel that our loss is Heaven's gain.

May that thought comfort the aged wife and bereaved children is our prayer. Funeral services were held at Pleasant Valley Church, Sunday November 11 at 2 p.m. Conducted by Bro. Hughes, Bro. Jim Bice, and Bro. Clarke Burkhalter.

Activities here have about returned to an even keel under the leadership of Mr. Turner, the principal.

The Physical Education program has been altered. Each teacher has been assigned a definite group for playing during the Physical Education period.

The Isabela F.H.A. Chapter met last week at the usual time.

The program for this meeting was centered mainly around a short skit presented by a group of F.H.A. girls. This skit was written by an Isabella F.H.A. member, Buna Veazey. "Smart After All", was the title of the production.

This especially interests us, because it brings out an excellent and useful form of local talent. Let's keep it up.

Chapel program last week was in charge of the F. H. A. The program was chiefly a quiz program. Three F. F. A. boys and three F. H. A. girls competed; the boys winning by a close margin of 2 points. It was all a lot of fun, though, and educational, too. Prizes were awarded to both groups.

Devotional was given by Hudson Calfee. Music for the program was furnished by Thomas Kelley and Charles Ray Scott. One song was sung by the entire student body.

The folowing program was rendered by members of the Cosmopolitan Literary Society in their meeting on Wednesday of last week:

Devotional—Irene Foshee.
Poem—Bil Deramus.
Song—"God Bless America".
Jokes—Dean Culp.
Story—Ruby Smitherman.
"10 years from now"—Leona Dawson.
Poem—Wilma Nell Williams.
"Ideals"—Ann Owen.

Isabella again tasted defeat last Friday when they bowed to the Wetumpka eleven by a score of 13 to 0. We don't have first hand accounts of the game, but from all reports, it was a well played game.

This Friday night the Mustangs will be out to try to slow up the pace of that famed and undefeated Clanton eleven. Even though all the odds are against them, we are hoping that Captain Robert Cummings will be able to lead his team to victory.

The seniors were joyfully highlighting Monday's school news with the arrival of their rings. And just whose ring is it that Mary Ann has been wearing? . . . TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

I wish to thank everyone for the splendid vote that I received on Tuesday, November 3, 1942.

I appreciate the confidence you have placed in me and will do my very best to make you a good commissioner.

I again wish to renew my pledge to you that my acts will be for what think is to the best interest of Chilton Couny.

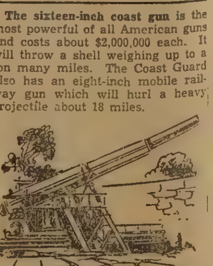
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The sixteen-inch coast gun is the most powerful of all American guns and costs about $2,000,000 each. It will throw a shell weighing up to a ton many miles. The Coast Guard also has an eight-inch mobile railway gun which will hurl a heavy projectile about 18 miles.



For defense of our homes, the Coast Guard needs many of these powerful weapons. You can do your part to help pay for them by investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds and Stamps every payday. U. S. Treasury Department

By BEN

We'er sorry to hear that Jimmie Bell's father died in Atlanta this week-end. Funeral services were held Tuesday, there. Our deepest sympathies go out to he and Lora Rose in their bereavement.

A boy at a circus with all the peanuts that we were in Monday morning would be as wild as a blind dog in a meat house. We were out at Chilton Truck and Implement Company's Warehouse and we counted exactly nine billion, eight hundred and sixty four million, six hundred and eighty-two thousand, one hundred and ninety-nine peanuts and then gave up and asked Burton Mullins how many there were and he told us one hundred tons. There were so many peanuts there that we got the stomach ache just looking at them. Just goes to show what little we all know about the things going on in our community. You aught to go out there and get Burton to show you around, we're sure he wouldn't mind and it is worth knowing about.

Understand Dorothy Arnold takes a large interest in the Hockey tournament at Judson this winter . . . . . so many of "the boys" in town over the week-end that we couldn't even try to name all of them ..... all the stores are decorated with Christmas toys and ready for old Saint Nick ..... O. C. Lloyd who has been at the Jackson, Alabama Methodist Church will preach his first sermon at his new charge, Clanton Methodist, Sunday week ..... The Rev. T. C. Casaday has been assigned to the Phenix City Methodist ..... while we're about it our old friend J. L. Daniel who was here for two years, was sent to Ozark He had been at Capitol Heights in Montgomery for the past two years.

P. H. Headley, deputy rabies inspector, wants all of the people of the county to know that he appreciates very much their cooperation and consideration in his new work. He says that eventually he will reach every part of the county but if anyone wants his services in a hurry to drop him a post card to Verbena and he will get to them at the first opportunity.

A corsage to Mr. and Mrs. Jess Moates—and that is exactly what Mrs Moates received along with a trip to Montgomery as "mother" to a young Cadet graduating—for being a good mother. Several weeks ago the Moates entertained a young Cadet from Maxwell Field over the week-end. The young fellow became attached to the Moates family and when he graduated last week and his own mother and father couldn't attend he promptly asked Mr. and Mrs. Moates if they wouldn't act as his parents at the ceremonies. They accepted and seems they had a wonderful time. They not only did a good thing for their country, the boys parents and as a mighty good example for other parents who could make a home for the boys away from home, but for themselves. They got a big thrill out of being of service, and attending a ceremony that few of us will ever be able to look upon.

David and Catherine Moore who are operating the Service Station and Grocery in South Clanton have built a wonderful business in a very short time. The Moore's work early and late but seems their customers demand it. No matter when you go in there is usually a crowd ahead of you. Confidentially we think that Catherine is the brains of the outfit but being a married man that is easily understood and we certainly have no right sticking our neck out. Anyway, what we started out to say was, they are two fine young people and we'er glad to see them make the success of their business that they have.

The Editor will now stand and sing that old familiar song, dedicated to the "force" who used to print the News each week: "Oh How I Miss You Tonight."

DR. PARRISH THANKS VOTERS

I am at a loss to know just how to express my very sincere appreciation to my friends for that good vote you gave me Nov. 3rd. About the best I know to say is that if at anytime I may be able to repay you is to call on me at anytime or place. In my last administration as a member of the Board of Education. I tried to conduct myself courteously to those I was dealing with and to do the job sincerely and thoroughly. I do not know that I can make any other promise for the future. But at anytime, I may be able to help any individual or group feel free to call on me.

Very Sincerely yours,

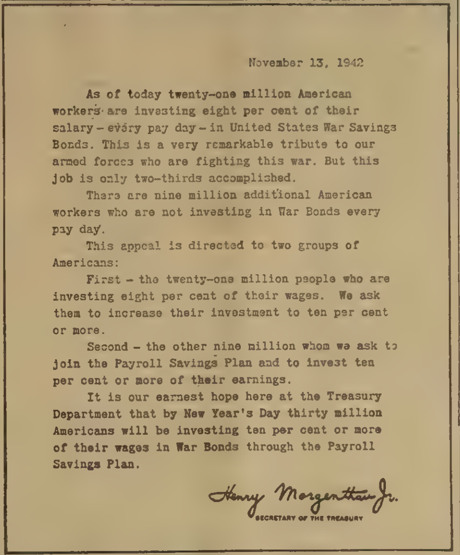
Over the Top by New Year's Is the Plea of Secretary Morgenthau



November 13, 1942

As of today twenty-one million American workers are investing eight per cent of their salary – every pay day – in United States War Savings Bonds. This is a very remarkable tribute to our armed forces who are fighting this war. But this job is only two-thirds accomplished.

There are nine million additional American workers who are not investing in War Bonds every pay day.

This appeal is directed to two groups of Americans:

First – the twenty-one million people who are investing eight per cent of their wages. We ask them to increase their investment to ten per cent or more.

Second – the other nine million whom we ask to join the Payroll Savings Plan and to invest ten per cent or more of their earnings.

It is our earnest hope here at the Treasury Department that by New Year's Day thirty million Americans will be investing ten per cent or more of their wages in War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan.

Henry Morgenthau Jr.
SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

SELECTEES MUST TURN IN SUGAR RATIONING BOOKS

Notice comes from C. Fenn Jones of the County Rationing Board that all young men who have Rationing Books and have been inducted into the armed forces must turn in their Books or have them turned in to the Local Rationing Board at once. Mr. Jones says that this is imperitive and must be complied with.

600 TONS OF PEANUTS SHIPPED BY LOCAL WAREHOUSE THIS FALL

Burton Mullins, Warehouseman, Says That Is The Tonnage Expected

Believe It or Not, Chilton County will ship close to 600 tons of peanuts before the current season has passed. That is the figure given by Burton Mullins who is in charge of the local warehouse and who has already weighed in more than one-hundred tons.

However, we should correct the statement that they are all Chilton county peanuts, Burton says that because of the prompt service given by the local buyers, Farmers are driving from Dallas, Autauga and many nearby counties to bring their products here for Government purchase. The price ranges from $87 to $144, and they will buy all the peanuts that you will bring in.

Another thing that is appealing to the local and distant peanut grower alike is the fact that when the peanuts are graded and the Class of products reached, then and there the farmer receives his check. He doesn't wait a minute for it. Peanuts are just as much a cash crop as is cotton, and just as much in demand.

The local Peanut Buyers are doing a fine job and realizing a very little if any compensation for their efforts. Working until 2:30 A.M. so that a customer who has brought his goods a long way could get them graded and receive his check and be on his way, is no fun. That is what the employees at the local warehouse do often to give the best possible service to the grower.

CHILTON COUNTY HIGH DOWNS ISABELLA 50-0

By James Foshee, Sports Reporter

The football team of Chilton County High School defeated Isabella 50 to 0 last Friday night, November 13.

The Tigers scored in the early part of the first period as Acie Mims, fullback, plunged over from the 3 yard line. Payton passed to Paul Smith, Clanton's ace end, for the next score Thomas went over on a quarterback sneak for the next marker. Payton then dashed off tackle for another counter. The half ended 25 to 0. Mims again scored from the 3 yard line. The most exciting play of the game came next when Payton, left halfback, returned a punt 55 yards for a score. Lamar Edwards, substitute left half, passed to Smith for another marker. The last touchdown came when Thomas passed to Cooper and lateraled to Edwards who raced 40 yards for the score.

The Tigers managed to take the Isabella lads with plenty of ease. The Chilton County Team again proved to be too fast and powerful as it has been proved in previous games. The Tigers have scored 321 points in 8 games to their opponents 24. James Payton, left halfback, has scored 126 points in 8 games this year. He has stablished himself as one of the best and fastest backs ever to perform for the Chilton County Tigers. He is an All-State candidate, as his sensational broken-field running has led his team to many victories.

The Chilton County Team meets the strongest rivalry of the season this Thursday night, November 19, at the Clanton field. They face the Marion Institute B team. F. H. Spicer, coach of the Marion Institute Team, coached the Tigers last year to an undefeated season. He will be out there to turn back the wining streak of the Chilton County Team. Coach Porch says his team is in good shape for the mighty battle. The Chilton County Team will be out there seeking their twentieth straight victory and an undefeated season. The kick-off is at 8:00 o'clock.

PARADE AND BAND CONCERT HERE SATURDAY 2:00 P. M.

The Navy Recruiting Station at Montgomery together with the help of the Avondale Mills Band will feature a Parade and Band Concert in Clanton Saturday afternoon of this week at 2:00 o'clock at the Courthouse.

The purpose of the rally will be to get the people of this county better acquainted with the advantages that the United States Navy has to offer their sons. The Montgomery Recruiting Station has worked out a program that will be interesting and educational to everyone. The public is cordially invited.

KILLED IN ACTION

Information was received here last week of the death of Morris Cleveland Driver. He was reported killed in action but details could not be obtained. He was the son of Mrs. Gertrud Lockhart Driver and the late Cleveland Driver.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Hon. W. P. Gordon of Oneonta will speak at County Courthouse in Clanton Tuesday, Dec. 8 at 10:30 a. m. One of the most important meetings of the year will be held, dealing with the major problems before Alabama Temperance. Those interested in Prohibition, old age pension and clean goverment should hear Mr. Gordon on this occasion. He will tell you something.

There will be a speaking in the morning and a business meeting in the afternoon.

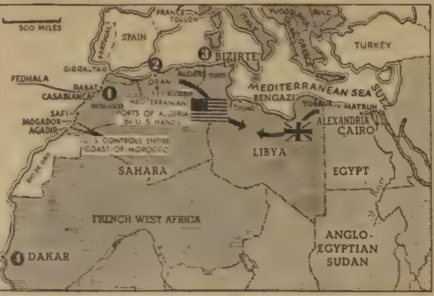
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. North African Occupation Seen As 'Springboard' for European Front; Hitler's Seizure of Southern France Thins Axis Forces for Russ Campaign

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



Territory in North Africa occupied by U. S. expeditionary forces under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be used as a springboard for offensive action against Italy, the Adriatic Balkans and possibly southern France, military experts believe. Principal features on above map show (1) American control over Atlantic ports in French Morocco; (2) Mediterranean ports of Oran and Algiers in American hands; (3) strategic Bizerte in Tunisia, which would complete Allied control of the south Mediterranean; and (4) Vichy-held Dakar, which military experts expect to be taken over by Allies.

BLITZ TIMETABLE:
Beats Schedule

Two immediate jobs had remained for Gen. Dwight D. ("Iron Mike") Eisenhower's American invasion forces after they had completed their spectacular blitzkrieg of French Morocco and Algeria in the record time of 77 hours.

One job was to secure control of rectangular Tunisia, a French protectorate jutting northward into the Mediterranean and offering via strategic Bizerte an ideal stepping stone toward the Axis "soft spots" of Italy and the Adriatic Balkans.

The other job was to complete with their British Allies the nutcracker drive into Libya to smash forever Marshal Rommel's all but extinguished Afrika Korps.

The capture of Morocco and Algeria had given the Americans control of 1,300 miles of precious North African seacoast on the Atlantic ocean and the Mediterranean sea, including the key ports of Casablanca, Rabat, Oran and Algiers. Significantly enough, it was Adm. Jean Darlan, French chief of all defense forces who had given the "cease-firing" order to the French North-African colonies. Darlan was now in a new role of collaborationist with the United Nations, after secret negotiations with American army officers. The welcome of the American forces by the French-African inhabitants had been warmed by the presence with them of heroic Gen. Henri Giraud, dramatically flown to Algeria from France after a secret rendezvous with British airmen.

Neighboring Tunisia was of key importance not only because of its strategic value for future offensives against Hitler-dominated Europe, but because of the concentration there of Axis air-borne troops and combat planes. Hitler had not intended to give up North Africa without a struggle. His hold upon it would not have been possible without Tunisia. Possession of the port of Bizerte, best equipped French Mediterranean naval base, by the United Nations would mean that the Allies would have relatively easy access to Sicily and the Italian mainland and an effective springboard to nearby Tripoli, former "powerhouse" of Axis North African activities. Success of the AEF operations prompted President Roosevelt to raise Gen. Mark Clark, second in command, to the rank of lieutenant general.

ROMMEL:
'Nutcracker Bait'

Like a groggy prize-fighter backpedaling before a knockout punch, Marshal Rommel's shattered Afrika Korps had scurried across Libya pursued by General Montgomery's conquering Eighth British army.

The chase had been nip and tuck with Rommel trying to reach Tripoli, his main base near Tunisia in an effort to use his remaining strength to make a stand. But Tripoli meant no rest for Rommel, for oncoming American armies from Algeria in the west and Montgomery's battering ram from Egypt in the east would converge in a mighty nut-cracker movement to annihilate Axis power in North Africa.

HITLER:
Seizes All France

Military observers agreed that Hitler's seizure of unoccupied France meant a further lengthening of his lines and a weakening of his forces.

The Fuehrer had no other choice than to try to close the "back door" to prospective Allied invasion by ordering his own legions southward to the Mediterranean and the Spanish frontier and those of his Italian "stooge" northward to the Riviera. Corsica, island birthplace of Napoleon, was likewise seized.

But Hitler's move into southern France meant that 20 to 30 Axis divisions would have tied down in occupation duties, thus weakening the English channel invasion coast and also his forces along the far-flung Russian front where action was at a stalemate. He had likewise enlarged the area where the Nazis would be sabotaged as they already have been elsewhere in occupied Europe.

Reports from Russia indicated the Nazis had already begun to withdraw troops to build up their defenses elsewhere in Europe. These were further substantiated by word from Greece indicating the arrival of fresh German units at key seaport bases.

Significantly, Hitler had first stopped his occupation forces 30 miles short of the French naval base at Toulon, designating it as a "camp retranche" to be by-passed and set apart from occupation. Center of speculation since the 1940 armistice, the French fleet comprising 62 warships was the prize at stake with the Axis standing on the near side of the Mediterranean and Allies on the other. Now an Allied "collaborationist" in Africa, Adm. Jean Darlan had added his voice to that of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in a request for the French fleet to join him in Algeria.

ALLIES OPTIMISTIC:
Channel Thrust?

From both sides of the Atlantic official optimism over the war's future outlook was expressed by leaders as a result of the Allied successes in North Africa.

President Roosevelt predicted the Axis' inevitable defeat, and welcomed the increasing number of Frenchmen who are joining the United Nations' cause.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill for the first time since the bleak days of 1940 told the British public to rejoice. Mr. Churchill pointed out that a direct thrust across the English channel was coming in due time. He suggested that the day would be nearer as soon as it was evident that Germany was becoming "demoralized." The prime minister said that the Allied drive in Africa had as its primary objective the "exposure of the underbelly of the Axis, especially Italy, to heavy attacks."

The extent of the armada that had carried American and British forces to the shores of North Africa was disclosed by Oliver Lyttleton, British minister of production, who said that 500 transports and 350 warships had comprised the mammoth invasion fleet.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LA VALETTA, MALTA: British forces in Malta opened a new airdrome with ceremonies presided over by Viscount Gort, commander in chief. Lord Gort said he was looking forward to the day when the island which has withstood so many Axis aerial attacks would become an advanced base for an offensive against Italy in movements from North Africa.

HAVANA: President Fulgencio Batista of Cuba will pay an official visit to the United States, arriving in Washington December 8, it was announced here. The Cuban chief executive will confer with President Roosevelt and then visit various American cities. General Batista will make the trip on the invitation of President Roosevelt and will be a White House guest overnight.

DRAFT:
Inductions Soar

Induction of 18 and 19-year-olds into the nation's armed forces by January 1, 1943, appeared certain as the senate finally approved legislation lowering the selective service induction age. In order to fill military requirements up to the first of the year, local boards throughout the country indicated they would soon have to begin drafting childless married men.

Final impediment to the law's passage was hurdled when a group of senators decided not to press their attempt to require a full year's training for all the 18 and 19-year-olds before they could be sent into combat service overseas. The house had previously approved a measure eliminating this feature.

Meanwhile, selective service headquarters disclosed that local boards had been advised that "increasing demands of the armed forces require that a large number of men in essential activities who are liable for service be released for induction."

This meant that war plants would have to release key workers for the army and navy.

RUSSIAN FRONT:
Nazi Drives Stalled

Communiques from Moscow took on an increasing note of optimism as the Russians maintained that the German offensive against the Red lines from the Baltic to the Black sea had been smashed for the year.

Southeast of Nalchik where the German drive for the strategic Trans-Caucasian military highway had been stalled, the Russ defenders continued to repel attacks. Elsewhere in the Caucasus the Reds were holding the Nazis well in check. Soviet armies continued to keep a German force encircled in the mountainous vicinity of Tuapse, Black sea base, and thwarted every enemy attempt to break through.

The defenders of Stalingrad continued their heroic resistance. While small enemy detachments infiltrated from the south these were thrown back. Meanwhile Soviet troops northwest of the city continued to harass the Germans.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
MacArthur Pincer

Slam-bang warfare continued in the air and on the ground in the South Pacific, with American and Australian forces pressing the Japs hard on New Guinea and at Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands.

General MacArthur's headquarters reported that at Oivi on New Guinea, Allied forces were using pincer tactics to squeeze the Japs out. Australian columns had cut off a Japanese retreat by means of a flanking movement. The Japs' effort to cut their way through to the rear had been stopped by American troops flown by aerial transport to the vicinity of Buna, 55 miles northeast of the Oivi battleground in the Owen Stanley mountain area.

GEN. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR
. . Pincer squeezes Japs.

At Guadalcanal, American troops met enemy attempts to recapture Henderson airfield by an offensive that threw the Japs back several miles. An example of spectacular heroism in the Guadalcanal fighting was cited by a navy department release recounting the feat of Marine Pvt. Albert A. Schmid, whose companions in arms say he killed more than 200 Japs in a single night, while manning a machine gun.

From Washington came a navy communique announcing the sinking of seven more Jap ships in the southwest Pacific by American submarines.

U. S. ARMED FORCES:
To Total 9,700,000

Armed forces for the United States totaling 9,700,000 by the end of 1943 were envisioned by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt's estimates included an army of 7,500,000, a navy of 1,500,000 and marines and coast guard forces totaling 700,000.

The bulk of future additions to the military forces will go to the army, whose present strength is 4,500,000, the President pointed out. The navy will be augmented by 500,000 and the marine corps and coast guard by 300,000 men during the next 12 months.

On the basis of calculations that it requires nine workers to support one fighting man in the field, the President's estimates would mean that a working force of 87,300,000 men and women at home would be needed to back up the armed forces.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

MARSHA HUNT has learned how to find a movie actress in a big city. Recently she and Ann Rutherford were both in New York, and both on personal business trips, so they hadn't given the M-G-M office their addresses. So, though they wanted to meet, they couldn't locate each other. The day before returning to Hollywood for "The Human Comedy," Marsha, besieged by fans asking for autographs, asked one if he knew where Ann was staying. "Sure—right on the floor above you!" he replied.

And, speaking of autographs—Virginia Weidler's new picture, "The Youngest Profession," is about them. In it William Powell will appear as himself; he's Virginia's screen idol, and her efforts to get his autograph lead to a series of hilarious situations.

Success Story: in 1940 Margaret Hayes was voted the best artists' model, then the best photographers' model. She's made some pictures—had the feminine lead in "In Old Colorado" and a featured role in "New York Town," and Goldwyn picked her for a principal supporting role in "They Got Me Covered." Now she's in New York for three radio shows and a Broadway stage production!

MARGARET HAYES

Dick Powell teaches a class in navigation between his scenes in "True to Life" at Paramount. He's an expert yachtsman, and some of the younger members of the company who are preparing themselves for flying and marine service in the war asked him to do it.

Neither Claudette Colbert nor Rudy Vallee cares for eggs in the raw—but for a scene in "The Palm Beach Story" they each were to swallow three "prairie oysters," concoctions of raw eggs, worcestershire sauce, etc. The property man promised to fix up something that would look like the genuine article but avoid the raw egg difficulty. He did—but the substitute was apricots in root beer!

It looks as if Warner's "Air Force" might turn into one of those star-maker pictures. John Garfield and Harry Carey are the only time-tested stars of the production; the youngsters of whom Director Howard Hawks has hopes are Gig Young, John Ridgely, Arthur Kennedy, Charles Drake, Ray Montgomery, Ward Wood and James Brown. The first two have an edge on the others.

Arch Oboler, writer-producer of the weekly show "Lights Out," has a new book of radio plays, "Plays for Americans." As he's a top-notch writer for radio, aspirants can't do better than get a copy and study it. Sponsored by the Association for Education by Radio, the plays, through agreement with Oboler, are available to any group free of royalties for the duration of the war.

Jack Pearl used to sign his name to letters, and beneath it "World's Greatest Liar." Now it's changed to "World's Second Greatest Liar." In explanation Jack says, "I couldn't be champ with Adolf around." Phil Baker ends notes with "Bye-bye. Buy bonds!"

Brenda Marshall and Osa Massen, of "Background to Danger," each has a parent in a country occupied by the Axis. Miss Massen's mother, sister and brother are in Denmark. Miss Marshall's father was managing a plantation in Negros when the Japs moved in.

ODDS AND ENDS—Ida Lupino is probably the only stage or screen star who was born during an air raid—it happened in London during a Zeppelin raid, in World War I . . . George Raft has been dickering for a motorcycle; Warner Bros. isn't keen about his riding one, but he's got to have some way of getting to the studio . . . He's working in "Background for Danger"; if there's anything in a name the motorcycle ought to help get him in the mood . . . Judith Anderson has learned that the ambulance she donated to the British army is being used in Bristol; her brother, with the British forces, told her.

Second Front in Africa Points North to Italy

Underground Anti-Fascists in Italy Want Strong Brand of Democracy for Aiding the Allies; Seek U. S. Pledge.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N-W, Washington, D. C.

According to a number of people in Washington, of whom your correspondent is one, the most startlingly important event of the war may be taking place and nobody, including the enemy, will admit it. A second front has been opened, the first carefully planned and meticulously timed offensive against the Axis since the war started has begun in Africa. There are diplomatic developments as well as military which, some believe, indicate that the path to victory will lead through Rome.

Of course, you couldn't get even a whiff of official confirmation for such a presumptuous assumption from anyone higher than a first sergeant. Nevertheless, there seems to be quite a bit of circumstantial evidence to support the observation of such a development. At the same time certain happenings in the diplomatic field add their touch of verisimilitude to what the military might say was a bald and unwarranted, if not unconvincing statement.

Such military information as I might offer, which has not been a part of official statements, would not be wise to print. But it is permissible to recall that the Germans claim that the British have a million men under General Alexander's command in Africa. The official accounts of the number of American flown planes in almost continuous activity over a huge area indicate that the American air force in Egypt is not inconsiderable, even in these days of giant armies and armadas.

Apprehension in Tunisia

There are diplomatic reports of apprehension on the part of the populace of Tunisia, a vital strip of territory lying along the coast of the narrow waters that separate it from Sicily, the Axis stepping stone from Italy to Africa, which hint that activities may extend even further west than Libya.

These are some of the outward signs which are there for all to see.

From a military standpoint Italy is the weak sister of the Axis partnership. From the standpoint of anti-Nazi-Fascist internal subversive organization she is perhaps the strongest ally for the United Nations. An African offensive might logically end in an invasion of Italy.

The recognition of these anti-Fascist underground organizations as important elements in the general Allied offensive against the Axis can be taken as a straw showing which way the tide of war may be flowing. And they are being recognized.

One very significant development was a recent statement from London, which at first blush simply seemed to dampen any hopes that the king of Italy might be a force in bringing about a separate peace with Italy. But this negative suggestion, when taken together with certain other indications, has quite another meaning. The London report indicated that the king was no longer the "prisoner of Mussolini" he had been pictured, but really the friend of Fascism. This seemingly gratuitous statement may well have been offered as a piece of firing data for the diplomatic marksmen indicating that they must change their sights. And an inkling of just what must be done in order to obtain the support of the elements in Italy which can be of service to the Allied cause comes from an objective report on the underground in Italy. This report, originating with anti-Fascist sources in the United States, clearly analyzes who these people are, what they have already accomplished and what must be done to get their co-operation. A realistic program is laid down by inference which will not be at all palatable to the conservative or the conventional masters of official intrigue among the United Nations.

According to this report from anti-Fascist sources the underground in Italy is now composed largely of young men, born and educated in Fascism, who are working entirely from within its framework. They are members of the party because they have known no other party and no other government through their mature years. They are members of the armed forces because they are loyal to Italy.

According to the report which I mention, made by supposedly authentic and authorized representatives of the anti-Fascists, the underground movement in Italy is powerful and effective; it has accomplished a weakening of civilian and military morale; publishes a large and efficient anti-Fascist press; has organized political meetings and combat groups in nearly every Italian town; has brought about unity for the first time in Italian history between the working class and the intellectuals. It has caused general inefficiency in the army, caused sabotage in the campaigns of Greece, Albania and Libya and effectively sabotaged war industries.

The members of these groups, the young men who grew up under Fascism, are not revolting to bring about a status quo ante—they are revolting against the status quo for definite aims. They want a new democratic order.

Italian Anti-Fascist Demands

The members of the Italian underground are thoroughly determined to overthrow Fascism wherever it exists. But they demand a concrete, complete, sincere statement of the program of the anti-Fascist forces before they will join them, since they risk everything in revolt and think they might simply gain new chains for old if they faced a typical political peace.

They want, specifically, a clear-cut statement of the peace aims of the United Nations. They want these aims stated without equivocation or couched in the fine generalities of the Atlantic Charter. And they want to be sure that they have the guarantee of the United States as the administrator of those terms with freedom to build the kind of an Italy they want.

There is something of a parallel between these Italian demands and the revelations, or what the conservative diplomats would call the indiscretions, of Wendell Willkie when he called for assurances of the non-imperialistic designs of the United Nations.

Willkie, as is his wont, used a blunderbus instead of a scalpel to obtain his end, but he did clear up the atmosphere on the subject of what Russia and China thought about the need of extending the scope of the Atlantic Charter. The realistic Jan Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, echoed this sentiment a few days after Willkie's report to the nation. Others are repeating the demand for a full statement of peace aims.

Strong Brand of Democracy

Another point upon which some of our allies, and particularly our potential allies in Italy, want recognized by us and emphasized is the belief, many times stated but very seldom elaborated, namely, that we don't expect to go back to things as they were.

They expect democracy, but they make it plain they expect it to be economic as well as political, and they want a brand that may prove stronger medicine than everyone might care to take. The groups in Italy, like those in other countries, have forged their political philosophies in the fire of persecution.

The revolt against the physical brutalities of totalitarianism is likely to carry them far in the opposite direction. They demand an ideal of democracy hard to attain.

It becomes, therefore, a vital task of the American statesman, in assuming the necessary leadership of the United Nations as their supreme physical effort approaches, to formulate a post-war world peace ideal. If, as seems possible, the second front will touch Italy, home of Fascism, before it reaches the Nazi borders, the attitude of Italy's anti-Fascists must be clearly understood and taken into account.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—News of our participation in the Egyptian offensive against Rommel has not been highly personalized, but an occasional passing mention of Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton makes up for the general lack of a dramatis personae. He's a whole cast of characters all by himself, as he commands our air co-operation in the attack—with the widest and readiest grin, one of the stiffest wallops and unquestionably the most flexible vocabulary in the army. He swears in four languages, with rare improvisation and in a rasping voice which is said to be miraculously effective in hopping up fighting men. He is the commander of the U.S.A. Middle Eastern air forces, transferred from India last July.

General Brereton Supplies Complete Dramatis Personae

One might call him the Larry MacPhail of the Army, as he is both zestful and exultant with a fight on, or the chance for a fight anywhere in the offing. He particularly seemed to enjoy commanding America's first offensive in the war in the Far East. That was on April 2. Heading the bombing mission from India to the Japanese-held Andaman Islands, he jockeyed his B-17 right into the thick of the fracas and by all accounts had the happiest day of his life, as the Japanese were given a handsome pasting.

He hit the road to glory after a stiff jolt. He had just been transferred to the command of Clark field in the Philippines when the Japanese came, with no time to get things air-shape. The blasting of his planes and men in the hopelessly uneven contest was terrific and General MacArthur, ordering no more sacrifices, sent him to Australia with his air force and then to India. From his new base, he swarmed all over the battle area, fighting with General Chennault's Flying Tigers and, all in all, made a magnificent comeback.

From Pittsburgh, he went to the Naval academy in 1907 and transferred to the signal corps, our fledgling air service, a year after his graduation in 1911. He fought in the air at Verdun, was shot down at St. Mihiel and came out of the war with the Distinguished Service cross, the Purple Heart, the Legion of Honor ribbon and the Croix de Guerre. Last September, in honor of his exploits in the Pacific, there was added to these the Distinguished Flying cross.

PAUL C. SMITH, quitting the OWI to join the marines, hits this enterprising outfit with a fast running start and should catch their cadence nicely. He is the young speed-ball newspaper careerist of San Francisco, a West coast marvel of the last few years, who not only supercharged the San Francisco Chronicle, as its general manager at the age of 29, but outshone many of the graybeards of the town in labor mediation, civic enterprise and battles for the public weal in general.

Halley's Comet of Newspaperdom Is Now Leatherneck

He joined the OWI in December, 1941, and became chief of its news bureau last August. It was to be expected that he would join the marines. He saw many of the global aspects of this war long before it started. The marines go places, globally, and that's always his big idea.

Mr. Smith, the Halley's comet of recent newspaper decades, never went to college. From his take-off at Seattle, his home town, he worked in lumber camps, coal mines and on farms in the northern United States and Canada and later formulated and applied much of this experience in newspaper work.

In 1928, when he was 20 years old, he made a few cautious plays in the market, did well enough, and ventured into investment banking in San Francisco and New York. This turned him toward financial writing and his first connection with the San Francisco Chronicle. He became its financial editor and its general manager in 1937.

In 1938, Mr. Smith toured Europe with his friend Herbert Hoover, and returned, in March, with some ominous prophecies. He said war was surely coming "in from one to five years." The United States, he said, "will pay the price along with the rest of the world. It is no longer a question of whether or not we pay, but a simple question of how much." An interesting forecast in view of what the marines are paying in Guadalcanal. Mr. Smith was one of the few journalists who saw and reported what was happening in France.

TO YOUR Good Health

BY DR. JAMES W. BARTON

HIDDEN HUNGER

Some months ago the Canadian Medical association, with funds provided by insurance companies, published a little book called "Food and Health," a copy of which was to reach every home in Canada. This little book told of food values, the needs of the body for various kinds of food, the cost of an "all round" meal for families of various sizes and other useful information about food and health.

Dr. Barton

The National Nutrition program, through the United States Federal Security agency, includes a motion picture on nutrition entitled "Hidden Hunger." "We all have a job to do these days and part of our share in the nation's wartime effort begins with our choice of foods."

A recent nation-wide survey showed that two out of five of us suffer from hidden hunger—live at half speed, because we only feed parts of our body and let the other parts starve. The body needs 40 different food elements to feed its various cells—some elements to feed muscles, others to feed the brain, others for the cells by which we see, feel and hear.

I will not reveal the plot of the film story by which we will all be taught "to use food wisely and thereby stop extravagant waste of our abundant food stuffs and at the same time get ourselves an equal chance for health the way we got ourselves an equal chance to vote."

"If the American people will only buy and cook well-balanced meals those now suffering from hidden hunger (not the hunger coming from an empty stomach but the hunger in a body that has been fed the wrong kind of food) will be brought back to health and efficiency."

What is the amount and the kinds of food a man should eat every day to be hale and hearty?

"One egg, one pint of milk (three-fourths to one quart for growing children); two vegetables (green, leafy or yellow) and a potato; an orange or tomato juice and another fruit, three or four slices of the right kind of bread (whole wheat or enriched white); two tablespoons of butter or margarine, and meat."

What Causes Bad Breath?

A few years ago I followed a controversy as to whether bad breath was due to food particles left between the teeth or to some disturbance in the stomach and intestines.

It is admitted that bad breath can be caused by mouth and nose conditions such as infected teeth and tonsils, and by the dry form of catarrh. But what causes bad breath when mouth, nose and throat are free of infection?

Drs. Burrill B. Crohn and Rudolph Drosd, New York, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, state that heretofore patients with bad breath have consulted nose and throat specialists and dentists who searched for decaying teeth, infected gums, and infections of throat and sinus. The teeth, the gums, the tonsils and sinuses are the cause at times only and cases due to nose and throat conditions are becoming less in number due to better knowledge of the importance of a healthy mouth, throat and nose.

Experiments were made as to the best method or methods to prevent the odor of garlic on the breath. These research workers found that it was not the mouth nor the stomach that was responsible for the odor of garlic on the breath but the intestines, particularly the small intestine into which the partially digested food is poured from the stomach.

Why is the small intestine responsible for bad odors on the breath, because oil of peppermint and oil of wintergreen were also used in the tests and these two oils acted exactly the same as garlic?

These research workers state that halitosis is due to the fact that fat foods eaten are not handled properly or are not handled completely by the liver and it is these incompletely digested fat foods, lying in the small intestine, that cause the odor. They point out that patients with peptic ulcer taking much milk daily often have a bad breath. "If these patients are given a diet of cereal, eggs, and lean meat, the odor disappears."

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is it harmful to eat a raw potato every day?

A.—A raw potato will do no harm if eaten daily. One raw vegetable or fruit daily is recommended by food experts.

Q.—What causes me to become exhausted easily?

A.—Two commonest causes of exhaustion are: (a) nervousness or emotional upsetments, worries and conflicts. (b) some low infection, teeth, tonsils, sinus or intestines.

Wrong Woman

By R. H. WILKINSON

Associated Newspapers.
WNU Features.

IT WAS Candida's idea to be married in England. Every member of her family except herself had been born in a little town called Laurelheath, so it occurred to her that being married there would give her a distinction that the others didn't have.

Johnny was wholly in favor of the idea.

So they set sail on the Urbantania—Candida and her mother, and Johnny and his aunt, Mrs. Gill. Everything was serene when the Urbantania left the docks in New York. Everything remained serene until that evening. That evening the wedding party found that two other people were assigned to the same table in the dining salon. The two others were Mrs. Jasper Jummel and her daughter, Lita.

Lita was a blonde with lustrous blue eyes and a perfectly featured face. Johnny decided she was about the most beautiful woman he had ever seen.

After dinner, in the main salon there was dancing, and Johnny, out of sheer courtesy, naturally danced with Lita. She was personified rhythm in his arms, she was an electric current that warmed his blood and caused his nerves to tingle. He was glad when the dance was over.

The next day Johnny was taking a constitutional around the deck and he met Lita. The wind was in her hair and the wind was whipping her white silk dress close about her body. He stopped and talked with her, acutely conscious of her eyes and her smile and the warm flush of health on her cheeks.

That night at dinner Johnny tried not to notice that every time he looked at Lita she was watching him. He promised himself that after dinner he wouldn't dance with her. But he did. Twice. After the second dance he pleaded a headache and went to his cabin. He lay on his bed and thought. He asked himself what would be wrong with a harmless flirtation. Lita, of course, meant nothing to him. When they reached Liverpool he'd never see her again. Candida was the girl he loved.

He wondered if he could carry on a harmless flirtation without hurting Candida, without making his interest in Lita seem obvious. He decided that he could.

The next night he was halfway through a dance with Lita when suddenly he stopped. He took her by the arm and without explanation led her through a door onto the deck. There was a moon, but deep shadows lay beneath the superstructure near the bow. He led her toward the shadows.

"Lita!" he said huskily, and took her in his arms. She yielded. The kiss lasted an eternity. They broke away at sound of voices close by. One of the speakers was Candida's mother. Johnny grasped Lita by the hand and dragged her swiftly away. They had not, he was sure, been observed.

Two nights later Johnny again yielded to temptation. He made a secret rendezvous with Lita. With her in his arms it was easy to forget. He said things that he knew he didn't mean. He told her that he loved her. He told her she had given life a meaning. He told her that he didn't want to go on living without her.

Lita reciprocated nobly. She gave back answers of a like nature, only differently put. They kept it up for an hour or more, babbling nonsense to each other, assuring each other that no one else existed in the world.

Repetition began to rob the conversation of its savor. There were long pauses, while each tried hard to conjure a new angle. The conversation that had started off with delightful little intimacies, began to pall. Johnny became annoyed. It occurred to him that it was a pity they couldn't talk about something else. It flashed across his mind that the guy who married Lita would have a pretty dull time, if this were the extent of her intelligence. He began to think of some excuse to get away. A couple of words with Candida at the moment would be refreshing.

Descending the companionway stairs, Johnny cursed himself for being seven kinds of a fool. Now the possibility that he hadn't succeeded in keeping his flirtation from appearing obvious, struck him brutally. What if Candida had noticed? What if she . . . He dared not think of the possibilities.

Two minutes later he knocked on Candida's door. She opened it and came out into the corridor. "Darling, what's happened? You look—queer." "I feel queer," Johnny laughed. He took her into his arms. You can cure me though—by assuring me that you still love me."

"Silly! Of course I still love you!" Hungrily he held her tight against him. He couldn't see her eyes, which was just as well, for there were tears in Candida's eyes. She was glad now—oh, so glad—that she had relied on her instinctive judgment of women, rather than carry on and make a scene and spoil both their lives.

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good heath is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

BEST WISHES AND GOD SPEED

There leaves our midst next week a man, a minister of the gospel, whose presence will be missed in the church, the home, the shops, and on the streets of our city. His smile, congeniality, and Irish wit made him a welcome conversationalist wherever he went.

Over two score years ago, he began his early ministerial career, in the hills of Chilton County, and from that day to now, has been found preaching, teaching, and ministering to struggling and needy humanity wherever he found it, regardless of race, color, or creed, in th echurch and out of the church as well. All have been impressed by the sincerity and simplicity of the words of this emissary of God, and after all was his preaching not modeled after that of the World's Saviour?

This good man, as the Pastor of the Methodist Church in Clanton, has been with us for two years and we feel that the community and all who knew him, have been benefited by his having come this way, and we trust that the community to which he goes, will be as good to him as he was to the community whence he leaves.

His is a sacrificial life, giving much and asking little, and we hope somewhere down life's way, all that he has given will be returned manyfold. May he be endowed with a growing power, a heavenly faith, and an ever brightening hope.

Our best wishes to Brother T. C. Casaday and may God speed him on his way.

IN MEMORIAM.

Last Saturday night, Nov. 7, Brother J. E. Lett went home "to be with the Lord." I knew him not only as a brother, but also, as an intimate friend. He will live in my memory as an example of steadfastness and faithfulness. He was always in his place at the appointed time as long as his health permitted him to be. He will be missed by all of us. But we comfort our hearts by the truth that there shall be "A present in whose reign no grief shall gnaw the heart, and never shall a tender tie be broken." Our friend's last words to me were: "Meet me in the Home Beyond." The words of William Cullen Bryant are a fitting tribute to this man of God

"So live, that when thy summons, the innumerable caravan, moves to that mysterious realm, where each shall take. His chamber in the silent halls of death, Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night, Scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave, Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Letter To The Editor:

To the fans and supporters of football at the Chilton County High School the writer would like to offer an explanation for some of the criticisms and dissatisfaction about the football schedule for this season.

On December 8, 1941, I along with Mr. Spicer, began working on the foot ball schedule for this season. We offered games to the following schools: Montevallo, Pell City, Selma, Shades-Cahaba, Centerville, Wetumpka, Holtville, and Isabella was already on our schedule with a two year contract.

All these teams accepted the dates offered them except Selma and Wetumpka. Selma wanted to wait until later in the year to schedule their game. Wetumpka said that they were not sure they were to have a team this year.

Eight or ten attempts were made during the year to schedule the Selma game, and when Selma finally made up its mind our dates had all been filled. Then Montevallo and Columbiana discontinued football for this year, and Starke school was dropped from the athletic association leaving three open dates on our schedule.

Something like sixty or seventy letters were written as well as several telephone calls made to the following schools in an attempt to give this community a creditable foot ball schedule: Leeds High School, Line-ville, Hayneville, Demopolis, Notsulga, Auburn High, Fort Deposit, Greenville, Tallassee, Tuskegee, Hale County High, Blount County High, Alexander City, Dora High, Elba High, Prattville, Clay County High, Carrollton, Aliceville, Wedowee, and Lanett. Some of these schools had dropped foot ball for this year, some could not accept on account of lack of transportation, some did not have open dates, and others wanted to play these games on their home fields for small cash guarantees.

Clanton was fortunate this year in having all its boys return to school that were foot ball material: Some schools lost much of their material by graduation last spring, and others lost by their boys enlisting in the armed forces of the United States. Holtville lost five of its best foot ball prospects for this year to the Navy last spring, and the high school at Dadeville had eleven of its football squad enlist in the navy during the spring and summer. I do not mean to insinuate that Chilton County boys are less patriotic than other boys from other parts of the state, but I am offering this as one explanation as to why some high schools that have had strong teams in the past, did not have average teams this year.

To our friends, who pay at the gate, and thereby make our athletic program possible I feel are entitled to this explanation.

Patterson Hicks,
Principal Chilton County
High School.

MAPLE SPRINGS

We were glad to see a large crowd out Sunday. Several visitors were present whom we invite back again

The committee on selecting the church pews together with the pastor is making a business trip to Birmingham this week in behalf of the pews. They will also take in part of the State Baptist Convention while there.

Approximately two hundred twenty five dollars have been pledged on the buying of the Church pews by members and friends, and about one hundred fifty dollars have been paid in. We have never seen better cooperation than we are having concerning this worthy drive. May we say to all members who do not get to attend regular, if you have been waiting for a chance to make a contribution to a worthy cause now is the time.

We will probably begin in the near future and give the names of all those who have contributed to this cause, and the amount given. We can only use a few names at one time, because of space, and will only furnish this record as the money is paid in to the treasurer. Watch the paper for your name. You will get a thrill, because all will be mentioned from the least to the greatest.

The W. M. U. will meet at the Church Thursday of this week at 3 p.m. All the ladies are urged to be present.

The Rev. Charlie Haggard will preach here the fifth Sunday and also Sunday night.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our friends for every kindness shown our husband and father during his long illness. Especially do we thank all those so attentive in his last few days. Also to all the friends of Pleasant Valley community for the beautiful floral offering. We wish to thank Mr. Martin for his kindness. About Coffee Rationing

War Ration Book No. 1 — now used to ration sugar and about to be used to ration coffee—turned out to be one of the most important bits of wartime paper yet issued by the government.

In a statement pointing out that these books must be obtained before December 15, the State OPA office said Ration Book No. 1 was the "basic rationing document" and would be used in the issuance of War Ration Book No. 2.

For one reason or another, hundreds of people do not now have Book No. 1, the OPA said. Many did not bother to register because they were not sugar users, while others were denied books because of excess sugar stocks on hand.

But between now and December 15 these persons must obtain Book No. 1 if they expect to qualify for Book No. 2. The second book is expected to be used to ration meats.

"Every consumer must register for Book No. 1 with the local War Price and Rationing Board which serves the area in which he regularly resides." the OPA said "And this must be done by Dec. 15.,,

After that date, Ration Book No. 1 will be used only to new born babies, persons just entering the country, discharged members of the armed services, and persons confined in hospitals and other institutions, and hence unable to register by the deadline.

Babies born after Dec. 15 must be registered for Book No. 1 within a month after their birth.

The American History class had charge of chapel on Wednesday, Armistice Day. Maretta Lang announced the program and read an essay on Armistice Day written by Constance Hathaway. Scripture was read by Jesse Lee Lang. William Childress gave the preamble to the Constitution. Frank Porter led in the salute to the flag. Troy Davis read the Governor's Armistice Day proclamation. Various patriotic songs were sung. At eleven o'clock, while the Congregational Church bell tolled for a minute, all in chapel bowed their heads in silent prayer.

For morning chapel on Tuesday, November 10, the Bible class taught by Miss Annie Campbell gave a very charming little play written by the class around the story of Ruth. The eight scenes were laid in the land of Moab, by the town well at Bethlehem, in the fields of Boaz, at the home of Naomi and at the city gate in Bethlehem. The colorful costumes were most effective against the simple background. Mabel Wood took the part of Ruth; Maretta Lang, that of Naomi; Inez Littleton, that of Orpah; Frank Porter, Boaz; Billy Childress, the head reaper; Edward Underwood, kinsman; Mary Margaret Mims, Willodean Minor and Jewell Rollins were women at the well; Jesse Lee Lang and Don Primm, with Billy Childress, were reaper and elders.

OUR CLASS PICNIC

One afternoon at school we wrote letters asking our parents to come to the P. T. A. several came, and luckily we won the prize offered by the P. T. A. to the class having the most parents present.

Monday after the P. T. A. meeting we discussed ways in which we might use our half holiday prize. We wanted to use it in the way that would give the most fun to all the class. We finally decided we would have a picnic on the lot beside Betty Jo Taylor's house.

Committees were chosen to write out courtesy and safety rules for the occasion, to decide on and list games to be played, to find the prices of buns and weiners; to see after carrying balls and ropes, and to see that the picnic lot was left in order.

We bought buns from James Bowling's brother and wieners from John Broadhead's daddy. Each of us carried a bottle drink and anything else we wanted to add to the buns and weiners.

That a happy class we were November 6th We could scarcely wait until 11:30 came, but at last it did. We formed in our regular squads and walked out to the lot we had chosen. After putting our drinks on ice, Lois Parrish, Douglas Plyler, Billie Ann Lowery, and Clarence Sparks introduced the members of their various squads to Mrs. Taylor.

We played several games with ropes and balls while Charles Smith and Fred Clackler made the roasting pit ready. Then we had all gathered around the pit. John Will Pitts offered thanks for us. We roasted the wieners by squads as the pit would not accomodate all the class at one time.

The picnic lot was beautiful with pine, walnut, and other trees under which we rested after lunch. Then we began sliding down the hill on pinestraw. What fun we had!

After playing about on the soft, pretty green lawn, we formed in groups for some more games. While we were in the midst of this fun, Mrs. Taylor came out with her camera and snapped two pictures of us.

This class picnic is one we shall long remember. Derl Davis expressed thanks for the entire class to Mrs. Taylor for her kindness to us.

2,500 RADIO COURSE OFFERED BY NAVY

Men between 17 and 50 who can pass the Eddy Test are being offered an eight-month course in radio engineering, valued at a $2,500 scholarship, along with a petty officer rating, paying as high as $96 a month while in school and extra money allowances for those with dependents, according to Chief Petty Officer M. H. Potter of the Navy Recruiting Station in Montgomery, Alabama.

It is preferable that applicants be high school graduates and have radio or electrical experience, but those who are not high school graduates may pass if they have studied since leaving school.

High School graduates who have studied algebra and physics and men with at least one year in college should be able to pass the examination (Eddy Test), despite the fact that they have had no radio or electrical experience.

There is no obligation to enlist for those who take the examination, and those who are interested should wait, because the examination pa must be sent to Chicago for gradi the Recruiting Officer said.

Examinations may be taken any at the Navy Recruiting Station in New Post Office Building in Mo gomery.

Gadsden has a traffic safety ca paign on for November. East Stars are taking a prominent part.

Christ Episcopal Church, Mo was consecrated in 1840, 102 years a The bell used then is still heard day.

"I just dropped in to tell you we boys in the A.E.F. are grateful to the folks back home who are doing everything possible to help war production. Everything that helps war production helps us at the front."

By helping to keep long distance telephone lines clear for war calls, you help speed war production. War calls are crowding telephone lines — especially the "long haul" lines which are the most heavily loaded with war business. The greater the distance you talk, the greater the likelihood of delaying vital war calls. To keep telephone lines clear for our armed forces, war industries and civilian defense agencies, is our job here at home.

We cannot add new lines because materials are more urgently needed to equip our fighters. Therefore, to make more room on crowded long distance lines for important war business, telephone users are urged to make only absolutely essential calls and to be brief in all conversations.

War takes no holiday, so please do not use "long distance" to exchange Thanksgiving greetings.

Women AT WAR

Janey

Janey closed the bedroom door and locked it. Alone at last! She threw back her head and heaved a deep sigh. Then she peeked out of the corner of her eye at the mirror to see whether she really did look like Hedy LaMarr. Quite a lot, she decided.

And now to business. She drew forth from the bottom of her top bureau drawer the sheet of pink writing-paper and the envelope that she had been saving for this day. She sat down at the table by the window and dipped the pen into the bottle of green ink that her sister Rose was such a pig about. She wrote, with beautiful arabesques, "Dear Mr. Morgenthau," and held her head back to admire this effort of the best pupil in penmanship class.

"Here are my stamps for a bond. $18.75. I started last Christmas when I got $3.00. Not counting 50 cents, I have earned all the rest, working one or more days a week at a local grocery store, and I'm quite proud to say I worked hard to get it."

Janey stared out of the window at Peterson's house and beyond at the big yard where the kids were playing football. She held her pen elegantly in air.

"Sitting here looking out the window, I see a peaceful little town, and I wonder how the world can be in such a turmoil and the people of this world can have such hate for their fellow men. So I'm proud to send these stamps because I know I'm helping to make the whole world peaceful again like our little town."

She signed her name with an important flourish, not forgetting a conspicuous "Miss" in front of the "Janey." After she had sealed the letter she went on staring out of the window. It really was awfully peaceful. Overhead she heard a plane go humming by through the sunny afternoon air.

Then the voice of her best friend, Betty, called from outside—"Janey!" In an instant Janey was on her feet and tearing downstairs and out. She was not Hedy LaMarr nor a deep philosopher any more, but exactly twelve years old.

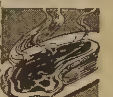
Potatoes, Teamed With Eggs, Are a Delicious Meat-Saver
(See Recipes Below.)

Meat Savers



Voluntary meat rationing is already in process. This period before the actual rationing starts—and limits—each person to 2½ pounds of meat a week is the time for every Mrs. America to take stock and plan for the days ahead—days when she neatly tucks her meat ration book beside her sugar ration books and goes to market.

Sugar rationing has been a challenge, but a challenge which homemakers have met. Meat rationing will be even more of a challenge—for many are the homes where meat has been set on the table twice and even three times a day. But this challenge, too, will be met, for there are many ways of tiding over the days when meat supplies will be low.

Let's first look at the situation from the nutritional standpoint, for good health and well-being is a first goal. Meat is primarily preferred because it is what is known as a complete protein—containing all different types of proteins that the body needs for building and repairing down-and-out tissues.

The sources for protein you'll tap first are fish and fowl, cheese and milk. We have excellent supplies of all these so there will be no excuse for missing out on your quota.

Meat is excellent for its minerals, but the meat-savers mentioned above are also famous for their minerals—calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Now, let's get down to the business of serving these foods appetizingly and attractively. Fall is the season for many kinds of fish—and your butcher will help you out on what's a real bargain. Canned fish is now somewhat scarce, but fresh-frozen fillets are easy-to-use items, minus the cooking odor which many find objectionable. Try this idea:

Fillets in Tomato Sauce.
(Serves 6 to 8)

2 pounds fish fillets (halibut, perch, pike, whitefish, salmon)
2 cups tomato pulp
1 cup water
6 whole cloves
2 bay leaves
6 peppercorns
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar

This Week's Menu.
*Idaho Suzettes
Stewed Tomatoes
Shredded Lettuce, Raisin, Apple Salad
Whole-Wheat Bread
Caramel Bavarian Cream
Cookies Beverage

Place fish on a greased baking sheet and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake or broil 15 to 20 minutes in a hot (425-degree) oven until fillets are cooked and delicately browned. Make sauce by boiling pulp with spices for 20 minutes or until thickened and well blended. Add salt and sugar. Mix and strain. Pour over fish and let stand in oven 5 to 7 minutes with sauce before serving.

Baked shrimps in a rich dressing are a boon to any menu and pick-up for any appetite:

Baked Shrimp Salad.
(Serves 6)

1½ pounds fresh cooked or canned shrimps
1 cup finely diced celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1½ tablespoons chopped pimiento
Salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise
Buttered bread crumbs

Toss together all ingredients, lightly so as not to break shrimps. Place in buttered shells or individual casserole dishes. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until the crumbs are browned. Garnish with lemon curls and serve immediately.

Cheese will be a blessing for many of the days on which you find yourself short and slim on meats. It's easy to cook if you do just two things: cook it slowly and cook it over indirect heat. There are no strings attached to cheese cooked this way:

Cheese-Macaroni Loaf.
(Serves 6)

3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1 cup grated American cheese
1 cup milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup macaroni, broken
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon minced onion
⅓ cup pimiento, minced
Salt and pepper

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water about 15 minutes or until tender. Rinse in cold water. Cook onion in butter. Beat yolks, fold in all remaining ingredients, and last mix in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

Eggs snuggling in the flaky white folds of the baked potato are a smart suppertime item—and an excellent meat stretcher. This is the way to do it:

Idaho Suzettes.
(Serves 6)

6 medium-sized Idaho potatoes
⅓ cup hot milk
2 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons buttered crumbs
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon grated cheese
6 eggs

Select medium-sized potatoes, scrub and bake at 450 degrees. When done, remove a piece of skin from side of each potato to make it boat-shaped. Scoop out carefully and mash potato thoroughly. Add butter, salt, pepper and hot milk and mix thoroughly. Pile mixture lightly back into shells, refilling almost to top. Break an egg into each nest of potatoes, season, and sprinkle with buttered crumbs mixed with cheese. Bake in a slow (250-300-degree) oven until egg is set and lightly browned. This takes about six minutes.

Lynn Chambers can tell you how to dress up your table for family dinner or festivities, give you menus for your parties or tell you how to balance your meals in accordance with nutritional standards. Just write to her, explaining your problem, at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your answer.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: The question is being asked these days as to how much meat will actually be allowed per person in the civilian Share-the-Meat program. The answer is 2½ pounds, which means meat as it is passed over the counter to you by the butcher—including meat, bone, gristle and fat.

Meats with little waste include the highly nutritious cuts like liver, heart, kidneys, sweetbreads and brains. Canned meat, sausage, scrapple, souse and similar products will not be subject to restrictions.

Fall fruit specials still include apples, grapes, pears, and delightful persimmons — good for canning or for puddings. Cranberries are brightening counters and menus.

Squash, pumpkin and sweet potatoes are holding their own, and here and there peek spinach, broccoli and brussels sprouts.

With less foods to choose, the smart homemaker will season to the best of her ability those she has. There is mustard grown here in our own country, and paprika, too. Cayenne from Louisiana, and chili, American grown, are earning a fine place on the cook's spice shelf.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The government's goal is to produce synthetic rubber at a rate of more than 800,000 tons per year by the end of 1943.

Even without a war program requiring tremendous quantities of rubber, the U. S. used 648,000 tons of rubber in 1940.

Any tire made in the last two or three years is good for eight to ten years if not worn out in service.

In 1933, 900 farm tractors were sold with rubber tires and 3,000 steel wheeled tractors were changed over to rubber. Six years later 161,500 rubber tired tractors were bought by American farmers and in addition 45,300 were converted to rubber wheels.

Following a steadily advancing position, tire life in the U. S. has roughly doubled in each of the past decades.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

MOTIVES THAT STRENGTHEN FAMILY LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 2:1-4; Joshua 24:14, 15; Ephesians 5:28-31; 6:1-4.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love never faileth.—I Corinthians 13:8.

Last week we saw the things which mar the life of the family, now we turn to those things which give strength to the home and to daily life. This is a lesson much needed just now when so much of our normal home life is thrown out of joint.

We begin at the right place when we say that there must be a

I. Recognition of God in the Home (Exod. 2:1-4; Josh. 24:14, 15).

Failure at this point is without question the great mistake of our day. Christianity touches every phase of life, but nowhere is its blessed influence of greater importance than in the home.

Our lesson suggests that this is to be done in two ways in our homes.

1. By Faith in God (Exod. 2:1-4). The story of the birth of the babe who was to be Moses, possibly the greatest civic, social and religious leader of all time, reminds us that the Jewish people, who had found favor in the eyes of the Pharaohs in Joseph's time, were now being persecuted. A decree had gone out that all boys were to be destroyed at birth.

Here were two parents faced with the awful fact that their baby boy was condemned to death. Did they weep in fear and despair? No, they trusted God and sent the little one forth on a venture of faith, the charming story of which follows the verses of our lesson. God honored their faith by using their enemies to serve them.

2. Service for God (Josh. 24:14, 15). Joshua, who followed Moses as the God-appointed leader of Israel, was giving his last admonition to his people. He knew how they had repeatedly turned from God in unbelief and sin; yes, that even now some were worshiping false gods.

He pleads with them to turn to the one true God, but notice that his plea is made effective by the fact that he and his house were serving the Lord. Every man who has a position of leadership in this world is responsible for the use of that place of power, as a testimony for God. Now and then we hear of a high public official in our own land who loves and serves Christ in sincerity, and our hearts rejoice. The faith of a whole nation may thus be strengthened.

Every one of us has a sphere of influence, and our family life counts for or against God in our own community and among our own friends.

The members of a family that recognize God have a high

II. Regard for One Another in the Home (Eph. 5:28-31; 6:1-4).

It is pure hypocrisy for the family to parade an outward show of religion which does not effectively touch the relationships within the home. Incidentally, it is the kind of hypocrisy which is strikingly ineffective—men see through it too easily.

What then does Christianity do for the home itself? It determines, directs, sweetens—yes, glorifies the relation between

1. Husband and Wife (Eph. 5:28-31). This passage puts marriage on the highest plane, comparing it to the relationship between Christ and the church. Thus marriage is the joining of man and wife in a sacred union which calls forth love in its highest and noblest sense.

This means that the husband cherishes his wife as his own body, against which no man would do any harm, and for which he makes every possible provision for its comfort, health, usefulness and attractiveness. Such love between parents will lead the entire home life along in a serene, happy and wholesome way. It will not only double the joy, but will give strength in the hour of sorrow, dividing the griefs and burdens of life.

It will set the pattern for the right relation between

2. Parents and Children (Eph. 6:1-4). The first, and one might almost say the only, law of childhood is obedience. It is God's way to joy and a satisfying life experience for the child in the Christian home. The command to obey carries with it the understanding that the parents are "in the Lord." What father or mother is competent to direct a child apart from faith in Christ?

Notice too, that the parent has an obligation to deal intelligently and kindly with the child. We need a great deal of improvement, and perhaps instruction, at that point. Authority asking obedience is necessary, but it can be wise and kind.

Above all, there is to be a divine nurture, a guiding of the tender child life in the ways of God. Here is life's greatest opportunity and its mightiest challenge. How surprising that fathers (and mothers) who are looking for the greatest measure of usefulness to their generation fail to see it in the privilege they have to rear intelligent, godly children.

HOOK BURLAP SQUARES
HEM AND THEN SEW TOGETHER

HERE is a hooked hearth rug that may some day grow up to room size. So far every female member of the family has hooked at least one square, and the males are all represented by materials from cast-off suits, socks and sweaters. The turquoise flowers and red cherries in the alternate squares are from dyed pieces of the old cream colored wool blankets.

Twelve-inch squares of burlap overcast around the edge made the foundation pieces. Patterns for the repeat design were cut from paper and the burlap was marked by drawing around these with wax crayon. Loops of fabric strips were drawn through with a steel rug hook. Red was used for the curved lines shown at the upper left. Tones of brown for the flower and gray for the cherry background. Mixed colors for the rest of the design.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has prepared a special pattern for the rug in today's sketch with detailed directions for beginners. So, even if you have never made a hooked rug, you can start now making squares for a rug of any size you wish. Book 7 in the series of homemaking booklets contains 31 of these sketches with instruction text; also descriptions of the series. Send your order to:

Treat Constipation This Gentler Way!

Many folks say that almost as bad as constipation are harsh cathartics and purges. That's because many medicinal laxatives work this way: they either prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body.

Now comes news of a gentler and pleasanter way of treating constipation, for the millions of people with normal intestines whose trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. This way is by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, and drinking plenty of water. ALL-BRAN, unlike many medicinal laxatives, acts principally on the contents of the colon and helps you to have easy, normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, better see your doctor.

THE DEFENSE COURSES AND THEIR RELATION TO COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

There have been four Defense Courses started in the County as follows:

1. Pork Production. This class an enrollment of 34 very active members who are working with a desire to Boycot any further advance of the pork shortage in their homes. The teacher of this class, Rev. Bennie Sanders, has been an example in the production of hogs that furnish the home meat supply. In this class it has been brought out that every meal in the home has pork in one or more of their dishes or should have pork served. This has stimulated the group to the extent that some have bought pigs since the class was set up. This class is being held at Golden Rule Society Hall, R. F.D. 1, Verbena, Ala.

2. Farm Machinery Repair. This class has an enrollment of 23 who have shown their interest by inventorying and bringing their farm tools to Matthew Wilson's Shop where they are learning how to repair their own farm tools, on RFD 1, Maplesville, Ala. Mathew Wilson, teacher, is working with very satisfactory results.

3. Poultry Production. This class has an enrollment of 11 who have been and are still being taught the necessary fundamental facts about the growing of chickens by a very active and interesting teacher, Ortho McKinney. This class is being held at Ridersville, Ala. Junior High School Bldg., RFD 1, Stanton, Ala.

4. Woodworking. This class had to be revised due to some misunderstanding it failed to open on scheduled date. It will open Monday night, Nov. 16, 1942, N. Stevens, assistant Principal of the County Training School will teach the class.

These Defense classes have such significant meaning to the progress of the farmers until the farmers are becoming very curious about the work. They are getting assistance that has served as an inspiration and at the same time set most of them on their way to thinking seriously over their conditions. These classes have set up before the farmer what we may call a large Mirror in which he can see very clearly his standing at present and his standing if his farm program had been planned for a better living. These classes also serve as mediums by which the Vocational Teacher can reach more farm people and as a result make the Vocational Program more effective over the County. The need for such large quantities of pork, poultry, eggs, beef, vegetables, milk and other farm products has opened the gate for the farmer to pave his way to the desired things that he once hoped for.

Let us as farmers take every advantage of these Defense classes by learning how to treat hogs for internal and external parasites and diseases; repair our own farm tools and know what parts to buy for repairs; how to make the necessary wooden beams and singletrees from our hardwood trees at home; build lamp brooders like the one that is being built in the Poultry class at Riderville; treat the chickens for worms; make the necessary repairs around the farm in a general way.

If you are in doubt about what you would like to do ask your Vocational Teacher, County Agent, Farm Security Administration, AAA officials, or some real experienced farmer. Our slogan "One for all and all for one."

Don't forget to buy Defense bonds and stamps.

WALTER TODD is Somewhere in the Pacific

For more than a score of years the operation of this Railroad was dedicated FIRST to the service of its patrons and its territory.

This is borne out by the fact that trains have often been run for the convenience of the public and to furnish jobs for our employes, when the patronage clearly showed that there was no necessity for the service. This we have gladly done in a spirit of friendly co-operation and in recognition of our obligation as a transportation agency.

BUT THIS WAS BEFORE PEARL HARBOR. Now the only question to be decided about everything pertaining to this Railroad is—will it help win the war?

Every day we are called upon to transport promptly and swiftly vital war cargoes, or troops, or both for Uncle Sam. So far we have not failed—and it has not been necessary for us to neglect our peace-time patrons. If, however, they should have to suffer inconveniences while the emergency exists, we know that they will do so with an understanding attitude.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Old man flu had us confined to our bed over the week end and when we had tried just about everything in the book and couldn't get rid of it we told the wife to call the doctor and find out what he knew. Well, after giving her some right good advice as to how and when, he finished off with, "If he still feels stupid in the morning keep giving him the pills." She has been following me all week poking those pills at me. She thought the doctor said as long as he looked stupid to keep giving him the pills.

The Annual Lion Raffle to be held next month will not be the same without Lion Julian Evans on the job. Each year the success of the contest has been largely due to the good work of Lion Evans. Not that we are trying to deprive Lion Buckelew, Margolis and many others of credit due them for their hard work but Julian Evans took his Annual Lion Raffle serious and he will be sorely missed this year.

This one we heard about the orange growers in Florida. It seems that they were having trouble getting pickers to gather their crops. An ingenius grower conceived the idea of having a monkey gather his fruit. This proved to be so successful that the other growers held a mass meeting and decided to send to South America for a boat load of monkeys. An old backwoodsman seated in the back of the hall stood up and said, "Well, that might be a fine idea, but just as soon as we get them working good the dam yankees will come along and free 'em."

M. D. Foshee is now a Sgt. . . and so is Charlie White. You should see a picture that he sent to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob White. Chas. is in Africa and seems has adopted their way of letting his beard grow-looks like he might be the Sultan of a Harem there too . . . just wonder what the fellows who kept their hats on at the football game Thursday night when the Band was playing the National Anthem, could have been thinking about . . . Corp. Joe Maddox at Smyrna Air Base, Smyrna, Tenn., is Sgt. Joe now . . . Wish we could keep up with all the promotions that our Chilton County boys are getting now .

Wash Jones is in Denver, Colorado, at Buckley Field.

Spike the rumor going the rounds that the gang of soldiers who came into Clanton Sunday night after the train wreck were rowdy and hard to manage. We have heard that story and we also heard that quite a bit of rowdyism took place at the Yellow Front after Manager Donald Blackketter was accomodating enough to open up to get them something to eat after the local Cafe's were exhausted of bread and other essentials. The story is false, absolutely and we have the word of Donald Blackketter and others that the Soldiers were well behaved and conducted themselvs as they should-like gentlemen.

Lets one and all take our hats off to the 1942 Chilton County Tiger Football Team, and too, let's give three cheers to Coach Porch and the other mentors who had a hand in producing one of the best High School Football teams in the State. There's one fly in our ointment, we can't see them matched with a team their equal on the gridiron. But, just suppose we could, boy, wouldn't that be a football game.

Chilton High Downs Marion "B" Team 26-6

—James Foshee—Sports Reporter

The Chilton County Tigers defeated Marion Institute "B" Team 26 to 6, Thursday night, November 19 at the local field, to wind up the season.

The first quarter was scoreless with the exchanging of punts. Both teams had plenty of breaks in this. The first touchdown came in the second quarter when James Payton, left halfback, raced 40 yards for the marker. Acie Mims, poundering fullback, plunged over for the extra point. The half ended 7 to 0.

The Tigers came out in the third quarter using their aerial attack. Payton passing to Capt. Paul Smith, left end, set up the next touchdown. Mims plunged over for the touchdown. McKey, failed to convert. Payton then raced 45 yards to score another counter. The third quarter ended 19-0. The Marion cadets came back in the last quarter by scoring from the 8 yard line on an end run. James Payton again broke loose for a 60 yard run for the last touchdown. Payton passed to Smith for the extra point. The game ended 26 to 6.

The Chilton County Team has won their 20th staight game. They have gone undefeated for 2 seasons. The Tigers have chalked up 347 points to their opponents 30 points this season. James Payton, flashy left halfback, has scored 144 points this season, averaging 50 yards for each touchdown. His broken field running has led the Tigers to victories.

With the loss of two backs, Clanton has come back to victories. Captain F. C. Cost, plunging fullback, broke his ankle in a scrimmage in the early part of the season. Guy Higgins, right halfback, broke his collar bone in the Holtville game. Mims and Culp filled in their places and came through the season undefeated.

Clanton line proved to be too powerful for their opponents. James Davenport, center, is one of the best centers to perform for the Tigers in a long time. He has backed up the line on defense and showed some expert downfield blocking on offense. Ned Dennis and John McKey, a pair of running guards, have been one of the reasons the holes in the lines opened up when the backs go through for necessary yardage. They have also showed some good blocking down the field. They were always in there on defense, stopping the opponents for no gains. Bill Stanley and Lamar Teel, tackles, have been the reason it is so hard for the opponents to open up the Clanton line. Both have been playing good football all the season. Stanley and Teel played their best game against Marion "B" Team. Capt. Paul Smith and Harold Kellum, ends, have played good defensive and offensive football all the season. They have caught the passes that have enabled the Tigers to go over for touchdowns by the use of the aerial attack. Payton to Smith has proved to be an effective combination for the Chilton County Team. Smith and Kellum have kept the opponents from sweeping around the ends for large gains. Lloyd McGee, quarterback, has led his team to victories by his expert blocking and quarterbacking. He has called the Tigers signals since the team lost the plunging fullback, F. C. Cost by an injury. James Payton, left halfback, is the highest scorer on the team with 144 points. He is one of the best backs ever to perform for the Chilton County Team. Acie Mims, fullback, has plowed through the line many times for necessary yardage. He stepped in and took F. C. Cost's place and proved to be a good player. He played both offense and defense. Harold Culp, right halfback, fast stepping back, took Guy Higgin's place because of an injury. He has proved to be another fast back for Clanton.

The second team for the Chilton County Tigers has taken over in several games and played good football while they were in ther. They proved to have a good team to pick from next year.

Statewide Blackout Expected Any Night Now

Final Preperations Made And Only Signal Awaited

The state-wide blackout, subject of many weeks of hard work and planning by the Alabama State Defense Council, may come most any night now. You will be called on to show if you have learned to black-out your home and the coming test will be the nearest approach to the real thing yet experienced.

It has been announced that there will be no "incidents" for solution by the local Defense Corps, such as would result fro m simulated dropping of bombs requiring action to take care of the casualties, fire or other destruction. The local Defense units will have their hands full with other activities, enforcing a thorough blackout, and clearing the streets of traffic during the "raid."

The tests will be under Army direction, with the army initiating the signals through regular army channels and plotting the number and the direction of the flights of "enemy" planes which will take to the air over Alabama. The Army will also have charge of observation to determine effectiveness of the blackout, and the umpiring.

All State Guard units will be called out, assembling at their respective armories immediately after the "all clear" is sounded, and going through preparations for handling problems which would result from actual enemy attack.

Final plans for the blackout were worked out during the past week at conferences held at State Defense Council headquarters, to which the Army sent representatives from its Third Fighter Command, with headquarters at Tampa, and Fourth Service Command, headquarters at Atlanta. When the test will come is a secret, and will remain so until the warning signals are flashed and the sirens sound.

Some weeks ago, Director Tucker pointed out to the State Defense Council that while a number of Alabama towns had held blackouts and maneuvers and made a good showing, these events had been cut-and-dried affairs in which the date and approximate hour were known to all in advance. He pointed out that actual enemy attack would not be accompanied by any sort of notice, and suggested the surprise State-wide blackout to demonstrate the readiness and response of Defense Corps units and the public generally. His suggestion was adopted, details have been worked out and Alabama soon will be called on to blackout and mobilize her civilian defenders as would be the case if enemy planes were coming over.

APPRECIATION FROM REV. REESE FARNELL

We just wish to take this opportunity to express to the Clanton Circuit folks that as your new preacher we have been delighted to come to you. Sunday we had a delightful day with the people of Cedar Grove. One thing that made us feel good was that the folks moved this preacher's things at their expense. We were nearly stunned when J. J. Johnson said, "Preacher we folks move you at our expense. I just know that the work is going to move nicely this year. Such a thing as moving a preacher free of cost to him isn't an undertaking that is thought up and carried out by thoughtless people.

Serious Accident Kills 1; Injures 2

Curtis A. Haye, lost his life in an automobile accident late Saturday night when he lost control of his car on a sharp curve, just two miles from Thorsby on the Collins Chapel Road. Martins ambulance picked up the three men at the Bus Station a short time later, where a passerby had brought them in his car and called the ambulance.

Two companions, Frank Shaneyfelt and Vernon Robinson of the Collins Chapel Community were both injured in the accident.

It is supposed that Haye was taking his two companions home at the time.

Haye died in a local hospital about noon Sunday. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Highland Church with burial in the adjoining cemetery Rev. Homer Carroll conducting, assisted by Rev. Floyd Smith and Curtis Bean.

Pallbearers were: W. C. Wyatt, W. H. Haye, Virgil Haye, Edghardge Haye, J. B. Coe, and C. B. Weldon.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth Weldon Haye; 2 small sons, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Haye.

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB HOLDS OPEN MEETING

An open meeting of the Music Appreciation Club was held in the First Baptist Church on Tuesday afternoon, November 24th. At this time a most splendid program was given by the Junior Music Club composed of sixty children from the Clanton Elementary School, with Mrs. S. C. Porch as director. The Junior Club is federated ~~and the members are receiving care-~~ ful training in choral work.

At the business meeting it was announced that the Music Appreciation Club had contributed $10.00 to the War Chest Fund, thus carrying out one of the main objectives for the year, to assist with the War Service program.

METHODISTS START CHRISTMAS CAMPAIGN

Scores of little ones at the Methodist Children's Home at Selma, Ala are again calling to the Methodists of Alabama and West Florida to remember them in the approaching Christmas season and provide for their needs during the year 1943.

The call comes through the Board of Directors of this Home, composed of representative Methodists of the North Alabama Conference and of the Alabama Conference, the latter including West Florida. In the appeal issued by Kenneth E. Cooper of this City, President of the Board, a minimum quota of $50,000 is asked to be raised through the "White Christmas" campaign this year.

The historic Edmundson residence, near Decatur, Morgan County, believed to be 100 years old, was recently destroyed by fire. While the exterior was noted for its colonial beauty, outstanding features of the interior were the antique furniture, lovely draperies and decorations. Many notables were entertained in the old residence.

Birmingham is soon to have an airplane modifcation plant, to employ 12,000 to 15,000 workers. First cost will be $12,500,000.

Farmers To Vote On Cotton Quota December 12

To Determine About 1943 Cotton Crop

Chilton County farmers will go to the polls on Saturday, December 12, and vote in the Southwide referendum to determine whether or not cotton marketing quotas will remain in effect on the 1943 cotton crop, announces Mr. Napoleon Posey, Chairman of the County AAA Committee.

Cotton marketing quotas have been in effect during the past four years following overwhelming approval of growers in referendums. Last year Chilton County farmers voted 996 to 123 for marketing quotas.

With the Nation involved in war and the need for putting every acre of available cropland inthe right crop to produce the right amount of food and fiber, the cotton marketing referendum this year assumes more importance than ever before.

Every farmer who produced cotton this year and who plans to cooperate in the AAA program next year will be eligible to vote in the referendum.

As farmers go to the polls to vote they are remineded that the present supply of American cotton is 23,800,000 bales, or approximately a two-year's-supply. If farmers approve marketing quotas, they will authorize cotton loans on the 1943 crop at 90 percent of parity. If marketing quotas are not approved, there will be no cotton loans.

Mr. Posey urged every eligible farmer to cast his ballot in the referendum.

NOTICE TO RURAL PATRONS OF CLANTON POSTOFFICE

Effective December 1, 1942, schedules of rural carriers at this office will be changed on account of the discontinuance of star route from Birmingham.

A THANKSGIVING

TO BE THANKFUL FOR

November 26, 1942

Editor of The Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Sir:

This Thanksgiving Day is a great day for the United States. I was thinking this morning how thankful we ought to be, and of the many things we have to be thankful for. We should be thankful for this great country, for freedom of thought, freedom of action, and above all freedom of religion.

My mind goes out for our boys who are fighting in the Pacific in Egypt, and the balance of the war fronts. When I think of how our boys are suffering and what they are going through with, I can not but feel sad. When I think of the two and on-half million dollars on deposit in the banks in this county, not bringing any income to the depositors, and the Government has asked us to loan it $34,000 this month, and how hard we have to beg and urge our citizens to loan the Government this money to furnish our boys food and clothing and ammunition to fight with, and knowing what our boys are going through with fighting in the jungles of the Solomons and on the African fronts, I wonder if our concience is clear. I wonder if we can fully enjoy Thanksgiving.

I ask you people that have this money in the bank to let your conscience be your guide, and ask yourself if you have done all that you could to help our boys to win this war. We fell behind with our quota last month, and I hope and trust that we will be able to raise $34,000 this month.

Our dear boys will not be able to stop fighting or take Thanksgiving Day as we will. Let's not forget the hardsips that they are going through with. Let's do our duty.

We are going to have a great rally here at the Court House next Friday night, November 27, at 8:00 o'clock. We want every mother, father, brother, and sister that possibly can to come to the Court House and hear Cecil S. Ward, who was captured by the Japs in China, and kept in prison for three months. He can tell you what a prison life is to the American boys. I hope everybody will come that can.

The following committee has been appointed for a special drive and I hope you people that are able and have money that you can buy bonds with, will meet the committee with a smile and buy bonds.

W. E. Huddleston, Filling Stations.
Jimmie Taylor, Merchants.
Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Beauty Shoppes.
Mrs. Bess Hayes, Special booths for selling bonds and stamps on the streets of Clanton every Saturday.
Leonard Farley, Druggist.
Judge J. Lee Smith, Laborers.
John Hollis, Electric Manufacturers.
Leo Thompson, Pressing Shops and Laundry.
E. D. Sledge, Colored People.

Respectfully,
L. H. Reynolds,
Executive Chairman.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Pacific Sea Victories Prove U. S. Naval Strength Is Growing as Japs' Declines; Russ Smash Nazi Threat to Caucasus; MacArthur Encircles Japs in New Guinea

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The North African coast was the end of the first lap of their journey to Berlin for thousands of U. S. soldiers who participated in the successful invasion of French North Africa. The above photograph, one of the first pictures passed by the war department, shows a detachment of U. S. troops landing at a picturesque Algerian Mediterranean village west of Oran.

SOLOMONS:
Smashing U. S. Victory

Americans had scarcely received the news of the brilliant naval victory in the Solomons which drove the Japs back reeling with 23 ships sunk and 30,000 sailors and soldiers drowned, when additional reports were forthcoming on the sinking of five enemy warships. The second action was the concluding part of a great three-day engagement which routed the Jap fleet from the Guadalcanal area.

Shrewd and resourceful Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the American forces, emerged from the battle as one of the outstanding heroes of the war, for it was his audacity and pluck in the face of superior Japanese forces that won a smashing three-day victory.

Jap ship losses in the slugging encounter included one battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and eight troop-laden transports sunk; four cargo transports destroyed on the beach near Guadalcanal, and one battleship and six destroyers damaged. Enemy losses in the second engagement were one battleship, three large cruisers and one destroyer sunk.

Naval officials said there was "good reason to believe" that the sinkings reported in second engagement were in addition to those previously recorded.

American losses were two light cruisers and six destroyers sunk.

The major part of the sea action was fought directly off Guadalcanal island, which the Japs approached with three strong fleet task forces intent on effecting a landing that would dislodge the heroic American defenders. One of the decisive elements in the battle was the daring of American surface units in steaming directly between the lines of the Jap columns, firing broadsides in both directions. In this phase Rear Adm. Daniel J. Callaghan, former naval aide of President Roosevelt, was killed in action.

While the navy rejoiced in its triumph, it accorded full credit to General MacArthur's aircraft which had originally spotted the Jap concentrations and made repeated bombing attacks on the enemy shipping.

NEW GUINEA:
Jap Dunkirk?

Steadily the jaws of the Australian-American trap had closed on the strategic Jap-held port of Buna in New Guinea.

Significant of the importance of the New Guinea drive to dislodge the Japs was the presence in the field of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. While his land forces converged on the enemy positions, MacArthur's bombers had fanned out for widespread aerial activities. On their calling list besides Buna were enemy installations at Lae and Salamaus.

The critical plight of the Jap garrison at Buna was emphasized by the arrival of eight enemy warships in the vicinity. In a grim game of hide-and-seek that ensued between American Flying Fortresses and the Jap vessels, one enemy cruiser and a destroyer were sunk and another destroyer damaged before the flotilla fled. Observers were of the opinion that the Jap warships might have been preparing to evacuate the Jap defenders of Buna.

18-19-YEAR DRAFT:
High Schoolers Deferred

President Roosevelt set aside three weeks beginning December 11 for registration of youths who have reached or will reach their 18th birthdays since June 30. The President's order likewise provided continuous registration on their birthdays of youths who become 18 on or after next January 1.

A presidential proclamation hailed the new registration as "advisable to insure victory."

RUSSIAN FRONT:
Reds Show Mettle

The Nazi threat to the Caucasus mountain passes and the Grozny oil fields was lifted when the Russians staged a fierce counter attack in the Ordzhonikidze area which resulted in the annihilation of 5,000 German troops and the capture of 140 German tanks, 70 field guns, 2,350 army trucks and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

The furious nature of the Red assault and the fact that the Russ forces were fully equipped with planes, tanks and other mechanized equipment indicated that this engagement might be the signal for a far-flung counter-offensive all along the Soviet front.

At the other end of the Caucasus front German attempts to break through the Soviet lines near Tuapse were repeatedly beaten back. Meanwhile reports said winter was closing down rapidly over the entire Russian front.

As it had for weeks past, the Nazi front at Stalingrad remained at a stalemate, with German attacks beaten off by the stout-hearted Russian defenders. The industrial city's factory area was the principal target of the Nazis' effort to gain a firm foothold in this strategic Volga metropolis.

NORTH AFRICA:
3-Pronged Pincer

What was left of the tottering Axis empire in North Africa had drawn closer around Tripoli, as Allied forces menaced it from the east, the west and south, while the Mediterranean on the north had fast become a lake dominated by United Nations air and sea power.

From the east, Gen. Montgomery's Eighth British army had swept through Libya in pursuit of Marshal Rommel's battered Afrika Korps. From the west American and British forces had poured into Tunisia, aided by units of Gen. Giraud's French North African army. From the South it was reported that 10,000 of the fighting French army, mechanized with American equipment, had struck northward from Lake Chad in French West Africa.

Goal of the Anglo-British armies from the west had been strategic Bizerte in Tunisia sea-coast "springboard" to southern Italy. British paratroops flown in American planes had captured airfields deep in Tunisia, reports disclosed. The Morocco raid described these paratroop operations as the largest ever carried out by air-borne troops.

FRANCE:
Laval Mask Off

Pierre Laval could now write his own ticket. Observers believed that ticket would be filled out with orders for greater French collaboration with the Axis. For when doddering Marshal Petain invested Laval with dictatórial power giving him the right "on his simple signature alone to make laws" the immediate fate of continental France was in pro-Berlin hands.

Petain's decree simply gave official sanction to what had been an unofficial fact for months. Everybody in and out of Europe knew Laval had been the real boss of the Vichy regime and Petain the figurehead. Now Laval could emerge in his true role.

Across the Mediterranean in Algeria, Admiral Jean Darlan continued as the titular head of French North Africa. But no longer had he Vichy's blessing and no longer was he heir-presumptive to Petain's post. Achieving the doubtful distinction of International Turncoat No. 1, Darlan had dexterously cast his lot with the Allies, following the successful American invasion. Previously he had been notoriously pro-Axis. His elevation to second in command to Petain had been a reward for his Axis leanings after the 1940 French Collapse.

ROOSEVELT:
War's 'Turning Point'

American victories in the Solomons and in North Africa might well be hailed as an apparent turning point in the war, President Roosevelt declared. But, he warned the American people, there is time only for working and fighting, none for exaltation.

The President coupled his analysis of recent military events with a rebuke to critics of the government's war and international policies, who speak "either out of ignorance or out of political bias."

Declaring that he had made a constant effort to keep politics out of the fighting of the war, Mr. Roosevelt pleaded guilty, however, to having permitted pressure to disclose the sinking of an American aircraft carrier 10 days before the November elections. He said he had realized that "if the news of the sinking had been given out two or three weeks later, it would be publicly charged that this news had been suppressed by me until after the election." The result was that vigorous protests had come from commanding admirals in the Southwest Pacific and at Pearl Harbor that military information was being given to the Japs, because they probably had no sure knowledge of the sinking.

GAS RATION:
Curtailed in East

Demands for petroleum products by the American Expeditionary forces in North Africa far in excess of original estimates resulted in a curtailment of 25 per cent in the gasoline of motorists in the Eastern states. The OPA order did not affect the Middle West, where rationing had been scheduled for December 1.

Motorists traveling in the East from other states, however, would have to comply with the new rations which gave three gallons of gasoline for "A" coupons, instead of four.

Officials said the East Coast curtailment would result in saving about 20,000 barrels of gasoline a day.

'FREE RUMANIA':
Fund Grab Foiled

How a plot to spirit exiled King Carol of Rumania into the United States from Mexico and establish a "Free Rumanian" movement in this country was foiled, was disclosed with the indictment in Detroit of three leaders in the cabal. At stake was nearly $80,000,000 in frozen Rumanian funds now in custody of the U. S. treasury.

EX-KING CAROL
. . . he eyed $80,000,000.

The indictments charged violation of the Foreign Agents Registration and Espionage Acts. The defendants were Glicherie Moraru, self-styled leader of the movement, Stefan Opreanu and George Zanfer.

SEA SAGA:
Boise Story Told

Triumphant survivor of a battle in which she helped sink six Jap warships off Guadalcanal in early October, the heroic light cruiser Boise was undergoing repairs at an eastern American shipyard, after being battered by gunfire, swept by flames and losing 107 of her crew in action.

That the Boise would be refitted in time to steam off to war again was emphasized by her commander, Capt. E. J. ("Mike") Moran, and navy officials. The Boise was lead ship of an American naval task force that engaged a Jap cruiser-transport force bearing troops for the Southeastern Solomons and bore the brunt of the fighting in which the enemy lost two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and three destroyers.

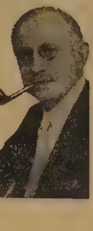
Given up for lost in the battle, the undaunted Boise later joined its companion ships after receiving shell hits in vulnerable places. In the engagement, the Boise fired more than 1,000 rounds of six-inch shells in 27 minutes.

MISCELLANY:

WASHINGTON: In a move to speed shipments of important war materials through Mexico, the United States has agreed to finance rehabilitation of key lines of the Mexican National railways, it was announced here. The U. S. government has agreed to bear the cost of all necessary materials and equipment as well as repair costs and the expense of maintenance.

Washington Digest

Willkie Emphasizes Need For U. S. to Direct Peace



Dedicates His Life to Arousing American Leadership in 'All-Out Offensive for Global Peace When War Ends.'

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Editor's Note: In an exclusive interview with Baukhage, Wendell Willkie discloses his "blueprint for the future." In the following article, Willkie disposes of the third-party question and discusses America's job in the post-war peace.

Wendell Willkie has cut out a huge, new job for himself.

That revelation came to me in one startling, rapier sentence, hurled across his desk as I sat opposite, an unsuspecting, inquiring reporter.

It is the biggest job Willkie ever tackled. Bigger, I am sure he believes, than being President, even in wartime, would have been.

It is not the job of leading a third party. I have his word that he considers formation of a third party impossible.

It is the job of arousing America to leadership in an all-out offensive for a global peace when the war ends—beginning now.

With his well-thatched head and his square shoulders silhouetted against the flashing panorama of the East river below, Willkie talked to me in the office of his law firm on Broad street in New York. A jangling telephone interrupted occasionally, he paused to give quick answers to pencilled notes from his secretary, but he kept his mind on far horizons as he answered a list of 14 questions which I had prepared.

The remark that convinced me that he means business was a part of his answer to the ninth of my 14 questions. After he had stressed the necessity for more American leadership in the war effort of the United Nations, I asked:

"What will happen if the United States doesn't take this leadership you say is necessary? How will it affect the war? How will it affect the post-war world?"

American Leadership

Willkie has a habit of looking you in the eye. He doesn't often gaze into space and meditate before he speaks.

"If there is not a United Nations united command and united council, with America playing its part in the leadership—I mean political and moral leadership as well as military leadership—it will mean that the war will last longer, many more lives will be lost uselessly . . ."

By this time his words were staccato, each sharply emphasized, the words of a man who wanted his hearers to believe. The last phrase came crescendo:

". . . and the world will revert to the old spirit of nationalism." Then he turned and looked at me intensely: "That's why I have dedicated my life to this job."

Those words and the way they were spoken convinced me that Wendell Willkie, whatever his political ambitions might be, had drawn a blueprint for his own future that was wider than the map of the United States.

"We have to get started now," he said, "we can't wait until the war is over. We have to begin to build the machinery step by step. It isn't a thing that will come full-blown out of the bottle."

"What are you going to do about it?" I asked.

Third Party Again

"I am going to speak, I am going to write, I am going to try to convert the country to the belief—and I am going to work within the framework of the Republican party toward the adoption of this idea as a policy."

"What about a third party?" I asked.

"The formation of a third party is legally impossible," he replied, impatiently brushing aside the political implications. He returned to the question of a war and peace policy.

Just what is this "policy"? Mr. Willkie made that pretty plain in his report to the nation. He said:

"To win that peace three things seem to be necessary—first, we must plan now for peace on a global basis; second, the world must be free, economically and politically, for nations and for men that peace may exist in it; third, America must play an active, constructive part in freeing it and keeping its peace."

Willkie wants, immediately, a full statement of post-war aims, an extension of the Atlantic Charter so written that all the nations of the globe will be assured that all are to be co-beneficiaries. He wants, immediately, a real United Nations united command and a united council ("no second class allies").

Out of this, American leadership will automatically develop, he believes, because of the "reservoir of good will" which America has built up on her non-imperialistic policy.

The immediate creation of a united command and a united council, Willkie said, will provide the proper machinery for carrying the war to a speedy victory and form the nucleus of the world organization which can establish and maintain the global peace—the ultimate objective.

The necessity for action now, Willkie stressed again and again.

On Organization

More of his own ideas came out in response to questions on specific issues which I felt he had not clarified in his report to the nation.

I asked him how he expected to provide security for the small, dependent nations and the colonies if the great nations surrender their political power over these quasi-dependencies.

"We cannot expect to restore the economic boundaries of the world after the war," he said, "but we can see that the small, dependent peoples are allowed to benefit from the revenue of the things they produce—that they are not exploited. There will have to be an international police force to provide for their security, but we must see that these countries are provided with sanitation, health and education, paid for by their own resources, until they can be built up to the point where they can govern themselves. It may take centuries. That doesn't matter. But there can be no peace in the world until problems like the problem of India are settled under international arrangement, with the obligations to such nations guaranteed by some kind of an international group. But we cannot wait for an organization to be formed. The United States must start by guaranteeing such obligations, later bringing in the other nations of the world."

"Can Russia be fitted into the democratic picture?" I asked, "and how should we avoid forcing our brand of democracy on other nations which might not want it?"

Russian Cooperation

Willkie answered these two questions in one. He said: "Russia can be fitted into the international pattern. I believe Russia will cooperate. It can then be left to work out its own internal affairs. This applies to other nations as well. The point is that we must shift the leadership as it is today from an Anglo-American leadership to a United Nations leadership. Then the United States will naturally assume the lead because the other nations will automatically turn to us for guidance."

"Should there be encouraged non-governmental groups to work out a post-war program now?" I asked.

"Certainly," he said, "the more discussion the better. People all over the country should be encouraged to speak their minds on the subject. Universities should take it up. Radio and press must do their part. Public opinion is formed in the home. You and I may have a wider field for expressing ourselves, but public sentiment itself must be built through individual discussion."

My time had long run out but not Mr. Willkie's patience. When I left I had the feeling that I had been consuming the first hour's worth of a lifetime dedicated to the building of a new world.

If the gentleman behind the paper-littered desk overlooking the East river is as convincing to others as he was to me, perhaps something never dreamt of in its philosophy is about to come out of that corner of Manhattan bounded by Broad and Wall streets.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-17; Acts 1:8; 2:42; 6:1-4; 11:27-30; 13:1-3; I John 1:3.

GOLDEN TEXT—As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you.—John 20:21.

The church is the greatest institution in all the world, with the most widespread membership and influence. That is true from a purely secular or worldly standpoint. Then when we realize that here is more than a human organization, for it is in fact a divine organism; that it is the means through which God is now manifesting this power toward men, we see the supreme importance of understanding the church and our relationship to it.

This week we stress the mission of the church. We note seven things.

I. Holiness of Life (Matt. 18:15-17).

In a time when general standards of decency and honesty are low, and no one wants to be his brother's keeper, the church needs to be reminded that part of its mission is to maintain holiness in life and the relationship of one to another.

Notice that man's attitude toward his fellowman is first a matter for personal attention, then it becomes of real interest to the church, and if no response is found there, the offending individual is excluded and put in the hands of God. Be sure to observe that all this is done to "gain" or win him back, not for revenge or in bitterness.

II. Witness in Divine Power (Acts 1:8).

The witness bears testimony to that which he has experienced, and in the case of Christian experience he is assured of divine power in carrying out his sacred task.

The world would have laughed (and possibly did) at the idea of a small group of humble believers making the gospel effective simply by telling others about the Saviour—but it worked, because God's power was in it.

III. Unity in Faith and Practice (Acts 2:42).

The early church had not yet been split up by the philosophies of men and the vagaries of doctrine, which have since divided God's people. It was His purpose that His people should be one in Him, something we should recall before we divide them just to promote some theory of interpretation.

Unity is not only a matter of belief, it must reach into the practice of daily life. They were steadfast not only in doctrine, but in communion and prayer. A bit more unity there might bring us closer together in belief.

IV. Service, Spiritual and Social (Acts 6:1-4).

The church rightly put the emphasis on the spiritual. The leaders who had gifts for ministry of the Word did not permit themselves to be diverted into social service. Too many in the church have failed at that point. Even the good may be the mortal enemy of the best.

At the same time the early church did not neglect social needs. Men were appointed to care for them. In all too many instances the modern church has failed to minister to the social needs even of its own people and has weakly (and one fears gladly) turned them over to social agencies. What a pity!

V. Love—in Deed as Well as in Word (Acts 11:27-30).

Talking about the need of others, wishing them God's blessing, saying a desultory prayer asking God to bless and help them, is not sufficient, in fact it is not Christian at all (see James 2:14-17).

Love acts. It gives. It serves. It proves faith by works. It translates the gospel into a language an unbelieving world can understand.

VI. Obedience to the Holy Spirit (Acts 13:1-3).

God has certain plans for the work of the church in the world, and be sure that they are no small or indifferent plans. His mighty agent in bringing His will to pass in the world is the third person of the Trinity, the Holy Spirit. If the church will respond to His guidance and be subject to His control, the work of God may go on unhindered. But just there, Christian friends, the church has most ingloriously failed.

The early church was directed of the Holy Spirit to set apart Paul and Barnabas for the work of missionaries and evangelists. Knowing as we do the marvelous results of their ministry, we shudder at the thought of what might have happened if the church had disobeyed the Holy Spirit that day!

VII. Fellowship (I John 1:3).

Here is the great secret of spiritual life and growth—Christian fellowship. And notice with care the place for it is in the church. If we do not come to the church we deprive ourselves and others of the opportunity for fellowship. The matter of church attendance (and twice on Sunday is not too much) needs to be put on our consciences lest we by our absence bear an anti-church testimony before our neighbors. But even more important is our own need of fellowship with God's people.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

We have read with interest the capture of Tobruk in Northern Africa by the British Army. All honor to those brave men of England, but they were not alone in their efforts to subdue the Italians. Nature did much to participate the fall of this Italian stronghold. The British army marched with the wind while the Italians had to face cutting sand, as well as the heavy gunfire. They could not opn their eyes to see how to fight. It seems that God took a hand with the forces of John Bull. Anyway, the cutting sand storm and the English army came together and they came out of the same direction. When God takes a part to bring about the defeat of men, or nations. He does not need powder and planes. God defeated Napoleon with snow flakes. God moved among the branches of the Mulberry trees and the good book tells us that a host of the enemy died.

Germany went down in the year 1918, and it is said that when the soldiers were carried away to prison camps, that there was one young man among them who cried for days like a whipped child. Between his sobs this young man vowed revenge against, England, France, and America. This nervous agitated, soldier was none other than Adolphus Hitler. Over night he leaped to leadership and power. The German people gave to him unrestricted power. He lifted himself as the world's Number one dictator, and now is drunk on revenge. It is not true that there are some people in America who are disposed to give one man more power than it is good for one man to have. It matters not who may occupy the Whitehouse, Congress and the Senate, should think a thousand times before giving to any man more power than can be taken from him in a few hours time. Power is what makes Dictators.

A mother came to me in great distress. The law had drafted her son into the army and he was in a training camp. This mother was aware of the danger of the battle field and yet she stood in readiness to make any sacrifice for the flag. She said to me, "Doctor, if it were not for my faith in God I would go crazy." Just now, the most of us are in like condition with that troubled mother. We read the daily papers, and we listen in to the reports coming in over the Radio, and the tangled condition of human life causes us to stagger to our knees. If it were not for our faith in God I fear that we would go crazy. It is our faith in God that gives to us an anchor that holds. Too bad, my brother, if you have lost that faith.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

(To Late For Last Week's Paper)

We are glad to say we had quite a crowd out for Sunday School and preaching. All that were here got a great blessing out of Rev. Paul Oden's message Sunday morning. His lesson subject was "God is Love", also Sunday night we had a great crowd out to see his pictures of Christ on message of love. There were many visitors with us Sunday nigrt and we invite them back at any and all times.

We are sorry that Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cleckley are moving back to Page Chapel, and to others who are moving out, we extend to them our best wishes and love in their new homes. And to the new one's who are moving into our community we extend our love and good will to them.

We are glad to say at this writing that all who are ill are improving and little Alletha Elaine Sewell is O.K. after being sick for a few days.

To all our boys who are leaving for the service of Uncle Sam we wish to express that we extend our love and best of wishes and God's love to them all.

We were very sorry to know that Mr. Odell Higgins fell from his new house he was building and broke his arm, we trust for him to be well and able to be back at work soon.

EVERY TOWN NEEDS A GOOD NEWSPAPER

"Let me read your newspaper and I'll tell you the kind of a town you have."

This terse quotation, credited to a business executive failing to be impressed by claims on behalf of a far-removed community in which his company had indicated interest, evidences the degree in which the newspaper of today has come to be held as accurately reflecting the life which it serves.

Later, this figure of business and the institutions of the area in finance was asked to expand his statement. His reply is a matter of importance to everyone who shares interest in his or her community and some important standards by which it is judged by those outside the sphere of local interest or sentiment.

"Show me a community that has a live, aggressiye newspaper, made possible by well-filled advertising pages representative of local interests, and I'll show you a town that is headed for growth and development."

From Columbus, Ga., comes the news that a "Peeping Tom" was causing consternation among the ladies in a residential section. At one residence a trap with an alarm was set outside a window. The prowler walked into the trap—the police answered the alarm and made the arrest—the judge assessed a fine of $100.

JEMISON F. H. A. MEETING

(To Late For Last Week's Paper)

The Jemison F. H. A. Chapter held its monthly meeting Oct. 4, 1942. The meeting was called to order by the president, Annie Joe Norwood. The business to come before the meeting was the discussion of the joint program of the F. H. A. and F. F. A. However, nothing definitely was decided. The president also talked to the members about paying their dues for the club and about the program for getting money for the club. There was no further business to come before the meeting so the program committee took charge. The assembly sang the F. H. A. song and then some interesting talks were given. Then everyone enjoyed many games and refreshments.

Miss Annie Wheeler, of Wheeler Station, Lawrence County, has been cited by the U. D. C. for distinguished services in three wars. She served as a nurse in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, in the Phillipines during the insurrection in France during World War I. She is a daughter of Gen. Joseph (Fighting Joe) Wheeler.

While a junk dealer was hauling several thousand pounds of scrap from Ft. Gaines, below Mobile, a wooden bridge over Fowl River, on the Cedar Point Road, collapsed. Half of the scrap iron fell into the river, but the tilted truck was saved from the stream.

HOWARD—CARTER

On Sunday afternoon, November 22, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Howard, their daughter Ella was married to Captain Owen H. Carter of Fort Benning, Georgia and Omaha, Nebraska, the Rev. Carl Polson officating, using the ring ceremony. Miss Helen Diefenderfer was maid of honour. Her dress was ashes of roses crepe with black accessories and corsage of gardenias. The bride wore powder blue jersey crepe with black accessories and corsage of white orchids. She wore a dainty gold chain necklace with gold pendant which every bride of the Carter family for five generations has worn. Lietenant Burton Moore of Fort Benning, Ga., a lifelong friend of the groom, was best man.

Mrs. Erle Ellis of Clanton sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because". Her mother, Mrs. C. R. Foss of Birmingham furnished the piano music. Miss Christine Bosworth of Birmingham lit the candles. The home was decorated with palms, candelabra and standards of white chrysanthemums and pink gladioli. The bridal couple left immediately for Fort Benning, Ga., where Captain Carter is stationed until December 11th, when he finishes his course and gets his promotion; they will then move to Camp Butner, North Carolina.

PECANS, HICKORY NUTS AND WALNUTS SAVE MEAT

Nuts make the fats go farther in cookery, and they also help to "spare" the meat. They are a Victory food special, and can be made important in meals right now.

According to nutrition experts, nuts are between one-half and two-thirds fat, and they have other food value, too, that makes them important in the daily diet. They are rich in phosphorus, and the unblanched kernels of walnuts and pecans are good in iron. Most nuts also furnish vitamins of the B group.

Since walnuts and pecaans, as well as other nuts, are a concentrated food, the resourceful housewife will work them in as part of the real meal rather than just as "something extra" with the dessert.

Most people enjoy the rich nutty flavor and the "crunch" of nuts in cookery. They are good mixed with a number of vegetables - sweet potatoes, cauliflower, creamed cabbage, and others. Nuts used in desserts, such as rice pudding, constarch pudding, gelatin and fruit, add flavor, variety, and nutrition. They are excellent in waffles, stuffings for meat, salads, and are delicious in breads, cakes, cookies, and pies.

Southern pecan pie is perhaps the favorite and most famous of nut pies. It takes corn syrup as part of the sweetening, saving some of the rationed sugar. A good recipe for pecan pie is given below:

1 cup of pecans
1-2 cup of sugar
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 easpoon vanilla
3 eggs
1-4 cup melted butter or other fat
1-8 teaspoon salt

Beat eggs, add sugar and syrup, then the salt and vanilla, and last the melted fat. Place pecans in bottom of an unbaked piecrust, pour the filling over the nuts and bake slowly in a moderate oven for 50 to 60 minutes. The nuts rise to the top of the filling and form a crusted layer.

RESTRICTED AREAS ON COOSA AND TALLAPOOSA RIVER

Regulations issued by the Acting Secretary of the Navy make all waters of the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers within 2,500 feet above, and 1,250 feet below, each of the power dams of Alabama Power Company, restricted areas. On the Coosa River these are Lay, Mitchell and Jordan Dams, and on the Tallapoosa they are Martin, Tallassee and Thurlow Dams.

The regulations will be enforced by L. C. Mueller, Commander, U. S. Coast Guard and Captain of the Port Mobile. Under the regulations, the regular guards at the dams, who have been enlisted as civilian auxiliaries to the Military Polce, are desgnated as enforcement officers who are authorized to detain violators.

No boat of any kind except the vessels operated by the United States shall enter, navigate, anchor or moor, within the restricted area without permission from the Captain of the Port of Mobile or his designated agent.

Penalty for violation of the rules and regulations, approved by the President of the United States on September, 9, 1942, is seizure and forfeiture to the United States of the vessel, together with her tackle, apparel, furniture and equipment. Persons guilty of failure to comply with the regulations are subject to imprisonment for not more than ten years and may, in the descretion of the court, be fined not more than $10,000.

The areas above and below each dam are being posted with signs in conspicuous and appropriate places.

A 16-sided church, erected in 1812 still stands at Richmond, Vt. Sixteen men built the structure, one for each side. The 17th man built the cupola. The building is now used for a tawn hall.

The FWA has approved new wells for Montgomery which will give the city a two million gallon water supply daily.

XMAS PACKAGES MUST BE SENT BEFORE DECEMBER 1st

The bulk of Christmas mail must be in the post offices by December 1, this year if deliveries on time are to be assured, according to Smith W. Purdum, Second Assistant Postmaster General. Mr. Purdum is responsible to Postmaster General Frank C. Walker for smooth and efficient air and railway mail service.

Unprecendented wartime demands on the postal and transportation systems, plus a prospective record volume of Christmas mailings, were cited by Mr. Purdum as necessitating earlier mailings than ever before. "It is physically impossible for the railroads and air lines, burdened with vitally important war materials, to handle Christmas mailings as rapidly as in normal times," Mr. Purdum said. "If the bulk of parcels and greeting cards are held back until the usual time—the period of about Dec. 15 to 23—they simply cannot be distributed in time, and thousands of gifts will reach their destinations after Christmas."

In 1941, about 21,950 mail cars were required between December 12 and 24 to deliver Christmas mails—enough to make a train 270 miles long. This year, the extra cars needed to move holiday mails are largely being used by the armed services, and a severe shortage is in prospect.

Two Mobile churches—the Central Presbyterian and the St. Francis St. Methodist—recently celebrated their centennials.

DEATH OF WOODFIN SMITHERMAN

The days of Woodfin were brief, he was born to Mr. and Mrs. Willis Smitherman on November 7, 1914. He was killed November 7, 1942, while on manuevers off the coast of Florida.

He was a cadet in the Air Corps at Lee's Field, Jacksonville, Fla.

Joining the Plantersville Baptist Church in early life, he lived a true christian until death.

He was a graduate of the Dallas County High School, also of A. P. I. at Auburn, finishing with honors, he taught at Red Level several years where he was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Woodfin's life was short upon this earth, but it was filled with sunshine and happiness. He had a smile for everyone. It seems hard for one so young to be taken, but his soul is just transplanted in the Great Beyond.

To the God of all comfort and consolation we look for power and faith to heal our lacerated hearts.

To his broken-hearted family we extend our heart felt sympathy and were it possible would lift the sorrow. Grieve not for your loved one for he has gone from a world of sorrow, to one of joy and peace, where there is no parting, no sad farewells, no sickness but eternal peace.

He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Smitherman of Plantersville, three sisters, Mrs. Clara Montgomery, Mrs. Eugene Fuller, Mobile and Miss Dorothy, Plantersville, three brothers, Pvt. Emmette, somewhere in England, Pvt. Wendell, Craig Field, Robert Howard of Plantersville, besides a number of relatives and friends.

This seperation is only temporary, only be faithful and have patience to wait and we shall meet again.

"Deep in our heart lies a picture of a loved one far away,
In memory's frame, we shall keep it,
Because he was one of the fray.
Woodfin, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more.
Still in memory you are with us, as you always were before.

Mrs. J. K. Lovelady.

IN MEMORY

In memory of our dear brother Chester Ottis Williams, age 27, who departed this life October 26, 1942.

Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all.
We miss you now our hearts are sore
As time goes by we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your place.
Deep in our hearts lies a picture of a loved one laid to rest,
In Memory's frame we shall keep it because he has gone to rest.
Dear brother you are not forgotten
though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us as you were before.

AND WAITING

Having detailed a fatigue party to load a lorry with flour, the sergeant in charge went to see how they were getting on. They weren't.

"What are you fellows waiting for?" he shouted, when he found them gazing expectantly at the sacks.

" 'Sall right, sergeant," said the wag of the party. "Those sacks are all marked 'self-rising,' so we're just hoping."

Ode to Yuletide . . . Plum Pudding and Fruit Cake
(See Recipes Below.)

Cakes 'n' Puddin's

Home is where the heart is and Christmas is what tradition is. And that tradition is to a large extent what foods you serve. If you really want to make it a season for starry-eyed brightness and plain honest-to-goodness good cheer, have a holiday with all the food trimmings like frosted fruited cookies, dark, spicy fruit cake and a plum pudding mellowed to wonderful goodness.

Begin these preparations now—for the ingredients of Xmas cakes, puddings and cookies take on a charm—and flavor—with age. Preparations can be a snap if you budget a day for cutting up fruit and nuts, another day for mixing and baking, and a third day for packing.

First, for fruit cake—the cake with almost two dozen extra special ingredients. This year's fruit cake is tuned to the times, uses honey and molasses to save on your precious sugar ration:

Fruit Cake.
(Makes 10 pounds)

1 pound butter or other shortening
1 pound brown sugar
10 eggs, well beaten
1 cup honey
1 cup molasses
½ cup sweet cider
1 pound sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon mace
½ pound candied pineapple
½ pound candied cherries
1 pound dates, seeded and sliced
1 pound raisins
1 pound currants
½ pound citron, thinly sliced
½ pound candied lemon and orange peel
½ pound nutmeats, chopped

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and spices and sift again. Cream the shortening thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, fruits, peel, nuts, honey, molasses and cider. Add flour gradually. Bake in 4 (8 by 8 by 2 inches) pans, lined with greased paper, in slow oven (250 degrees) 3 to 3½ hours.

Plum pudding gets my vote as being highly desirable for the family feast at Christmas.

Plum Pudding.
(Makes 3 1-quart molds)

2 cups prunes, cooked
1½ cups currants
1 cup raisins
1½ cups citron, chopped
¾ cup preserved orange peel
1 cup candied cherries, chopped
1 cup nutmeats, broken
1 cup all-bran
½ cup juice, from prunes
1½ cups butter or substitute
1½ cups sugar
4 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
2 cups soft white bread crumbs
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon each, cloves, nutmeg, ginger

Cut prunes into small pieces, combine with other fruits and all-bran. Add prune juice, and mix well. Blend butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs and flavoring. Add bread crumbs and flour sifted with spices. Blend in fruit mixture. Stir until all fruit is well distributed. Fill greased pudding molds two-thirds full; cover and steam 3½ to 4 hours.

I think the spicy lemon sauce goes well with the bland pudding. You'll like this one:

Lemon Sauce.
(Makes 1¼ cups)

1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon butter

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt thoroughly. Add water. Heat to boiling and cook until clear and thick, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice, rind, and pour slowly over beaten egg yolks. Cook another minute and add butter.

Fig Maple Pudding.
(Serves 5)

¼ pound figs
¾ cup maple syrup
½ cup boiling water
¾ cup sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons shortening
¼ to ⅓ cup milk

Soften figs in cold water, cut in halves and place in greased baking dish. Mix syrup with boiling water and pour over figs. Cover dish and steam for ½ hour. Sift dry ingredients together, cut in shortening with pastry blender or knives, add milk and mix lightly. Remove baking dish from steamer. Pour batter over figs, return to steamer for 1 hour. This pudding provides its own sauce.

Ever hear of putting a raw apple or slice of one in the cookie jar—or tin—if you still have one to keep cookies fresh? You've no idea how delicious these fruity cookies will taste if you follow the above prescription. Made-with-honey cookies are much akin to fruit cakes and plum pudding in that they need to ripen and mellow:

Christmas Fruit Nuggets.

½ cup shortening
1½ cups honey
2 eggs
3 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon each, cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg
½ cup milk
½ cup candied pineapple
1 cup each, candied cherries, raisins, nuts

Cream shortening, drizzle in honey and cream together. Add beaten eggs, and mix thoroughly. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk. Chop fruits, mix together and dredge with flour before folding into mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls into greased tins or tiny paper cups. Bake in moderate (375-degree) oven for about 15 minutes.

Lynn Says:

Let's Decorate! The fruit cakes and puddings, of course! A cluster of candied cherries in the middle with leaves fashioned of artificial rose leaves makes an attractive cake.

You'll be praised for a rose garnish made of gelatin candies shaped like lemon and orange segments into thin, lengthwise slices. Roll a slice tightly to form center of rose and press other slices around it to make petals.

Simpler decorations can be made of almonds or other nutmeats forming flowers with candied peel as petals or centers.

To store cake, place it in airtight container for several weeks. Sound apples may be placed in container, and changed as they become shriveled, to provide moisture.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In the modern automobile there are 32.5 pounds of rubber in addition to that used in tires and tubes.

Last summer's national scrap rubber drive brought out 6.87 pounds per capita. Even this gratifying amount represented only a scraping of the surface of the scrap littering the backyards, cellars and attics of the country.

There are some 3,065,000 miles of roads in the United States of which 40% are of the surfaced highway type. More improved roads than any other country in the world.

There are more than 10 motor vehicles for each mile of highway in the United States. Pre-gas rationing Sundays made this ratio seem like 10 cars to each 100 feet of road.

In 1940 it was estimated that the market value of passenger cars in the U.S. was $7,209,000,000; trucks had a value of $1,165,000,000.

WHO'S NEWS This Week

By
Lemuel F. Parton

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Just after the last World war, there was an airplane rough-rider known as the only man who could crowd Jimmy Doolittle in putting a plane through murderous punishment and landing all of a piece, with his ship still holding together. He looked like Francis X. Bushman and spoke softly.

General Strickland Was the Toughest Buckaroo of Skies

That was young Lieut. Auby Casey Strickland, just now Brigadier General Strickland, leading our bombers against Rommel and giving our side just about its first chance to cheer without keeping its fingers crossed. As chief of the bomber command of the United States army air forces—overseas last July—he rode the first plane of our bomber formation which wrought historic havoc and hurried the Axis on its way. There's a sidelight on General Strickland in his commendation of his fliers in a successful attack a few days ago: "Knocking them right down on their own airfield! That will teach those monkeys a lesson! We'll drive these rats out of their holes! Tonight treats for the whole squadron, and it's going to be on me."

He was born in Braggs, Ala., September 17, 1895, attended Alabama Polytechnic college, where he played football, and joined the army in November, 1917, not a West Pointer. He was a first lieutenant in the reserve corps and served overseas in the artillery. In July, 1920, he switched to the regular army, getting a joint commission as first and second lieutenant, the latter a formality incidental to the former. He was a captain in 1930, a major in 1935, a lieutenant colonel in 1940, a colonel in 1941 and a brigadier general last July. He completed the army flying school course in 1922 and attended tactical school in 1939.

FOR obvious reasons, it is a pleasure to spot a sound Americana item in the news these days. Here's a nice one in the story of the New York Philharmonic symphony picking Howard Barlow to swing its baton for a spell at Carnegie hall, even if his first program was of foreign origin. Mr. Barlow swung a cowboy's quirt before he ever waved a baton, worked in lumber camps and engaged in other uniquely American occupations before his career as a musician.

Comes Out From Deep in Hinterland To Swing a Baton

He caught the real American idiom, in speech and music and in his 15 years conducting the CBS orchestra, he played American composers and fostered American genius. In 1940, he was awarded a certificate of merit by the National Association for Composers and Conductors as "the outstanding native interpreter of American music" during that season.

When he was around 17, Mr. Barlow left his home at Plain City, Ohio, where he was born, for a job on a Colorado ranch, near Denver. He rode an Old Paint and rode an Old Dan and made the little dogies git along for about two years and liked it so well that he almost made it a business. However, he was diverted to the University of Colorado, where he swarmed all over the music department in his glee club and orchestral activities. A necessary sabbatical interval of heaving logs and slabs in an Oregon lumber camp landed him at Reed college, Oregon, where he picked up an A.B. degree, a scholarship at Columbia university, and $25. Thus accoutred, he crashed New York, conducted choral societies and made his debut as an orchestra conductor at the Peterborough, N. H., MacDowell festivals in 1919.

As an aside, he had served as sergeant with the AEF. He conducted the American National orchestra from 1923 to 1925, and joined CBS in 1927. High musical dignitaries were inclined to high-hat the radio then, as a medium for serious music. Mr. Barlow stepped right into the classics and has been a pioneer in proving that no subtlety of tone or musicianship is beyond the capacity of a good loudspeaker. The Philharmonic calls him after quite a long absence of Americans from its podium.

DON'T shush the war talk when the children are around. Answer their questions and tell them the truth. Such is the urgent advice to parents by Dr. Eduard C. Lindeman, professor of sociology at the New York School of Social Work. "Evasions give the children a sense of our untrustworthiness," says the veteran educator, sociologist, humanitarian and author, who was a laborer until 21. Then he took a B.S. degree at Michigan Agricultural college and began social work in Detroit and Lansing.

They really are the most delicious muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! Made with crisp, toasted shreds of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they have a texture and flavor that have made them famous all over America.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup All-Bran
¾ cup milk
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2¼ inches in diameter.

AN ORDINANCE

To prevent within the corporate limits of the City of Clanton, Alabama, on and after January 1, 1943 the keeping of a pool or billiard table, of any size, or any similar device or like table, for hire or amusement, it being the opinion and judgement of the City Council of the City of Clanton, Alabama that the public good demands the same.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CLANTON, ALABAMA AS FOLLOWS

Section 1. That it is the opinion and judgement of the City Council of the City of Clanton, Alabama, and it is so adjudged, that the public good in the City of Clanton, Alabama demands that on and after January 1, 1943, that pool and billiard tables, of any size, or any similar device or like table for hire or amusement be restrained and prohibited.

Section 2. That on and after Jan 1, 1943 it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, partnership or association to keep within the corporate limits of the City of Clanton, Alabama, a billiard or pool table, of any size or any similar device or like table, upon which the public can play, whether for hire or amusement, provided however, this section shall not be construed to prohibit the keeping of a pool or billiard table by a bona fide resident of the City in his or her residence or their club room for his or their private recreation or amusement.

Section 3. That any person violating any of the provisions of the foregoing section upon conviction must be fined not more than One Hundred Dollars, and not less than One Dollar, and may also be imprisoned or sentenced to hard labor for the City of Clanton, Alabama, for not more than six months, one or both, at the discretion of the Court trying the case.

This the 17th day of November, 1942.

Rats Our Enemy Same As Japs

—By: P. H. Smith, County Agent

"There are a lot of "rats" loose in the world today. Fortunately in Alabama we have only the four-footed, dark-brown variety that has a long tail. These rats that we have are definitely in partnership with the other kinds and are, proportionately, just as destructive. The human rats destroy life itself, and the other destroys food essential for life.

Rats, in the winter time, move into or near buildings used for storing food. They do this in order to be near their food supply and for protection from winter weather. In order to successfully combat this pest, several things must be kept in mind.

"First, everything possible should be done to discourage the presence of rats. Make buildings as nearly rat proof as possible. Clean up piles of brush, old lumber, or other trash under which they may den. It is very important that all kinds of food be stored in rat-proof containers insofar as it is possible to do so.

"After everything possible has been done to discourage this pest from taking up residence at your place then a real war must be waged against him. War to the death is the only kind of war that any kind of a "rat" will notice. Every device known might have to be used to get rid of this pest. Dogs, cats, traps, and poison baits all will help. The use of poison bait is the most effective and quickest way to get rid of a large number of rats. However, so long as there is plenty of corn, peanuts, laying mash, or other kinds of food that rats like left out in the open there is not much use putting poison in something that is less palatable to rats and expect them to eat it.

RED QUILL is a powder that is very effective against rats. It has the good quality of being relatively nonpoisonous to other animals. It should be obtainable through your local druggist.

BARIUM CARBONATE is a good poison to use against rats. It is a white powder that is odorless and tasteless. It has the disadvantage of being poisonous to other animals. For that reason baits which contain barium carbonate must be put out of reach of poultry, pets, etc. This material should be mixed with ground beef, cheese, fish, rolled oats, peanut butter, or other baits in the proportion of 1 part poison to 5 parts of bait. Poison baits should be put out at night. Baits the size of a pecan should be placed in the openings of rat dens, along the walls of buildings, and everywhere that rats have been seen. At times it helps to partially wrap the bait in a piece of old newspaper. After the place has been well treated with poison baits do not use poison any more for several weeks. Follow up with traps, cats, rat dogs, or other means for those rascals do not fall for a good bait. All "rats" are alike—they have to be shown that they are not wanted."

Jemison 6th Grade Take Trip To Montgomery

On Friday the 13th, a section of the sixth grade took a trip to Montgomery. Luckily for me, it was my section.

We had a very nice ride. Going down that morning we stopped at Maxwell Field where we saw different kinds of airplanes, landing and taking off. There we got a good view of a bomber. We also saw soldiers drilling on the fields.

Just before we got to Montgomery we stopped and saw the "Marker" that told us when and where Desoto came into Alabama.

Our next stop was the Capital. As we entered the porch of the capitol each of us stood on the spot where Jefferson Davis took the oath of office of the Confederacy.

After entering the Capitol and going up the winding stairs, we enjoyed the famous paintings of the different periods in the life of Alabama. There was also on the walls the coat of arms of Spain, France, England and the Confederacy. We could not go into the halls where the Senate and House of Represntativs meet for they were being cleaned for the Special Session of the Legislature which was to begin the next Monday.

The guide then made arrangments for us to see the Governor. We all lined up, and were told to introduce ourselves and shake hands with him. It was worth the trip to see and shake hands with him. Ann Turner and Alice Dorr Denson took their autograph books along and Governor Dixon autographed them.

Mr. Brandon, Secretary of State, was very nice to us, and gave each one of us a "Seal of Alabama," with his compliments.

Mrs. Deason took all the girls to the Ladies lounge and the guide took the boys to the Men's lounge. After we rested a few minutes we went out on the Capitol grounds and saw the different statues.

Next, we went to the History of Archieves Building. Guess who we saw there! The lady who wrote the 8th grade "History of Alabama", Mrs. Marie Bankhead Owen". She complimentd our class, on the orderly way in which we came into the building. She said our boys acted like real little Southern Gentlemen, when they stood back and let the girls go up on the elevator first. She called a guide and the guide explained to us about the carvings on the doors of the building. She told us the walls were made of Alabama Marble and the floors of Tennessee Marble. We especially enjoyed the "Rufus R. King" room, and the costume of the queen of Mardi Gras at Mobile.

We then went on to Jefferson Davis' home. There some of our best readers, took a little book, and a group of fine children, and there the reader read about the things we saw in each room. We really did enjoy going thru "The White House of the Confederacy."

By this time we were all ready for our lunch. As we all brought a picnic lunch, we drove out to Oak Park. While our teacher and the three mothers who came with us spread lunch we all went to the animals. After lunch we played on the swings, bars, and merry-go-rounds, and before we knew it it was time for us to leave.

We all owe a large part of our pleasure to our teacher, Mrs. Deason, and to Mr. Peterson, who allowed us to go. We will never forget some of the many things we learned on this trip.

6th Grade Pupil.

Dr. Huntley Is Appointed Dean At University

Dr. M. C. Huntley, executive secretary of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, has been selected as Dean of Administration at the University of Alabama according to the announcement made today by President Raymond Ross Paty.

The appointment of Dr. Huntley to this new post will relieve President Paty of many departmental administrative duties, and give him greater freedom to adjust the University to the national war program.

Dr. Huntley is a native Mississippian and received his B.A. and LL.D. degrees from Millsaps College, and his Master's degree from Emory University. He has also studied at Columbia, the University of Chicago and John Hopkins University.

Dr. Huntley taught two years at Millsaps Academy and was a member of the faculty at Birmingham-Southern College from 1925 through 1929. He has served as executive secretary of the Southern Association since 1930 with offices in Atlanta.

His college career was interrupted by two years in the field artillery, one year overseas with the AEF; and two years in the newspaper business. He served as city editor of the Jackson Miss., Clarion-Ledger and a member of the Staff of the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Twelve years as executive secretary of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools give Dr. Huntley a most thorough knowledge of the educational problems and objectives of the South. He assumes his new duties on December 1.

CHRISTMAS SEALS NOW ON SALE

The traditional Christmas Seals went on sale as is the annual custom in every county of Alabama Monday and will continue to be available until Christmas morning. The beautiful little Seals are used by millions in America as harbingers of the happy Yule Season and as a signal that they are enlisted in the war against the dreaded tuberculosis which has inflicted men and women as no other malady in the history of men.

The local work in this county is in charge of Mrs. J. M. Shepherd and all friends of public health are urged to support the local committee and become a member of this crusade for the good of our county and state and fellow citizens.

After the joint meeting Miss Barber took charge of the girls. Officers were elected for this year. They are as follows: President, Blanche Miller; Vice-President, Edna Ousley; Secretary-Treasurer, Bernice Davis; Song Leader, Margie Burnette; Reporter, Frances Chism. Miss Barber gave us our new record books for the new year. She also gave us 4-H news letters. After this the meeting was adjourned.—Reporter.

CHILTON CO. WOMEN AT WAR

COUNTY HAS FAILED TO REACH QUOTA FOR MONTHS OF OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER

Mrs. J. W. Hayes, chairman of the Womans Division of the Chilton County War Bond Committee, stated Wednesday morning that plans were underway for a County-wide organization of the Womans Division and actual forming of committee had already started.

On December 7th, anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor, this committee will have Booths on the downtown streets for the purpose of selling War Bonds and the business section will be canvassed.

For the past two months Chilton County has failed to reach its quota and a concerted drive is underway in December by the entire County War Bond Committee to go over-the-top. The Minute Women will help do this on December 7th.

The Committee named for this work are Mrs. John Mullins, Mrs. Pat Smith Mrs. Frank Scott, Mrs. Mary Will Browder and Mrs. Hugh Jones.

Mrs. Hayes plans to name other committees this week and the entire organization will be announced next week.

JR. RED CROSS ENROLLMENT DRIVE STARTED

The Jr. Red Cross Enrollment from the various schools has been coming in during the past few days..

Ten rooms at Clanton Grammar school have reported. These rooms have contributed $8.61 to the National Childrens Fund. The children will be in touch with Jr. Red Cross work through the year as each enrolled room recieves a copy of the Jr. Red Cross News each month. The sixth grade did a fine job making nut cups to be used for the Christmas dinner at Fort McClellan. They were very attractively made of red white and blue crepe paper.

The other schools that have reported are Verbena high school $1.41, Chilton County High $6.00, Thomas Jr. High $1.00 enrollment, $1.00 National Childrens Fund. Thomas Jr. Elementary $2.00, Enterprise Elementary $3.00 Enterprise Jr. High $1.00, Thorsby Elementary and Jr. High $3.00.

The colored schools are Verbena City 50c; St. Paul 50c, Clanton Grammar $2.50, Morning Star 50c, County Training School $1.00, County Training School Elementary $2.00. The Hi. school gave 25c for National Childrens Fund.

Some very nice recreational articles are being made by the boys and girls of the high schools. The Home Economic girls are making bed room slippers and other articles to be used in hospitals. Beginning January 1st, the county will have a new quota of articles to be made thereby carrying out the plans of the Jr. Red Cross program of Earn, Buy, Make and Give.

The "penny milk" program is being adopted by many Alabama schools.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP ELECTS OFFICERS

The following officers have been elected by the Methodist Youth Fellowship to serve during the next year: President—Herbert Newell; Vice-President—Thad McSwain; Secretary-Treasurer—Juanita Newell; Group Leaders—Martha Stewart and Virginia Murphree; Pianist—Jean Waite; Assistant-Pianist and Song Leader—Frances McSwain.

The Counsellor is Miss Frances Martin.

Wednesday night at 7:00 the Fellowship will meet at the church to practice Christmas Carols. All Young people are urged to attend.

Up in Marshall County there's a "Double Bridge."

WHO SAID THAT "OLD FOLKS" COULDN'T STAND UP TO YOUTH

Here's one for the book. Every rule has its exception and here is the exception to the rule. Up at Jemison Tuesday night the Band Mothers played the Senior III girls a game of Basket Ball. The Mothers came out on the long end of the score and the Senior girls have challenged them to another game. That guy who wrote the lines about "Youth Must Be Served" didn't know what he was talking about. That is if he was talking about these Jemison Mothers and Basket Ball.

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DENTAL INFECTION

When we read of the great percentage of recruits rejected for army service we are apt to be discouraged about the health of our young men. When we read further and find that the cause of the greatest number being rejected is infected teeth we are apt to give a sigh of relief because "everybody has some bad teeth."

What we are forgetting, however, is that, while infected teeth are common and "apparently" cause little or no harm to the body, it is known to physicians and dentists that infected teeth are the cause of a great many symptoms and even diseases and result in pain and a great loss of time from work.

In an article "Dental Infections and the Industrial Worker" in the Journal of the American Dental Association Dr. Ernest Goldhorn, Chicago, states: "Statistics reveal that, regardless of age, sex or economic condition, 80 per cent of the people suffer from one or both of the two classes of dental disease, tooth decay and pyorrhea (inflammation of the gums)." Dental infection has long been recognized as a predisposing cause of rheumatism, arthritis, lumbago, neuritis, particularly sciatica.

Sometimes an industrial worker will have a fall or slight injury to the joint and the pain and disability which follow is considered due entirely to the fall, whereas infection from the teeth or gums is already present in the joints or in the ends of the muscles moving the joint (fibrositis) and, of course, the injury or fall aggravates the condition.

On the other hand, a joint that has been injured is often the first spot to which infection from teeth and gums is carried by the blood.

"Dental infections may cause ulcers of the stomach and intestines, colitis, appendicitis, gall-bladder infection and even cancer." Most physicians feel that it would be safe to say that there is not an organ or tissue in the body that cannot be damaged by infection from teeth and gums.

In these days when industrial workers, all of us, in fact, should be at our best physically and mentally, and we know that nothing makes one quite so tired or "lazy" as infection, then the commonest infection known—dental infection—should not remain so common when a visit to our dentist twice a year will prevent it.

Change of Life Common to Men

Physicians are often asked why it is that men do not undergo a change similar to the menopause in women. Women undergo the menopause and in practically all cases there are some symptoms aside from the stopping of the monthly period. In some cases the nervous and emotional disturbances are so severe that care in an institution for months becomes necessary.

As a matter of fact, men pass through a similar period, but as there are few outstanding symptoms, such as with women, the "change" in men is so gradual that it is not suspected by the individual nor perhaps by his family. The average age for the beginning of the change in men is about 50 but may be years later, and may last for years just as with women.

One common symptom in men is the increase in weight, particularly, in lower abdomen and often a loss of fat and muscle also about the chest and shoulders. Instead of wide shoulders and narrow or medium hips, he becomes pear shaped in appearance.

Other symptoms noted are excessive perspiration, nervous instability, failing memory, irritability, gradual lack of interest in business, lodge, sport and other affairs in which he has always been interested.

Just as women at the menopause suffer with more aches and pains than before, so also do men, although there are not as many cases of crippling arthritis as in women.

Other symptoms of the "change" in men are dizziness, headaches, rapid heart beat, increase in blood pressure, chilliness alternating with excessive perspiration, lack of confidence, lack of concentration, anxiety states, insomnia, mental and physical fatigue, disturbance with urine and bladder due to enlarged prostate gland.

Q.—Other than the discomfort occasioned by sinus trouble has it any serious effects?

A.—Sinus trouble with no pus formation and no complications is not a serious condition. With pus formation there is danger of infection of joints and other parts. In the dry form of catarrh from sinus trouble there is halitosis. Argyrol has been used for many years. It should be used under the supervision of a physician.

WHO'S NEWS This Week

By Lemuel F. Parton

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Just after he won the world heavyweight championship, Jack Sharkey was dining at Tait's restaurant in San Francisco. The waiter brought him a lobster with one claw missing. Jack wanted to know about that. The waiter explained that two lobsters had been brought together in a crate from Martinez; that they had a fight and this one lost its claw.

Psychological By-Products of North Africa Mount Daily

"Take this bum away and bring me the winner!" bellowed Jack.

The quite human desire to string with a winner is manifesting itself in Latin-American countries, and perhaps elsewhere, since the U. S. A. cut loose and started swinging in North Africa. Dispatches from several countries tell of sentiment shifting to the Allies, and away from the Axis. More specifically, Argentina's distinguished hair-splitting legalist, Sr. Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, is caught off dead-center for just about the first time in his long and amiably noncommittal career. As foreign minister of Argentina, he cables to the U. S. A. his felicitations and his expression of Argentina's "solidarity" behind our North African campaign. There is the rumble of the band-wagon as well as of guns throughout the world.

During the Pan-American conference at Rio de Janeiro last January, gleaners among the senor's learned and bland evasions could not find so much as a straw in the wind. Seven months earlier, he had been elaborately feted at Washington, with state dinners and a big, jovial stag party by the President, and as time passed it appeared that we might not even get our bait back. Our later cultural phalanxes moving on Argentina, seemed equally ineffective. Argentina remained our hardest nut to crack. Perhaps General Eisenhower has cracked it.

Representing Argentina at the League of Nations for many years, Sr. Ruiz Guinazu was an eminent personage in the great academic tournaments which deplored but sidestepped the oncoming Axis juggernaut. He was president of the League of Nations council in 1935, and in that year voted with the opposition when it was proposed to throw a switch on Mussolini, en route to Ethiopia. He is a veteran of Argentinian statesmanship, profoundly learned in International law, and political theory, for several years ambassador to Switzerland. Cautious and cryptic, although always gracious and smiling, he is at last on record—for "the safeguarding and security of the Americas," as he cables Secretary Hull.

IT WAS nearly two years ago that Robert D. Murphy, then counsellor for our embassy at Vichy, started on a little publicized tour of North Africa, "inspecting our consulates," as the cautious little newspaper handouts of the time would have it.

We Have Had a Lawrence of North Africa on the Job

There were subsequent trips which made it clear that Mr. Murphy's interests were not confined to consular efficiency. General Eisenhower supplies additional and final proof in leading the greatest sea and air borne invasion of all time—strategically and politically readied by Mr. Murphy's preparation.

As to the bournous and all the other traditionally romantic fixings of such enterprise, it's quite the reverse so far as Mr. Murphy is concerned. He is a trim-rigged diplomat, whose genial and ready smile, as well as his name, suggests his Irish antecedents. He has been correct and dependable in diplomatic punctilio.

Much of Mr. Murphy's activity seems to have been adroitly political. He rallied Free French adherents everywhere and he made strategical use of American food and clothing supplies. The latter was, of course, denounced as appeasement of Vichy, with an insistence that the supplies would find their way into German hands. The Germans put us right on that, if we were reading their Paris newspaper Aujourd 'Hui, of February 10, 1941. They villified Mr. Murphy as a conspirator working with the DeGaulle forces.

Born and reared in Milwaukee, Mr. Murphy attended Marquette academy and George Washington university. He entered the career service of the state department in 1917. Stationed at consular posts in Europe and Africa, he frequently was entrusted with strategic and scouting missions. Department insiders have long known him as a quiet, cagey, political explorer, with a camera eye and a nose for inside news. For the preparatory work Mr. Murphy has done in North Africa, he deservedly takes a bow along with General Eisenhower.

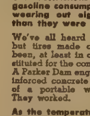
SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER



Until restrictions were placed on gasoline consumption, tires were wearing out eight times faster than they were being replaced.

We've all heard of wooden tires, but tires made of concrete have been, at least in one instance, substituted for the conventional rubber. A Parker Dam engineer had cast reinforced concrete tires on the rims of a portable welding machine. They worked.

As the temperature inside a tire increases, the pressure goes up, but it is poor rubber economy to "bleed" or let the air out of the tire when it is hot. To do so means under-inflation—and rubber waste—when the casing cools.

In 1911 a tire for the then popular make of car cost the motorist $25.30 and gave about 2500 miles. A comparable tire for the present day popular makes of cars can be had (with ration certificate) for about $15. Properly handled it will return close to 25,000 miles of service.

Fill the Christmas Cookie Jar!
(See Recipes Below.)

Cookie Treats

Festivity reigns in the home where the cookie jar fairly pops with Santas, Christmas trees and reindeer made up into cookies dusted with shimmering colored sugars. Have a few fruity and honey cookies along with the real sugar cookies and you will win every youngster's fondest affection.

Since this year's Christmas tree ornaments may be a bit on the slim side, plan to string a few of the cookies on the tree to make for decorations. This will be a real old-fashioned Christmas.

You'll want to pack boxes, too, to send to that son at camp, perhaps, if he is not too far, and also for the one who is home on furlough, or for those nice neighbors who just moved in.

Come, join the cookie parade with the first Christmas goody on our list:

Honey Butterballs.
(Makes 30 to 40)

1 cup butter
¼ cup honey
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups finely chopped nuts

Cream butter, add honey, flour, salt and vanilla. Mix well and add chopped nuts. Form into small balls on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 35 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar while hot. Cool, then roll again in powdered sugar.

Have you ever watched the face of a child light up when he picks and chooses his favorite Christmas-y shaped cookie with his favorite colored sugar? Here's the recipe:

Old-Fashioned Sugar Cookies.
(Makes 3 dozen)

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2¾ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg and beat in well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Cut with floured cookie cutter and sprinkle with white or colored sugar. Bake on a greased sheet in a moderately hot (375-degree oven. About 15 minutes. Thin, wafer-like cookies are made by chilling the dough first, then rolling thin, and lifting shapes onto cookie tin with spatula.

You'll find plenty of the victory vitamin, B-1, which nourishes nerve tissues in oatmeal. This plus iron for your blood and proteins for perking up worn-out tissues—and good flavor besides are found in this cookie:

Oatmeal Drops.

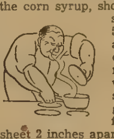
2 cups 3-minute oats
1 cup corn syrup
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon soda dissolved in 4 tablespoons boiling water
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup chopped raisins



Bring to a boil in a saucepan, the corn syrup, shortening, and raisins and cook for 5 minutes, then add soda. Mix in oats, flour and nutmeg. Blend well and drop by spoonfuls on a greased and floured baking sheet 2 inches apart. Bake in a hot (375-400-degree) oven for 10 minutes.

Raisin Bran Ginger Snaps.
(Makes 4 dozen)

1 cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons ginger
½ cup molasses
6 tablespoons butter
2 cups raisin bran

Sift dry ingredients once, then sift again. Combine molasses and shortening and bring slowly to a boil. Boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool to lukewarm. Add raisin bran and mix well. Add flour mixture, working it thoroughly into dough. Chill until firm. Roll on a floured board, ⅛ inch thick, and cut with a floured cutter. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 10 minutes.

A lacy, delicate cookie are these pecan crispies—perfect for making in the winter:

Pecan Crispies.
(Makes about 35 cookies)

2 tablespoons butter
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/16 teaspoon salt
2 cups coarsely chopped pecans

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Mix thoroughly and add flour, baking powder, salt and pecans. Drop half-spoonfuls apart on a buttered and floured tin. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees). Cool slightly before removing from pan.

Chocolate Crumb Cookies.
(Makes 2 dozen)

3 cups oven-popped rice cereal
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1⅓ cups sweetened condensed milk
1 cup chopped nut meats
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Crush oven-popped rice cereal into fine crumbs. Melt chocolate over boiling water; remove from heat. Add condensed milk and blend well. Stir in crumbs, nut meats, salt and flavoring. Drop from tablespoon onto greased cookie sheet; bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove at once from cookie sheet with spatula.

Does the whipped cream get sulky? The cake fall at the crucial moment? The table decorations look flat and pointless? Explain your problem to Lynn Chambers and she'll tell you what to do about it. Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Get into step with the meat-sharing program now—it's your assignment. Stuffings are advised as good extenders, as are stews, meat pies, meat loaves, soups, turnovers and curries.

Liver need not be included in the 2½-pound adult allowance, nor need the cold cuts, heart, sweetbreads, kidneys and other entrails.

Spices will be on the slender side from now on, but you can still have the best tasting food, ever, with domestic herbs and seasonings. You'll also enjoy emulsion flavors for baking and dessert-making. They come in wild cherry, almond, maple, lemon, and a grand citrus combination.

Vegetables that are tops on your list for wintry days include the Hubbard and acorn squashes, broccoli, beets, carrots, brussel sprouts, turnips and sweet potatoes.

THE MEANING OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Colossians 3:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular.—I Corinthians 12:27.

Church membership means a great deal; a fact which has been obscured by the prevalent idea that joining the church is just like joining any other organization. We need to be reminded again and again that the local or denominational organization has real meaning only as it represents in the world a fellowship of true believers who, by the new birth, have become part of the living and true church, which is the body of which Christ is the Head.

It is likewise essential that believers know what their membership in the church means, so that they may fully appreciate it and properly present it to the world.

I. A New Life (vv. 1-3).

The church member is (or should be) a Christian, that is, one who has passed from death to life through the regenerating work of God in Christ (John 3:6, 7). Thus he has become "a new creature; old things have passed away; behold all things are become new" (II Cor. 5:17).

This new spiritual being has entirely changed interests and desires. The things of the world which he used to love have now become distasteful to him. The things of the Spirit which used to seem strange and not understandable to him (I Cor. 2:14) now become the center of his life. Being risen with Christ in newness of life he seeks those things which are above.

II. A Changed Life (vv. 4-13).

Setting one's heart upon things above means that the life will be changed. There will be a putting off of the things of earth and a putting on of the new man, in practice as well as in creed.

Although the Christian is a new creature in Christ, he bears with him until he dies (or Jesus comes) the old nature, which tries to hold him down, to draw him back to the worldly and fleshly things from which he was saved.

But the Christian is to "make no provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof" (Rom. 13:14). He is rather to "reckon" himself "to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive into God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

This calls for an act of his will (and a repeated or continuous act) by which he puts away the sinful things mentioned in verses 5-9. One might sum them up in two groups: (1) sexual indecency and immorality (v. 5), and (2) wicked words and attitudes (vv. 8, 9). The early church had no corner on such sins. They mar Christian fellowship now. They ought not do so, for the church member should show the new life of the soul by a changed life before his fellowman.

III. A Gracious Life (vv. 14-17).

Too often, following Christ—and church membership—has not seemed attractive to the unbeliever, nor has it recommended the grace of God, because it has been a sad, unpleasant, negative thing which God never intended it to be.

To the average non-Christian (rightly or wrongly), the matter of being a Christian seems to be a rather drab affair of denying one's self the interesting and pleasant things of life. Those who feel that way have never seen the real thing, for if they had, they would sense (even though they could not understand it) that here was the fulfillment of all that is best in life.

The purpose and plan of God for man is that he should be in fellowship with Him, and thus to be set free from the limitations and the disappointments of human life apart from God. The normal life of the Christian is one of love, peace, joy, fellowship, praise and thankfulness. Let us make it just that in this world of hatred, war, sorrow, division, weeping and ingratitude.

This portion of Scripture merits a closer examination. Note first that love (use "love" for charity in v. 14) is the bond which unites these Christian graces into a whole which is harmonious and well-balanced.

Naturally, the peace of Christ will be the ruling factor in such a life, controlling the heart, the seat of man's emotions and affections.

Such a life is cultivated and developed by the indwelling of God's Word and (note it) "richly." The weakness of many a church is found right here—there is so little teaching and receiving of the Word into the heart.

Christian faith expresses itself in song. "Thou hast put gladness in my heart" (Ps. 4:7), and that means a song. How true it is that hymns and songs teach and admonish us.

The life of the Christian church member is always conditioned by one perfect controlling influence—the will of God. He does all things, even the supposedly little or secular things, in the name of the Lord Jesus, with a constant thankfulness which goes up like a sweet incense to the Father through Christ.

Up to This Time Judge Had Not Been Suspected

A man was being tried in the local court for misappropriating a pig, and a conscientious witness, to whom the accused was said to have confided, was on the stand, being examined.

"Now then, can you repeat the exact words in which the prisoner confessed to you to taking the pig?" asked the counsel.

"He said, sir, that he took the pig," replied the witness.

The judge tried to simplify the question: "Did the prisoner say, 'He took the pig,' or did he say, 'I took the pig'?"

"Oh, no, your honor, he said that he took it. Your honor's name wasn't even mentioned."

Protecting Topsoil

To keep the topsoil from shifting in the dry Midwestern states, more than 100,000,000 trees are now growing in 17,000 shelter belts, some of which have already reached a height of 50 feet, reports Collier's. According to experts, these belts lift the prevailing wind up and over the leeward fields for a protective distance that is 20 times the height of the trees.

The Defense of American Freedom is our First Consideration

Remember Pearl Harbor

The Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama
Dear Editor:

The War Savings Committee of the United States is putting on the greatest drive for the sale of bonds and stamps that we have had since the war began. Next Monday, December 7, was a year ago when the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor, and killed hundreds of American soldiers. Among the number was Dr. Sam Johnson and others of this county which I do not have the record here before me at this time. They did not give any warning at all.

I want the people of Chilton County to buy every dollars worth of bonds and stamps that they possibly can this month. Let's show our boys how much we appreciate their effort and their bravery, and the success they are having at this very moment in the different war fronts over our enimies. Whereever the American boys are on fighting fronts, they are the bravest and the most courageous people of the world.

I can not help but appeal to the people of this county and ask every citizen to give serious thought and consider the terrible ordeal our boys are going through with. I am sure the people of this county have read where some of our soldiers in the Solomon Islands have been separated from their company, and have lived for days in the swamps without food. They have eaten tender green grass to keep them alive. Some have been on ships that were sunk and they had to step out into the dark ocean in the night, and floated around on a piece of wreckage for a day and night. Yet some of our people and even those that have boys and relatives in this war complains of being deprived of a little sugar, coffee, gasoline, and tires.

I ask you people one question: When you think of what our boys are going through with, do you feel like you have made any sacrifice when the Government only asks you to loan it the surplus money which is in the banks, paying you no interest and the banks do not need it, because there is no demand for money today. The Government offers you the best security in the world. Your money could be destroyed or lost but if the bonds you get were burned or stolen, the Government would give you a duplicate, and under the same conditions if your money were lost you would not get a duplicate. If you should get to where you needed your money back, the Government would redeem your bond with sixty days notice.

Some people ask me if the bonds are good. There is the same promise from your Government to pay the bonds that there is to redeem your money. If you keep the bond ten years you will get $4.00 for every -3.00 you invest.

Hundreds of people in the county heard Mr. Cecil S. Ward and you know what he told you about what life is in prison under the Japs.

Won't each and everyone of you consider that this is your war and that you have a duty to perform It will take all of us to win. Don't you think that you had rather have a bond for your money than a tax receipt? The Government is going to take care of the boys that are fighting for you and me, so if we do not do our part there is nothing left for the Government to do but to tax us. We feel like our boys are entitled to the best treatment and implements of war to fight with.

We are organizing a great drive. I hope you will meet the committees with a smile and help them all you can.

The Government is asking the good women of our county to organize in every beat, town, and community in our county, and we want to make a special drive on December 7. We want to remember that we were forced into this war just one year ago that day.

We do not get credit any more for the purchase of "F" and "G" bonds. Our county only gets credit for the "E" bonds.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Executive Chairman.

Look around today in Alabama at the orderly places where beer is sold. Compare them with the shady dives that clustered about army camps during speak-easy days of the last war.

How much better for our soldiers to patronize law-abiding retail outlets than to sneak up alleys and do business with bootleggers.

All law-abiding retail beer dealers in Alabama today maintain clean and orderly places. Those few who don't are being routed out by our Committee, hand-in-hand with the ABC Board and local law enforcement officers.

You can help with your support of our "clean up or close up" program and by reporting any violations of the law to the proper official or to us.

Help Win the War
with the Money You Save

Of course freedom is expensive. The highest price tags are always attached to the most precious items. And the cost of human liberty in blood and treasure is a staggering one. But to be able to speak and pray and think and vote the way we wish—did you ever hear anyone question the cost?

Some Americans are paying the cost with their lives. Others are buying as many Defense Stamps and Bonds as they possibly can—every day. Are you doing your share?

In order to provide every opportunity for the daily purchase of Stamps and Bonds, we're now selling them at each cash register in our store. Wherever you go, whenever you can, buy your share in our country's most precious possession—the Liberty, the Freedom of America! ●

WHAT'S DOING AT ISABELLA HIGH

By Jesse Culp

(To late for last week's paper)

Isabella closed what was probably her most unsuccessful football season here when Maplesville ran over her for an easy 27 to 0 win last Friday afternoon. The boys just couldn't seem to get started playing this year, accounting for only one victory.

But our loss in football doesn't affect the wins that we plan to make in basketball this year. I don't see what would keep Isabella from grabbing part of the fame in basketball this year. Just remember what determination did for Auburn last Saturday Get what I mean? I believe we can do it.

We hope to be able to give you a complete report soon on the amount of war bonds and stamps that have been bought at Isabella. One of the leading groups that have helped to put this over is the F.F.A. Several of the boys who have bought bonds, in addition to a great number of stamps. The chapter itself has bought a bond. Anyway, the general idea is, no matter how good the report is, YOU con help to make it better.

The defense school in woodworking held up at the agriculture muilding nights seems to be a success, judging by the general appearance of things up at the building. Everything is jamed full of everything from corn sheller boxes to milking stools, with possibly a few exceptions. If they are learning as fast as they are constructing they are surely "going to town."

Bus tires go flat sometimes, too don't they Lomer? . . . Those cheerleaders from Maplesville added quite a bit of interest to the game Friday, according to certain boys . . . We are glad to have old Beth back with us after her recent marriage to Pvt. Carl Culp . . . From general observation it appears that many students did very well on tests last week . . . The Beta Club was visited by a representative from the Curtis Publishing Company last week. It is now selling magazines, so if you are in the market for some mighty good reading and wish to help the Beta Club, see one of the members and give him or her your subscription . . . School turned out last week at 2 o'clock due to the gasoline registration, which was handled by the teachers.

POULTRY NOT INCLUDED IN SHARE MEAT PROGRAM

Pork, beef, veal, lamb and mutton will be rationed because there will not be enough of these meats for the armed forces if civilians eat all they want. But John Ivey, Extension poultry specialist of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, points out that poultry is not included in the Share-The-Meat program.

"Meats supply protein in the daily diet," says Ivey, "and for all practical purposes poultry and meat are identical in food value. Eggs are rich in protein. In addition, eggs are high in minerals and two of the B vitamins.

"The yolks of eggs are especially rich in iron—the mineral that helps to form the red blood cells. They are a rich source of phosphorus—a good source of thiamin and riboflavin, two of the B vitamins."

The extension specialist says that poultry meat and eggs are like other protien foods—they must be cooked slowly and at a moderate temperature. High temperatures for long periods of time shrink and toughen the protiens. The secret of cooking eggs or any of the meats is to use moderate, even heat.

Ivey also empasized that the color of the egg shell has nothing to do with egg quality. "A good egg may be brown or white," he declared

The extension worker says that both broiler and egg production in 1943 will be above that of 1942. This year poultrymen are producing a total of 4,414 million dozens of eggs. The 1941 production was 3,829 million dozens. U. S. production of chickens in 1942 is estimated at 3,118 million pounds, compared to 2,722 million pounds in 1941.

RESTRICTIONS ON SLAUGHTER OF MEAT FOR SALE

All persons who slaughter and deliver to others so much as one animal from which beef, veal, pork, mutton, or lamb is obtained are subject to meat restriction orders of the Office of Price Administration.

This announcement was made this week by the OPA, which pointed out that under terms of the orders records of all slaughtering for delivery to others must be kept and made available to inspectors of the OPA

You Can Perform Distinguished Service In School, Son

Dear 18- and 19-year Olds:

Chances are that you're now in school. In a few months you may be a soldier. You may be wondering what point there is to your continued devotion to your studies. But don't forget that the Army and the Navy both need your brains as well as your youthful manliness and courage. Don't forget either, that the war'll be over some day and you'll be wanting to get a job or go back to school. What you learn now will be valuable to you then. What you learn in the Army and Navy will also be helpful. Your opportunities for being selected for special branches of the services after your induction and basic training will depend to a large extent upon your IQ. So, instead of letting your studies "slide" between now and the time you are called, devote yourself all the more intently to them. Some little thing that you learn in this period may not seem important, but it may loom big in your career as a soldier. It may be the difference between your giving ordinary service or Distinguished Service. You can, in fact, be giving Distinguished Service now -- by keeping up with your studies until the very day you go into service.

Your folks are going to hate to see you go -- but they'll be proud of you too -- all the more proud if you turn out to be a non-commissioned officer or an officer candidate. What you have learned, and what you learn between now and your military service -- if you apply yourself to your studies -- will help you advance.

Ours is a business which employs people who pride themselves on giving "distinguished service". When the war is over, we may want to hire some more people like that. You may be one of them. Until your return, good luck and Godspeed!

Your friend,

Reddy Kilowatt

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Power of Russ Offensives Peril Nazi Armies From Moscow Line to Caucasus; Axis Stakes Africa Defense on Bizerte; Germans Seize French Port of Toulon

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FRENCH FLEET:
Toulon Occupied

When Adolf Hitler tore up the German-French armistice and marched into unoccupied France back in early November his armies by-passed the port of Toulon where the French fleet was known to be based. Such generosity lasted but two short weeks and then came the Nazi order to demobilize the army and navy of Vichy France in what was termed a move to counteract the gains of the United Nations in North Africa.

This meant that Toulon was being seized by the Germans and with it, the French fleet. Such action was taken, said the Nazis, because of "breaches of honor" on the part of French officials.

A Berlin announcement telling of the occupation of Toulon admitted that "part of the French fleet has scuttled itself." It was also admitted that the French forces in that area had "resisted" for a few hours before the city fell to the combined German-Italian armies.

SOUTH PACIFIC:
'Jap by Jap'

It was "Jap by Jap" as the American forces pushed slowly forward around Buna and Gona in New Guinea.

Even as the end appeared near for the enemy it was learned that he had been successful in landing fresh reinforcements.

Discovery that these new troops had been landed came when identification of enemy dead showed marine insignia different from that found on previous Jap casualties. These new uniforms and the excellent physical condition of the troops confirmed recent landings of strong reinforcements. Special markings on the uniforms indicated that these landing forces of shock troops had evidently been sent to relieve the hard-pressed Japs being pushed steadily backward by sustained Allied drives.

For almost two weeks Jap naval forces had been prowling off the New Guinea shore trying to get land forces on to the island. U. S. fliers were able to sink four destroyers and a light cruiser while this action was going on. Then under the cover of darkness and with adverse weather prevailing the Jap troops were finally landed.

While this made conditions more difficult for the Allied forces trying to drive the Japs off the island, there was no letup in the fierceness of the attack. From General MacArthur's headquarters came reports that the U. S.-Australian advance had been counted in yards and even feet as the inner defense circle of the enemy was pierced.

Meanwhile on Guadalcanal, U. S. troops continued to advance slowly east and west of Henderson airfield.

HALSEY:
'One of Five'

With record-breaking swiftness the senate confirmed President Roosevelt's action in promoting Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, leader of the victorious American fleet in the Solomon Islands sea battle, to the rank of full admiral.

Thus thoughtful, dogged Halsey became the fifth U. S. naval officer to carry the title of admiral. The others now serving are Adm. Ernest J. King, commander of the United States fleet; Chester W. Nimitz, head of the Pacific fleet; Royal E. Ingersoll, Atlantic fleet commander, and Harold R. Stark, commander of American naval forces in Europe.

ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY JR.
. . . Victory paid dividends.

RUSSIAN FRONT:
Reds Turn Table

Adolf Hitler's costliest venture of 1942 reaped frustration, as the Russian army mammoth new offensive brought relief to Stalingrad and threatened disaster to the Nazi's entire expedition beyond the Don river.

Gathering steamroller momentum on a 200-mile front the new Russian drive pierced deep into the Don-bounded area, slashing the flanks of the German wedge converging on Stalingrad, cutting the two railroads supplying the Nazi forces, and capturing dozens of towns and cities. One early Moscow communique reported that more than 100,000 German troops had been killed or captured in the first phases of the offensive.

That Marshal Timoshenko's strategy had been well planned was indicated by the effectiveness of the pincer movements it thrust out north and south of Stalingrad and southeast toward Rostov. This provided a trap for Nazi divisions between the Red spearheads and Stalingrad.

That the Soviet offensive was even more far-flung than Moscow at first reported was indicated by German high command communiques revealing that the Russian army had struck 600 miles to the north of Stalingrad, on the Rzhev front, west of Moscow. This meant danger to the Nazi winter lines in the area bordering Latvia, and the necessity of spreading German manpower thinner by bringing more forces into action at widely scattered points.

MARSHAL TIMOSHENKO
. . . His pincers hurt.

Favorable as the outlook was, however, military experts cautioned temperance in analyzing the reports. Germany, they pointed out, still occupied vast strategic and industrial areas of European Russia. The Nazis had encountered fierce Soviet resistance last winter and still had emerged to start this year's offensives. The Russ were on the move, but a tough campaign was ahead.

NORTH AFRICA:
Axis Last Stand

It was clear that Adolf Hitler meant to make the Allies pay a good price for possession of the last key Axis strongholds in North Africa. For he had concentrated air power and manpower in Bizerte, the "Gibraltar" of Tunisia and was using the short, overnight shuttle route between Sicily and the African mainland to reinforce his garrisons there.

Despite the vigilance of American and British air and sea power it had been possible for Hitler to move convoys across the narrow straits under cover of darkness.

The American and British forces demonstrated their will and capacity to get the job done by the steady encirclement of the Axis-held ports of Tunis and Bizerte, despite the first downpours of the North African rainy season.

Air warfare was on the increase with the Axis getting the worst of it. British and American planes harassed the defenders of Bizerte with bombing attacks. Allied bombers raided the Gela airport in Sicily and attacked Axis shipping. Meanwhile RAF detachments swooped down on Tripoli, supply port for Rommel's Afrika Korps.

Four hundred miles east of Tripoli, the British eighth army had mustered men, tanks, guns and planes for its showdown battle with the battered legions of Marshal Rommel in the El Agheila defile.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

ROME: Mobilization of workers from many parts of Italy for repair and reconstruction work in Genoa, Turin, Milan and other northern cities "devastated by attacks of enemy aviation" was reported under way here by Fascist leaders. This report was coupled with recent official statements urging city dwellers to move to rural areas unless needed in war work.

LONDON: British salvage experts have the job narrowed down to so fine an art, that cans of powdered household milk now have their contents stamped on the tin instead of a paper wrapper; bus tickets are 1-5000th of an inch thinner than in prewar days; and government typists by closer spacing and other economies now save 5,000 tons of paper every year.

LABOR PEACE:
Dove Hovers Near

PHILLIP MURRAY
. . . Unity means strength

Post-war as well as the current emergency unity between American labor factions was urged by the presidents of the American Federation of Labor and the CIO in speeches from the same platform before a war relief meeting which attracted representatives of both unions.

Pointing out that if labor factions could unite together in war relief work they could likewise carry unity into their dealings with each other, President William Green of the AFL sounded the keynote for long-awaited peace negotiations between the unions.

Phillip Murray, CIO president, declared: "I have no desire to be an obstructionist. I never was and I never will be." Organized labor "in all countries was the first group to realize that Hitler was a threat to civilization," Murray added.

DAKAR:
Ripe Harvest

Like a ripe plum, Dakar and the vast French colony of West Africa fell into the hands of the United Nations. While this action had been expected since the collaboration of Admiral Jean Darlan with the Allies, it was nevertheless welcome, for not a single drop of blood was shed in its acquisition.

For 2½ years Dakar had been a gun pointed at the Western hemisphere, with the ever-present threat of Axis fingers on the trigger. Now that threat was removed. But this was not all the good news, for at least 15 French warships and 50,000 French troops came under Allied control.

Despite feeble protests from Marshal Petain in Vichy, Admiral Darlan proclaimed his command of the area, under Allied supervision.

Searching their atlases, Americans learned that French West Africa is the largest unit of the French empire, embracing 1,815,768 square miles and a population of 15,000,000. Dakar is one of the world's strategic ports, with facilities sufficient to accommodate a large part of the Allied fleets.

POST-WAR PLANS:
'Good-Neighborliness'

First steps toward a world-wide postwar program to put nations now under the Axis yoke back on their feet and able to produce as well as consume were taken with the appointment by President Roosevelt of Gov. Herbert H. Lehmann of New York as director of foreign relief and rehabilitation.

Sources close to the administration indicated that the program envisions an extension of the "Good Neighbor" policy to the rest of the world not only by this country, but by the rest of the United Nations. Specifically they intimated that future economic solidarity could best be promoted by raising the standard of living and wealth of poorer and smaller nations without hurting the economy of the larger and richer countries.

The United States cannot debase its own economy to build other nations, official spokesmen pointed out, but it can assist them in improving their own conditions. Such improvement would benefit this country as well as the rest of the world.

OIL:
Second Pipeline?

Authority to construct a second new oil pipe line from Southwest oil fields to the New York-Philadelphia area, providing 200,000 barrels daily to the Eastern Seaboard has been requested by the Petroleum Administration, Harold L. Ickes, oil coordinator, revealed.

Construction of the new pipe line would take from 9 to 12 months if authority and priorities were granted, Mr. Ickes told a house of representatives subcommittee. The new project would supplement a line already being built from Longview, Texas, to Norris, Ill., and from thence to New Jersey.

TREASON:
Trail's End

The end of the treason road came for six German-born Chicago citizens when three men were sentenced to death and their wives to 25 years in the federal penitentiary for aiding Herbert Hans Haupt, executed Nazi saboteur who was one of the band of eight conspirators landed by submarine in this country last June.

The six sentenced were Hans Max Haupt, Erna Haupt, Walter Otto Froehling and Lucille Froehling, Otto Wergin and Kate Wergin.

Synthetic Rubber Industry Achieved Within One Year

Speedy Adoption of Rubber Manufacturing Program Shaves 24 Years From Time Required to Launch New Industry.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

By the time this is written or shortly thereafter, announcement will be made of the creation of what may become one of the world's greatest industries—synthetic rubber manufacturing. By that time probably ten plants will be assured of operation—the three biggest will make synthetic rubber out of alcohol, which means a market for the farmer's grain.

If the program marches according to schedule, the United States will have achieved within one year what usually takes a quarter of a century to accomplish—the building of a new industry.

This is the message that William Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railway, now rubber administrator in Washington, gave me.

Mr. Jeffers presides at a desk in one of the offices of the War Production board and appears to be one man taken out of the American business world who believes that you can get things done even within the government.

He looks like what he is. A railroad man who came up from the bottom, still carries a union card and usually mentions it. He is stocky—bull-necked, slow spoken, a prophet of the practical, skeptical of the theoretical, who talks about his "two-fisted" organization of successful "business men" who "know their stuff."

I asked him first if he found much difference between working for the government and running a railroad.

"Yes," he answered. Then he smiled and took his time before he went on.

"This is a democracy—I suppose the delays are necessary. But I haven't had much trouble." He looked up. "I make my own decisions. I got that Ford plant overnight." (He engineered the negotiations for the Ford tire manufacturing plant in Detroit for shipment to Russia.)

Using What We Have

"I have a top-notch organization of two-fisted businessmen who know their stuff. We are going to do what we are supposed to do on schedule. On our own schedule. We have the information we want and in a few weeks we'll know just how many plants we are going to have, what their capacity will be and the order in which they will start producing.

"My first job," Jeffers went on as he lifted his 220 pounds and walked around the desk, "is keeping the country on rubber with what we've got. That means reclamation and conservation. Then it's to produce the synthetic rubber we need to keep going for the duration. Meanwhile I watch that stock pile of pure rubber we have. like a hawk.

"Here are the ABC's," he said, motioning me to a chair beside a table on which was standing what looked like an open sample case. It contained a number of bottles and a few other objects properly labeled. He pointed to the first bottle. "This is full of shreds," he said. "It is part of a whole tire, casing and all, cut up." He pointed to the next bottle. "This," he said, "is the same stuff after it has been soaked in oil and acid and the pieces of casing floated out. You can see the pieces of metal in it still." He showed me a screen with pieces of metal on it. "Here is the filter which strains out the metal—a lot of metal gets into a tire." There were a lot of pieces sticking to the bottom of the filter.

"These next bottles," he went on, "show the way the stuff looks after each successive process of refining. And here is the reclaimed rubber," he said as he picked up a black strip. Then he pointed to a new tire leaning against the wall. "This tire is made of reclaimed rubber." I felt it. It seemed normal. I said so. "It isn't as good as the tires you get today," he said, "but it is as good as the ones you got ten years ago."

Rubber Production

Then we came to part two—part two of his job, which is the production of synthetic rubber.

He showed me a yellowish object which felt like rubber. "This is neophrene—synthetic rubber made of carbide. It is better than rubber, but it is very expensive."

There were two bottles, the contents of which looked just alike to me—a milky substance. One was the pure latex from the rubber tree. The other was a synthetic product made from alcohol of petroleum.

"I am not a chemist," Jeffers said, "and I don't intend to be one. Those are just the ABC's."

He went back to the immediate problem before him, which is to keep America rolling until the synthetic factories start to work.

"Are you going to be able to do that?" I asked.

"It is not impossible if everybody plays the game," he said. "I know you can't regiment the American people and I am not in favor of trying to do it, but when the people understand what we are trying to do for them, I think they will co-operate. I have gotten splendid co-operation already from big business, little business and individuals. It is reassuring to learn how people react when they know what we are doing. I get all kinds of letters—and I answer all of them.

"When the people realize how important it is to help us help them save rubber, they will co-operate. In the last war we had a lot of flags and parades, went down to the train to see the fellows off with a band. There doesn't seem to be any of that in this war. It might be a good thing. But when the people realize that the most vital thing in our war effort is saving rubber, we are going to see something tangible."

At that point Mr. Jeffers dropped an aside, one of the little human remarks that are typical of him, tinged though it is with a touch of irony—"Maybe if the people didn't run around so much they could visit their neighbors and they might make friends and get better friends that way."

Rubber and Economics

"Rubber affects the social life of the people, no doubt—the whole American economy, rightly or wrongly, is built on rubber and we can't change it. Look at the farmer. We have to have food. The farmer can't go back to the horse and wagon. If he could get the horses, we couldn't build the wagons now. He has to get the crops to market—it all comes back to transportation.

"We'll keep them on rubber. Gas rationing is rough justice. It works hardships on some. Some take advantage of it—it's the man who has three gallons more than he needs and uses them to ride around the country that is the waster. But I think we'll get co-operation."

I went back to problem two: the building of the synthetic industry.

"The government will own the plants," I said, "won't that make post-war problems?" He said to me, "Yes, the government will own the plants and the product will be manufactured on what amounts to a 'management fee' basis. A lot of other things," he said, "will be made under the same conditions."

"But I'm not interested in post-war problems," Jeffers went on, "my job is to help win the war. Unless bugs develop that we can't take care of, we'll do it. And if we do, we'll accomplish in a year and a half what it usually takes 25 years to do."

Co-operation will do that—and keep the country on rubber meanwhile—and co-operation means big business, little business and the folks "who eat in the kitchen" as Mr. Jeffers puts it. "They have the balance of power," he says.

About Wasted Coal

According to the United States Office of the Bituminous Coal Consumers' Counsel bituminous or "soft" coal is the backbone of America. It supplies industry with more than one-half of the power and energy required to produce the weapons of war. Creates nearly 55 per cent of the electricity used in our nation. Heats more than 50 per cent of the homes of America. Four out of five of all the railroad locomotives of the country get their power from bituminous coal.

Twenty-five million tons of "soft" coal will be wasted by the domestic consumer this year unless more than usual care is exercised in the operation of home heating furnaces.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our dearly beloved Father, John Thomas Glenn, who departed this life, Thursday, November 19, 1942, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alice Jones, of Thorsby, Ala., Rte. 1, after a lingering illness. He was 81 years old.

His dearly beloved wife, Mrs. Julia Ann Glenn, passed away December 19, 1921 at the age of 58. He was born in Coosa County, Alabama, May 9, 1861, and moved to Chilton County, Alabama, in 1922, where he resided until death. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Lucy Zimmerman of near Clanton, Ala., and Mrs. Mary Clark of Titus, Ala., Rte. 2, Also two sons, Willie F. Glenn of Clanton, Ala., Rte. 4, and Jasper Glenn of Clanton, Ala. Three daughters, Mrs. Alice Jones, of Thorsby, Ala., Rte. 1, Mrs. Cora Deloney and Miss Fronie Glenn, of Montgomery, Ala., twenty-three grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. He was laid to rest, Friday November 20, 1942 at 2 p.m. in Chestnut Creek Cemetery, Cooper, Ala., with Spigener Funeral Home in charge. Rev. J. D. Hughes conducted the funeral services assisted by Rev. Floyd Smith. He was a faithful member of Chestnut Creek Baptist Church for a number of years.

We wish to thank Dr. Gragg and Mr. White of Spigener Funeral Home for their services. Also the many friends of surrounding community and elsewhere for their assistance, and the many beautiful floral offerings.

The pallbearers were: Lester Mims, Ottis Glenn, Oliver Glenn, Arnold Glenn, Curtis Jines and Olber Glenn.

Dear Daddy, we miss you so much. A place is vacant in our homes that never can be filled, but our greatest consolation is this: Numerous times during his illness, he made peace with God, and was ready to meet his maker in peace. Weep not dear loved ones, as our loss is heaven's gain, and in that sweet bye and bye, we can meet our dear father and mother, and all our loved ones, where there will be no more pains, nor sorrow, nor sad goodbyes, but, peace, love and joy, forever, and ever.

Written by devoted sons, Jasper and Willie Glenn, for the family.

BETTER CURING METHOD IS GIVEN BY SPECIALISTS

The importance of better cured cuts of meat is pointed out by W. H. Gregory, extension animal husbandman, who gives the following method of curing.

Mix eight pounds of salt, two pounds of sugar, and two ounces of saltpeter for each 100 pounds of meat. Divide into two portions. Rub meat with one-half of mixture and put in box or barrel. Break pack the third day, repeat treatment, and repack. Keep meat at 36 to 40 degrees during cure. Keep meat in cure two to two and one-half days per pound. Take up, wash with warm water, drain, and smoke to desired color (about two days).

Smoke meat, to be held over the summer, one to two hours daily for one to three weeks, keeping house at 70 to 90 degrees.

Wrap and store meat in tight barrel or box to protect from skippers.

Jasper isplanning to buy its water works. The system was formerly municipally owned, but was sold in 1922.

THORSBY INSTITUTE NEWS

The boarding department of Thorsby Institute had an excellent Thanksgiving dinner cooked by the dormitory girls under the efficient supervision of Miss Lois Leech. Unique place cards of Pilgrim figures were made by the girls and Miss Dora Parks, who is the Arts and Crafts teacher. A Massachusetts friend gave money for the dinner, and Howard Lambert, a Thorsby Institute graduate now training for the Merchant Marine, provided brick ice-cream for the dessert; Ruth Duke of last year's class furnished appropriate napkins. Between courses, Miss Marguerite Davidson, Miss Helen Phillips, music instructor at Piedmont College, Ga., and Miss Lillian McKee led in group singing. After dinner, Edwin Petty and his sister Joyce, Barbara Renfroe and Oran Marcus gave Thanksgiving readings. Miss Marguerite Davidson and her mother, Mrs. Davidson, Miss Helen Phillips, Miss Lillian McKee, the Reverend Carl Polson, Mr. H. M. Adair, and Mr. David Maddox were guests.

A Christian Endeavor Social was held in the dining hall of Thorsby Institute on Saturday evening, November 28th. Instead of the usual games, ping-pong, dominoes, checkers, flinch and other table games were played and everyone seemed to enjoy himself very much.

The annual Christmas Pageant of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be given on December 12th at 7:30 in the Thorsby Institute auditorium. Everyone is invited. There will be no admission charge.

In Jefferson County 64,000 auto licenses for 1943 were sold by Nov. 15. Of these, 53,000 were sold in Birmingham, 11,000 in Bessemer. This compares with 69,521 to the same date last year.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS OF THE YELLOW FRONT STORE

It has always been the policy of your Yellow Front Stores to have the merchandise you wanted when you wanted it and at the lowest possible price--But during the past several months due to Wartime regulations, lend lease and the fact that our growing armed forces on land, sea and in the air have to be fed and equiped--We have not been able to live up to our policy and supply all the needs of our customers-- This we regret very much and we wish to assure you that we have used every means in our power to have for you an ample supply of the items we have been out of--

LARD both compound and pure is very scarce we have been able to secure only very small quantities from time to time. When we do get a little we try to make it go to as many customers as possible--

SUGAR is of course rationed. We have been able to have sugar on hand at all times. As most of you know you can now buy sugar on your Number 9 sugar stamp until December 15th, 1942. 3 pounds to each Number 9 stamp.

COFFEE is now rationed. Bring your sugar ration book. You can secure 1 pound of coffee for each person 15 years old or over by turning in your Number 27 sugar stamp. This pound of coffee must last each person for a period of five weeks. May we ask that you please buy coffee only as needed then we will have an ample supply for all at all times.

DRY SALT MEAT is almost impossible to get as well as many other items in the grocery and dry goods lines. However we hope you will bear with us as it is our desire to have for you all the merchandise we can possibly get at all times.

Thank you for the business with which you have favored us in the past.

Sincerely yours,

The Management.

L SERVICE MEN O GET BIBLES

Chaplain John O. Lindquist, Chief Chaplain Branch, headquarters, rth Service Command, is now dy to pass the ammunition, car- s of it.

Only this time it's spiritual ammuni- with the arrival of more than a rter of a million copies of Scrip- es at the Ordnance warehouse, be distributed to members of the ed forces in the southeast.

his is the first time that the gov- ment has ever engaged in such a ject, bibles for more than a cen- eing distributed to the armed through the churches, indivi- Gideons, American Bible So- y, and similar other distributing ew scriptures are prepared for ee major faiths, Jewish, Catholic Protestant, and are uniformly nd in khaki, bearing the seal of War Office, and the legend, "Pre- ted by the Army of the United tes" on the front cover. On the t fly leaf is a message from the sident commending the use of the iptures.

The volumes are pocket-sized to ac- mpany the soldier into the battle ld, and they will be presented upon quest to each officer and enlisted n.

When the Chief of Chaplains made token presentation to each repre- ntative of the three major faiths, e pointed out that the Scriptures re being issued in this manner to monstrate the attitude of the Gov- nment toward the Scriptures and e Chaplain's work, and the impor- nce of going into battle with more an just physical strength and mili- ry power.

&P STATEMENT REGARDING EDERAL GRAND JURY CTION AT DALLAS

As if there were not enough crisis the wartime food situation, Mr. Thurman Arnold's Anti-Trust Divi- on is now attempting to create fur- er chaos by an attack upon the me- ods of doing business which have on the greatest approval from con- mers, farmers, labor and the great ss of our people.

Since Pearl Harbor and before, the epartment of Agriculture, the Office Price Administration, the Office of efense Transportation and other overnment departments have been ncerned with holding down food ices, eliminating waste and equitably stributing the many foods in which shortage exsts. In face all of this, the Anti-Trust Division now declares domestic war on efficient distribu- on which has made the greatest con- ibution to this effort.

Every corner grocer and every usewife in the United States knows at there is no monopoly in the food siness. It is the most competitive siness in America. The A&P does nly 8¼ percent of the total retail d volume. It did not reach its resent position by Wall Street fin- ncing, combinations or deals with nyone. It has grown because mil- ons of housewives found that they could feed their families better by taking advantage of low prices for quality foods.

It seems now, with food prices at a peak, to be against public interest to make it possible for those with low income to have an extra loaf of bread or another bottle of milk for their children.

To attack our buying policies is an indictment of the judgement of hundreds of thousands of farmers who have sought our business because we have been able to obtain for them wider markets and a constantly larger share of the consumer's dollar. To attack our selling policies is to indict the common sense of millions of housewives who have builtour business by their patronage.

It would appear that these ridiculous and vicous charges have been introduced to support an Anti-Trust Division theory that the people of the United States have no right to patronize the company if their patronage will make the company grow. Mr. Arnold has had his field day at Dallas. Before the Grand Jury only his accusation has been heard. Only his representatives are allowed to appear; only one side of the case is presented. Be- of this the courts have held that none of these charges can be presumed to be true and in no way tend to discredit anyone unless they are proved in court.

On behalf of this company and 104,000 loyal employees, we say now we will disprove every charge Mr. Arnold has made.—ADV.

CLANTON METHODIST'S NEW PASTOR

REV. O. C. LLOYD

Rev. Lloyd comes to Clanton from Jackson, Alabama and has many years of service in the Methodist Conference to his credit. Among his pastorates were four years as Presiding Elder of the Marianna District. Four years as pastor of the Forest Avenue Methodist Church at Montgomery. During these four years 522 members were added.

At Jackson Rev. Lloyd added 78 members last year; World Service giving was doubled; and the pastors salary was increased $300.00.

Besides Mrs. Lloyd who comes to Clanton with Rev. Lloyd, are three children Rev. Griffin E. Lloyd, young minister of the Alabama Conference, now stationed at Ramer. Miss Mary Lula Lloyd, of Birmingham and Miss Nellie Ruth Lloyd a senior at Huntingdon College.

The News joins in welcoming the Lloyds to our city.

NEW WOMEN'S PRISON REPLACING ANTIQUE DATING BACK TO 1839

The job of moving 350-odd prisoners from the Old Women's State Prison to the new Julia Tutwiler prison, half a mile north, is well underway, Col. W. E. Persons, director of the State Department of Corrections and Institutions, announced today.

The modern building, constructed of steel and concrete, will replace the historic old structure which has been patched, repatched and added to since it was erected more than a century ago, in 1839.

Cost of the new prison and equipment is approximately $350,000. It was built almost entirely with convict labor.

F. H. A. NEWS

The Jemison chapter of F.H.A. held its monthly meeting Dec. 2, 1942. The meeting was called to order by the president, Annie Joe Norwood. The roll was called and the minutes were read and approved. The president reminded all members to pay their dues and to bring an egg every Wednesday. The new business to come before the meeting was the discussion of a Christmas party. The members decided to have a party so every one drew names for the party. The president then appointed the various committees for the party. The program committee then took charge. Several of the F.H.A. members gave interesting talks.

The refreshments were then served and the meeting adjourned.

MOST CLANTON STORES CLOSED 3 DAYS XMAS

According to a list furnished the News this week and signed by 30 of the leading business men, practically all business in the city will be at a standstill for three days Christmas for the tired clerks to get a breathing spell before going back to work after the Holiday rush.

On the petition circulated, none of the Dry Goods houses are represented, but hope is that they too will make a three-day holiday of Christmas.

The stores will be closed Xmas day December 25th and reopen on Monday morning December 28th. The petition is on file at the News office.

NAMED HEAD OF METHODIST ORPHANAGE

The Methodist Children's Home at Selma now has a new executive in the person of Virgil McCain who took charge on December 1, and is already taking an active part in aiding the "White Christmas" campaign for a fund of $50,000 to meet the needs of this Home during 1943, all contributions to be made through the Methodist Churches of Alabama and West Florida on Sunday, December 20.

CAPITOL NEWS IN BRIEF

More than 560 traffic deaths have been reported in Alabama so far this year, and drivers and pedestrians should redouble their vigilance to keep the 1942 toll from exceeding 600, State Public Safety Director James F. Brawner urged today. At least three more traffic deaths occurrred in November than in October.

The State Department of Corrections and Institutions is occupying the new Julia Tutwiler Prison, half a mile north of the old Women's State Prison, Col. W. E. Persons, director, announced today. The modern steel and concrete building replaces the old structure, which was built in 1839.

By proclamation of Governor Dixon, many Alabama communities observed Dec. 7, anniversary of Pearl Harbor as "Can the Japs Day,,—devoting increased attention to the salvage of tin cans. All housewives were requested by the governor to clean, out and flatten their tin cans and save them in suitable containers which easily can be emptied by pickup trucks or carried to salvage collection depots directly by the salvage volunteer.

Col. Harry M. Ayers, chairman of the publishers' committee which steered the recent newspaper-sponsored scrap drive; JJ. Charles Stanley, Calhoun County salvage chairman; Maurice Ettman of Sheffield, Colbert County salvage chairman, and editors of all newspapers in Calhoun and Colbert Counties have received invitations from Governor Dixon to visit Montgomery next week and attend ceremonies in which American flags will be presented to the two counties for their record collections of scrap metal.

"If the present course is followed by the federal government, the Southern people will work out some method which will force recognition of their problems and their right to work out their own solution to those problems," Governor Dixon said when asked to comment in the statement by Gov. Sam Houston Jones of Louisiana that Southern Democrats should break away from the Northern wing of the party and "fight like hell" for Southern economic and political rights. Gov. Dixon will address the Southern Society in New York December 11 on "Cross-roads Democracy."

Alabama congressmen and senators have received from Governor Dixon letters urging them to resist a move by the U. S. Forest Service which, the governor said, would set up a new confiscatory and regulatory" agency empowered "to take over plant facilities by way of executive order and force the sale of private stumpage without regard to the plans or intentions of the owner."

Carl Bear, secretary to Gov.-Elect Chauncey Sparks, announced that the governor's inauguration will be a simple, wartime ceremony to be featured by a military parade but noinaugural luncheon or ball.

CHILTON COUNTY OPENS BASKETBALL SEASON

By James Fosbee, Sports Reporter

The Chilton County Basketball team opens its season this Friday night, December 11, with Maplesville High School. The Clanton"B" Team plays Thomas Jr. at 7:00 o'clock and the Clanton-Maplesville game will start at 8:00 o'clock.

The Chilton County Cagers have good prospects this year for another winning team. The boys from last years' squad are all-State Paul Smith, F. C. Cost, Royal Coggins, and Lamar Edwards. The team has some good prospects coming from the "B" team of last year and the Junior High Schools are furnishing some good material to offset the loss of graduation. Coach 'Porch has his team in good shape for the game and every one is looking forward to see who will fill in the places of the first team.

The Chilton County Team plays Isabella next Tuesday night, December 15. The Clanton "B" Team plays Collins Chapel at 7:00 o'clock and the Clanton-Isabella game starts at 8:00 o'clock.

The State Department of Public Safety has complied with an OPA request by reporting to the OPA since Sept. 1 more than 1.000 convicted speeders, who face possible loss of tire and gas rationing privileges.

SMITH URGES ALL COUNTY FARMERS TO VOTE SATURDAY

MILK PROGRAM IN THE SCHOOLS

The Chilton County Board of Education is sponsoring a milk program for the school children of the county. The Agricultural Marketing Ad-ministation is the Government agency which is backing this program.

4384 half pints of milk were served to the children in Clanton Grammar and Alabama Mills during the past month. Collins Chapel, Freeman and Union Grove are serving this month. Five or six schools have been certified to serve milk but so far they have not been able to secure enough milk for the children.

The County Nutrition Council is interested in seeing every school in the county serving milk to every child in the county. The Council realizes that with every child in the county drinking good wholesome milk that a big step forward will have been taken toward raising the health standards of the children.

Every Chilton County farmer is urged by County Agent P. H. Smith to vote in the Cotton marketing quota referendum next Saturday, December 12.

"Beginning with the 1938 crop we have had quotas. During this time cotton prices have steadily climbed until they now double prices in other parts of the world," says Mr.Smith, "The real reason for this is because, with quotas, the government can mak loans. If there are no quotas there can be no loans. Loans have,inthe main, made the price what ti istoday.

State farm leaders have this to say about the referendum.

J. N. Poole, State Commissioner-Elect of Agriculture and Industries: "I endorse quotas on cotton production for next year. If marketing quotas are not enforced there will be no loarns: and no loans mean no floor under prices . . . In Brazil the current marketing is 9c or about half the American price where loans are now available at 90 percent parity . . . By planting fewer acres to cotton, more land, labor and equipment will be available to produce food."

Walter L. Randolph, President, Alabama Farm Bureau: "This issue (of the referendum) is the price of cotton in 1943 . . . If farmers vote down quotas, no loans on cotton will be made by the government in 1943 . . . Vote to keep the loans to protect the price of cotton."

P. O. Davis, Director of Extension Service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute: "Sound price floor under products and production control are two minor essentials in a sound agricultural program. Without the second the first is impossible; so without either the program is not sound. I continue to advocate a combination of fair prices and production control."

A. W. Jones, State AAA Administrator: " Cooton marketing quotas are especially important during the wartime because they hold the marketing of cotton in line with demand, and thus prevent over-expansion of cotton acreage which woud result in insufficient production of other badly needed commoditeies.

FARM MACHINERY, EQUIPMENT REPAIR & CONSTRUCTION COURSE

Monday night, 7:00 O'clock, December 14, at the Vocational Agriculture Building, Clanton, there will begin a course in Farm Machinery Repair and Construction. The purpose of the course is to help the farmer get his tools in good condition, lus learning how to do the job in the future for him self.

The group meets from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for four weeks. A black smith will be here to help you with the job. Tools are furnished. Also materials to work. If you are interested bring your own plows, planters, wagons, wagon beds, section harrows, scratchers, etc. to work on.

One group finished the course Dec. 9, they made a wagon bed, hay baler, double trees, repaired plows, and distributors.

They have done good work. It has helped them put their farm tools in good shape at a very small cost.

Anyone out of school 17 years old or over can take the course. Any person who desires information see J. H. Jackson, Vocational Agriculture Teacher, Chilton County High School, Clanton, Alabama.

COUNTY SHORT OF QUOTA FOR SCRAP METAL CAMPAIGN

Chilton County is one of 20 Alabama counties which have some hard work ahead to fill their scrap metal quotas for the last six months of this year, according to word received today by County Salvage Co-chairmen Earl Gore and T. L. Williams from Leon Gilbert, executive secretary of the Alabama Salvage Committee.

With a quota of 1,171,425 pounds of scrap metal, part of the 476,000,000 pounds which Alabama was called upon to produce between July 1 and Dec. 31, Chilton County already has collected 925,745 pounds but must keep going strong to attain the goal by the end of the year.

"So far the county salvage committees, which are our main standby in this continuing drive to keep the makings of war ammunitions flowing, have reported 283,362,954 pounds of scrap metal collected," said Gilbert. "This includes the Scrap Harvest, collections prior to the Scrap Harvest, the piles gathered during the newspaper-sponsored drive and millions of pounds of metal which are still coming in since the newspaper-sponsored drive.."

Because Alabama was honored with the highest quota in the Southeast, every effort should be made during the remaining weeks in December to put the state over the top, Gilbert said. Industrial and auto graveyard section collections will be added to the 283,362,954 pounds reported by the county salvage committees, but many million pounds remain to be gathered before January 1 to put the state over the top, Gilbert pointed out.

If it's bargains in Christmas toys you are looking for, you will find them at Bell Hardware Company in Clanton. Phone 250.

Two Alabama fliers were among American pilots at the controls of a squadron of medium bombers and fighter planes which flew through a hail of anti-aircraft fire Friday to bomb docks of Bizerte harbor, according to an Associated Press dispatch Saturday from North Africa.

Lt. William Norred, Pinapple, and Capt. John D. Eiland, Verbena, piloted two ships in the raid which scored hits on pier facilities and a 100 near-misses, believed to have caused damaged to two or more ships.

All bombers in the raid were bit, one coming back with 20 holes.

Capt. Eiland, a fighter pilot, shot down a german Messerscmitt 109-F which tried to intercept the flight. Capt. Eiland was going to the aid of a fellow pilot, attacked by two Nazi fighter planes.

"One of the Germans peeled off and as he pulled up I got on his tail and rode him around, shoooting him all the way through," Capt. Eiland was quoted by Associated Press. "He did a half roll and fell into the water."

Lt. Norred is quoted by AP as describing the anti-aircraft fire as "the tougest we've seen yet."

"We could hear it, feel it and see it." he related. "The sky was black with it."

Tail gunner in Lt. Norred's ship was Sgt. Johnny Boyle, Laurel, Miss., who said he saw one German vessel hit squarely and burst into flames. "I couldn't tell what type it was," he said, but it was an awful big one."

POULTRY PRODUCTION PROGRAM STARTS DECEMBER FIFTEENTH

Tuesday night, December 15th at 7:00 p.m. a course in poultry titled "Increasing Egg Production" wil lbe gin in the Isabella Vocational Agriculture classroom. All who are interested please be there.

This course will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:00 v.m. to 9:00 p.m. for five weeks. Mr. G. G. Williams will be the instructor.

The aim of the course is to encourage and develop an increase in the number of laying hens on the farm. Our government is calling on us to expand our production of crops and livestock. Adequate farm production is necessary for the United Nation's existence. Each of us should analyze our own situation and defintely decide what we can do to attain higher production. Then we should carry out our decision.

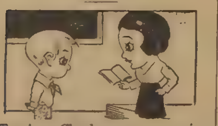
YOUNGSTERS



Teacher—Charles, name some important things that exist today, but were unknown fifty years ago.

Charles—You and me, teacher.

None in Stock

Mrs. Zook (on the phone)—May I have a box for two?

Voice (at other end)—I'm sorry, but we haven't any.

Mrs. Z.—Isn't this the opera house?

Voice—No, this is the funeral director.

No Priority Permit

Andy—What model is your bicycle, Bill?

Bill—It's no model. It's a horrible example.

SAME OLD STORY

It was not the first time that Smith had arrived home after the clock had struck midnight. But he had with him something which he hoped would ward off the storm that awaited him.

"My dear," he began as he came into the bedroom with a paper bag in his hand—"my dear, I've brought home some chestnuts."

"Go on," she said, wearily, "I'm listening."

Progress

Evolution of a man's ambition:
To be a circus clown.
To be like dad.
To be a fireman.
To do something noble.
To get wealthy.
To make ends meet.
To get the old-age pension.

Still Going Strong

Joe—How long can a person live without brains?

Mabel—Let's see—how old are you?

JUST JEALOUS

"Dick stole a dozen kisses last night."

"I can't imagine what he'd want of so many—all the same kind."

Foot of the Class

Ted—Every time we have an exam at school I feel like an American aviator.

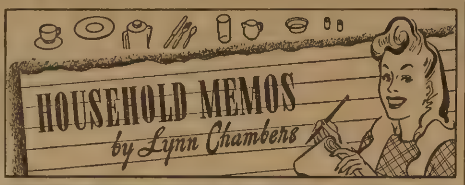
Fred—What do you mean?

Ted—Because I'm practically certain I'm going to get a Zero.

Aviator by Necessity

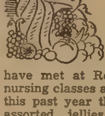
Farmer—You're a brave soldier to come down with a parachute in this gale.

Non-Com—I didn't come down with a parachute. I went up with a tent.



Jellies Lend Their Sparkle to Christmas Presents!
(See Recipes Below.)

Christmas Jelly Gifts



Don't you like the sight of brightly colored jelly flirting gaily with red, green, silver and gold Christmas wrappings? There's not a nicer present to give at Christmas time to many of your homemaker friends whom you have met at Red Cross meetings, nursing classes and knitting sessions this past year than a small box of assorted jellies and jams—fresh from your own kitchen.

Jelly-making in winter? Yes, indeed. Chances are that you put up a lot of fruit juice during the summer—without sugar—and now you have saved enough from your sugar ration to make up a few batches of jelly. It's perfect for gift-giving and fine for boosting your fast dwindling supply shelf.

You can use winter fruits, too—cranberries, grapefruit, lemon and oranges. Whatever you make, the results will be received with real holiday cheers!

Remember if your sugar supply is slender, you can use corn syrup and honey. Just follow directions carefully.

Let's start the gift making with this tart, brightly colored marmalade:

Tangerine Marmalade.
(Makes 9 6-ounce glasses)
4 cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, remove skins in quarters from 8 to 10 tangerines and discard white fibers on inside of skins and on peeled fruit. With a very sharp knife, cut rind into fine shreds. Add ¾ cup water and ⅛ teaspoon soda, bring to a boil, simmer, covered for 10 minutes. Dice peeled tangerines, add with juice to cooked rind, simmer, covered 20 minutes longer.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into a kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Mix well.

Bring to a full, rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute.

Remove from fire. Stir in bottled pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot marmalade at once.

You'll be dressing up many a meat extender and meat saver dish with pretty accompaniments during the coming months. Try this bright jelly with your lamb dishes:

Mint and Honey Jelly.
(Makes 5 6-ounce glasses)
¾ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons dried mint leaves
2½ cups strained honey
Green food coloring
½ cup bottled pectin

This Week's Menu

*Recipe Given

Pour boiling water over mint. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Strain and add enough water to make ¾ cup. Add honey and heat to boiling, adding coloring to tint a light green. Add pectin, stirring constantly. Heat to full rolling boil. Remove from heat at once, skim and pour into sterile glasses. Seal with paraffin.

Poultry of all kinds will be a favorite on your menus during the meat rationing period. And what is chicken or turkey without cranberries or cranberry and orange relish? It's like meat without salt, pie without a good crust, in other words, incomplete.

Cranberry-Orange Relish.
(Makes 1 quart relish)
2 large oranges
4 cups cranberries
2 cups sugar or 1⅓ cups honey

Cut oranges into eighths and remove seeds. Force cleaned cranberries and orange (rind and pulp) through a food chopper. Mix well, add sugar or honey and stir until mixed. Make several hours before using. Pack in sterile glasses and seal.

Short on butter? You'll enjoy the sunny citrus fruit marmalade that makes toasted breads, muffins and biscuits really delicious:

Orange-Lemon-Grapefruit Marmalade.
(Makes 3 pints)
2 large oranges
1 large lemon
½ medium grapefruit
1½ quarts water per pound fruit
3 cups sugar

Wash fruit and cut into eighths. Remove seeds and white core and cut into thinnest possible slices. Weigh. For each pound of fruit, add 1½ quarts water. Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook ½ to ¾ hour or until fruit is tender. Set aside overnight. The next day measure pulp and juice—there should be 1 quart for each pound of fresh fruit. If there is more juice, boil it down. If there is less, add water to make it up. Add sugar and boil rapidly until syrup gives the jelly test—jells on a saucer, or two drops fall off spoon at same time as it is held in air—220 degrees. Cool 3 to 5 minutes. Turn into clean, dry glasses and seal with paraffin.

Meat Balls
(Serves 4)
6 slices enriched bread
½ cup milk
½ pound ground beef
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon minced onion
¾ cup sour cream

Pour milk over bread and let it stand 15 minutes. Press excess milk out of bread. Combine meat, bread, onion, salt and pepper. Shape into round, flat cakes. Fry in skillet in which a little fat has been placed. When brown, on both sides, add cream and simmer 5 to 7 minutes. Arrange balls on a platter with green beans, carrot strips and potatoes. Serve sauce from meat.

Does the whipped cream get sulky? The cake fall at the crucial moment? The table decorations look flat and pointless? Explain your problem to Lynn Chambers and she'll tell you what to do about it. Write her at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Ill. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your reply.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lynn Says:

Boughs of Holly: Let's deck the house and the table with evergreen and bright berries. Here's how. Weave those extra branches you trimmed from the Christmas tree around wire—if you can still find some—and perk up with bright colored berries. Hang this on the front door or in the window—or place on the mirror on the table.

Interesting wreaths can be made by dipping boughs in soapsuds or white paint. Nestle fruit or cones inside the wreath for the table and your centerpiece is ready!

Shape freshly popped white popcorn into cone shapes and set on a green pedestal to look like a Christmas tree—this is lovely for the table. Stick cranberries or gumdrops among popcorn trees for color.

Christmas tree decorations will be fewer this year than before, but you can string sugared cookies and cranberries and use fluffs of cotton for the tree. Old fashioned candles are nice too.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

THE VALUE OF THE CHURCH TO THE SOCIAL ORDER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:13-16; Mark 12:13-17; I Peter 2:13-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the salt of the earth . . . Ye are the light of the world.—Matthew 5:13, 14.

Social and political leaders have in the church the strongest influence for good in all the world. One marvels that those who profess to seek the best for humanity, who try every kind of social experiment, who labor with every expedient of man, fail to see and use in full measure the power of Christianity. Perhaps the explanation is that some of these leaders are themselves unsaved men, who do not understand spiritual things, and are not willing to give God the glory. Perhaps in the case of others it is because of ignorance or lack of contact with the church.

Whatever the reason, the situation should be remedied. America could solve her problems, both social and political, by a nation-wide revival of true Christianity, with the accompanying salvation of thousands of unconverted. If we cannot have that, let us not fail to have a revival in our own hearts, our own churches, our neighborhoods or communities.

We find in our lesson that the church is

I. A Powerful Influence for Moral Good (Matt. 5:13-16).

Salt in the midst of corruption, light in a world of unbelievable darkness—what striking and meaningful figures with which to describe the Christian.

Believers are the "salt of the earth" because they draw their savor from God Himself. The Christian church, by God's own statement, is His own powerful antiseptic which preserves the social order from falling into the moral decay which sometimes seems imminent. It should, therefore, be honored and encouraged by that society which it serves.

Christians are the "light of the world," and it is the essential nature of light to shine. The darker its surroundings the more marked its brightness, and the more needed its illumination. The good works of Christians reflect the goodness of God, and so they glorify His worthy name. Brother, is your light burning brightly in this wicked world?

II. A Stabilizing Element in Society (Mark 12:13-17).

The world is in social ferment, and our own country has its share of "isms" and social theories calling men to follow, asking their loyalty, making them Utopian promises without foundation.

Alert and intelligent Americans are concerned about these clamorous voices, many of which are quite properly suspected of having purposes far from beneficial to our American way of life, or to democracy itself. Yet they dare not oppose them lest there be the cry of denial of freedom of speech, etc.

What can we do to meet them? Here is the answer: Preach Christ. Bring men to a saving knowledge of Him and to a godly way of living. For the Christian is directed by Christ Himself to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's"—and they do it too, because they have first rendered "to God the things that are God's."

III. A Loyal Example of Good Citizenship (I Pet. 2:13-17).

The highest measure of loyalty to country is the Christian standard here stated. In Romans 13:1-10 we learn that all authority comes from God and that the power of rulers is to be recognized as His gift. That means that true rulers will submit to Him in every detail of their government, seeking to know and to do His will.

However, the Christian gives loyal obedience to the "powers that be" even though they may not recognize the source of their power. This is subject only to the limitation that they may not demand that we do those things that dishonor God's name. Since their only real power to rule comes from Him, they have no authority to tell anyone to do that which is against His holy will. When that happens, the Higher Authority takes over and our loyalty must be to Him, the King of kings. The Christian then will be the best citizen, eager to do what king or country may ask, in order thus to bear a good testimony and to close the mouth of foolish critics of the church.

The history of our country and of other lands reveals the names of many illustrious Christian patriots, and the roll of honor of those who loved and served their country well in the humble and difficult places, would bear its hundreds of thousands of names which are found also on the roll of the church.

Christians, let us be earnest and intelligent followers of Christ, whose lives count for moral uprightness. "For God and Country" is the excellent motto of the American Legion, but it should be more than that; it should be the purpose of every Christian citizen.

PREPAREDNESS
by ✚ the

THE 3,725 Red Cross chapters, located in nearly every county in the United States, perform a very important service for members of the armed forces and their dependents. This is the work done by the Red Cross in case an emergency furlough for the service man becomes necessary.

While the county's Red Cross chapter itself cannot request these furloughs, it can speed up action on them if the family will notify the county Red Cross chapter immediately after the emergency arises.

The actual request for the furlough must be made by the service man to his commanding officer, who refers it to the camp Red Cross field director. A telegram from the field director then asks the local Red Cross chapter to verify information furnished by the service man.

If the family notifies the county Red Cross chapter at the same time it does the service man, the Red Cross can get the necessary verification of facts to the camp about the same time the furlough is requested.

If investigations bear out the service man's story, he usually gets the furlough. But the county Red Cross chapter must report the facts if the situation is not really an emergency, or if there is anything else that may make the man's return less urgent.

County Red Cross chapters also make available actual financial aid to service men and their families in emergencies. If the man needs money for the trip home, or if the family needs money because of the service man's absence, the Red Cross may make it available through a loan or draft.

A Diplomat

At a reception in Washington a young man was asked by a widow to guess her age. "You must have some idea," she said, as he hesitated.

"I have several ideas," he admitted. "The trouble is that I hesitate whether to make it ten years younger on account of your looks, or ten years older on account of your intelligence."

Second Draftee Was All For Taking No Chances

The draftee on his way to camp asked a stranger, Draftee Number Two: "Do you have a match?"

"Sure," was Number Two's reply, "but I'm not giving you any."

"Why not?" asked the first.

"Well," explained Two, "we'll get to chinning. And if we get to chinning we'll wind up buddies. If we are in the same squad, then we'll both volunteer together for special missions. Maybe we'll even get a dangerous night job, then we'll have to use flashlights. And if the flashlights should go out some night in enemy territory, I sure don't want to be stranded with someone who doesn't even carry matches."

Roaring Sun

The sun is a great roaring furnace. We see it but cannot hear it because noise is conveyed only by waves in matter, such as air or liquids or solids. Light is conveyed through a non-material "something" called the Ether, which seems to be everywhere. Between us and the sun is no material substance, so sound cannot pass to us, only light.

Incidentally, we may remark that if sound could come to us, as light does, from the sun, we should all be permanently deafened.

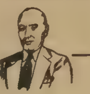
SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER



In 749 war production plants, 75 per cent of 434,600 workers arrive by private automobiles. That's why war workers must have tires.

When it is understood that 54,000 communities in this country depend entirely upon highway transportation, the importance of the rubber situation will be appreciated.

There were 10.78 pounds of crude rubber in the average passenger car tire made in 1940. In 1941 the rubber content was increased to 10.85 pounds.

The overall weight of the average passenger car tire in 1940 was 21.55 pounds, while in 1941 it was 21.69 pounds.

There is a farmer in Osborne, Iowa, who still carries as a serviceable spare, a tire that came on his car as original equipment in 1917. He jacks up the wheels when the car is not in use.

MORAL ECHOES

By Rev. D. W. Haskew, D. D.

A great gathering of Athletic men assembled and some Christian worker saw fit to distribute among them one hundred copies of the gospel of St. Luke. When the meeting was over there were ninety eight of the copies left on the seats. These were gathred up and the religious worker then wrote on the fly leaf of each copy this statement. "This book tells you how to play the game of life successfully." Again they were given out to the athletic men and this time only one copy was left on the seat. It is a fact that people will read the Bible when they know that it deals with the things in which they are interested. The Bible is not merely a book; it is a book that deals with our problems, and a book that tells us how to live successfully.

King George concluded his Christmas broadcast with these significant words—"I said to the man who stood at the gate of the years, 'Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown' and he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be better to you than a light and safer than a known way' ". It has been recently discovered that Mrs. M. L. Haskins is the author penned the lines that a British king used as a bendiction to his people. The author has long since passed to her reward but she will ever be remembered as one who urged her people to have faith and trust God. This is a dark age and our only hope is to put our hand into the handof God and with faith in Him press on toward the light. That is safer for us than to walk in a known way.

You say there is no hope for you. Listen to this short life story of Dr. [illegible]-one of the greatest orators ever to live in the United States. He was raised on a farm in the mountain-ous section of West Virginia that was too poor for even a disturbance to be [illegible] upon it, and yet he went to the heights. In his pulpit he soured amid storms and lightning and thunder and tempests. He had a world of information at his command on every topic known to the mind of man, and with the knowledge as a storage battery, he could play upon the soul and brain of his audience as a master musician. At the conclusion of his sermons the congregation would stand up and face each other in a bewildered manner, not knowing whether to shout, or weep whether to leave or remain.. At the age of forty two this master of pulpit power died, Livingston like, upon his knees by the side of his bed. He came from no where and went to the highest peaks of power. What he did, you can do. Anyway, it is worth trying.

It was my privilege to hear two preachers recently and they were as wide apart as the oles in the message of the hour. One of them spoke in a knowing way, but all he said was as old as the hills. I could not listen to him because he was saying the things that I have heard and read all of my life. It was like drinking from an old pond, a stagnant pool. I sat in the pew to listen to the other preacher and from his first sentence to his last word, he gripped me, mind and soul. He was out on unbeaten paths and his thoughts came like the cool stream that flows, and to hear him was like drinking water from a flowing stream. When the service was over I was refreshed and lifted. One thing I am learning while I am forced to sit in the pew, is that but few preachers are really studying. What a tragedy for the kingdom.

The son of a Korean Missionary came to the United States and was visiting his relatives in a small Ohio town. One day a neighbor boy dashed up with the startling news, "A Circus is coming." "What is a Circus?" inquired the boy from Korea. "A circus don't you know what a circus is? Haven't you ever seen a circus " and the Ohio boy looked with scorn on the lad from Korea. The boy born in Korea was stung to the quick and he retorted, "Well what of that? Did you ever see the Pacific Ocean? Were you ever on a warship? Have you been to Hongkong? Did you ever see the Pyramids? What do you know about London?" That silenced the lad with a circus vision. Why not grow bigger than a circus?

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

Chas. Wade is having a little trouble with boys smoking in his New Wadesonian Theatre and over at the Old House too so far as that goes. There is a State Law prohibiting smoking in Theatres and Chas. is in the humor right now to put a stop to the practice in his theatres. It is a very dangerous practice and anyone, boy or man caught smoking and endangering the lives of others in a place like that deserves all that they get, and they should get plenty.

Comes a letter from I. G. Patrick, a Chilton County product and now in the armed forces. Patrick says that he is lonesome and wonders of all his old friends wont drop him a line now and then to boost morale, cheer him up etc., here's his address: PFC I. G. Patrick, Co. L, APO No. 8, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. . . . Herbert Newell left Monday for the Navy. At this writing he is in Birmingham undergoing his physical we'll let you know how he comes out next week . . . Guy Higgins was to leave Sunday for the Navy but time for leaving has been postponed we understand . . . we stated in a front page headline last week that Dr. and Mrs. Gragg spending Winter in Florida. Then in the story following stated that they were in Foley. Now believe it or not, we do know where Foley is. And it ain't in Florida.

First to issue in the Holiday Season with a brightly decorated window was Gene Gore at his plumbing shop. After Gene they come so thick and fast that would be afraid to say who was next. However the Christmas windows and the local stores are as pretty as we have ever seen them. Too there are very few of the things that ordinarily go to making Christmas what it is, missing.

The new pastor at Clanton Methodist, Rev. O. C. Lloyd, was in to see us the first of the week. A very friendly and likeable fellow he is, and we bet the folks in Clanton will get behind him and build up the attendance at Church School and Church Services at the Methodist. Rev. Lloyd has a record of more than 500 new members in four years at his last church and we can tell from the way he lit on us that he means business.

Lucky because I just stopped one in the leg. But Smith and Weinberg and Farley . . . they're dead. Dead because we didn't have one more grenade to throw!"

That's an American soldier speaking. Speaking your language.

He's asking for more guns to fight with. More tanks, more planes, more grenades to crack down on the enemy with.

Well, let's give them to him!

Let's loan 10% of our pay to the Government. Let's put it in War Bonds. Let's loan Uncle Sam the money to make more tools of war.

It's a loan because the money you put into War Bonds now comes back to you in ten years with a healthy bonus of good interest! For every $3 you lay aside for War Bonds pays back $4!

So put at least 10%—not 6%, or 7%, or 8%, but 10% of your pay to work killing Japs and Nazis—and making money for you at the same time! Sign up in the Payroll Savings Plan today!

L. H. Reynolds Urges All To Buy Bonds

One year ago today the Japs sneaked in to Pearl Harbor and sank eighteen of our war vessels and killed 4,000 of our soldiers. They did not give any warning, whatever. They had not declared war on the United States.

History records no where that any highway robber ever did a more cowardly act than this.

The United States gave out the information today that in twelve months we have lost fifty-five thousand soldiers in action. We are right at this moment in the greatest struggle for freedom the United States has witnesses. All the boys that we have on the fighting lines are appealing to us for airplanes and other implements of war. We cannot all fight but we can buy bonds which is just as essential as being on the firing line. Nothing can end this war quicker than the knowledge that we Americans are all fighting and doing our duty. We must buy bonds until it hurts and then keep on buying them. Suppose our boys were to quit fighting when it began to hurt? No, our boys will keep on and they will do their part if we will doours.

We got off to a good start Saturday in the sale of bonds in our drive until Saturday, December 12. We sold about five thousand bonds at the door of the Court House last Saturday afternoon. We had two noted speakers with us and I wish all the people of the county could have been present. Dr. Derso Shybekay, Associate Professor at the University; was held a prisoner for seven months by the Germans after the First World War. He gave us a very dark picture of what it will mean to us if we lose this war. Dr. Archie, at the Department of Education at the University also gave a good talk.

I hope our drive this week for bonds will be equal to the achievement of the boys who are now fighting on the fronts. We have an opportunity to give Tojo, Emperor of Japan, an answer to their acts of last December 7. I hope every committee in the county will give every moment that they possibly can to the sale of bonds this week. I cannot understandwhy people that have money in the bank, not drawing interest, would refuse to lend it to the Government and get a reasonable interest. The bonds are as good as the money. Where you put $3 in bonds, you get back $4 in cash in ten years. We were behind in October and November. We must get our quota in December which is $33,000.

Many of our citizens will be giving Christmas presents. I urge every one of you to give bonds and stamps for presents this year. By this act, show the boys on the front that we are doing all we can to help them win the war and the great struggle forliberty.

I have just heard from the Ladies committee for the sale of bonds in Clanton and they sold $4,000 of bonds yesterday. I especially want to thank the ladies for what they are doing. I hope they are working all over the county like they are here. I want to express my appreciation to every one that has bought a bond. I believe we can keep this up. We will not only get our quota this month, but we can make up for the last two months.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Executive Chairman.

WILSON-POWELL

Th Presbyterian church in Concordia was the scene of a beautiful, though simple wedding ceremony Sunday, Nov. 22 at 4 p.m. when the marriage of Miss Jeannie Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilson to Burnace C. Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Powell of Clanton, Ala., was solemnized. Before the ceremony organ music was played by Miss Mignon McCall, classmate of the bride, and immediately following the chimes at the hour of 4, Miss Evalyn Fields sang, "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." The altar was a trellis of autumn foliage, flanked by pedestals of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, and on either side candelabra held white tapers which were lighted by Miss Margaret Matthew. Dr. S. A. Fulton, pastor, and the bridegroom entered from the pastor's study and took their places at the altar, where they were met by the bride anl her father, Dr. E. J. Wilson who gave his daughter in marriage. The bride was lovely in a gown of white moire taffetta and Georgian net, made with sweetheart neckline, long, tight sleeves and a bouffant skirt. Her fingertip length veil of Georgian net fell from a heart-shaped coronet of seed pearls; she carried a white Bible adorned with a single white, purple-tipped orchid and white satin ribbons. Frienls of the bride, beautifully gowned in formal frocks of pastel shades, served as ushers. They were Winona Campbell, Jean Lundy, Mrs. Jack Austin, Miss Peggy McAdams of Salina and Mrs. Herbert Finell of Kansas City, a cousin of the bride. Following the ceremony, bride and groom received congratulations in the church vestibule and later tea was served at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilson for the ushers and childhood friends of the bride. Mrs. Charles L. Hunt poured. The refreshments table was centered with a large white ship holding autumn flowers anl a three-tiered wedding cake adorned with miniature bride and groom and showers of silver bells. Mrs. Powell is a graduate of Concordia high school in the class of 1939 and attended Marymount college at Salina. She is employed in the Veteran's tdministration bureau in Washington, D. C. Mr. Powell is employed in the identification division of the F. B.I. in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Powell's going-away cosume was a suit of military brown English whipcord with dark brown accessories. Following a trip to Clanton, Ala., and Florida Mr. and Mrs. Powell will be at home in Washington, D. C. Out of town guests for the wedding were Mrs. Louis Stroud of Laguna Beach, Cal., Mrs. Fred Bangs of Madison, Kan., Miss Helen Blythe of Hutchinson, Miss Peggy McAdams of Salina, and Mrs. Herbert Finell of Kansas City.

The Baptist W. M. S. held their last business meeting of this year, Monday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the church. Old business was completed and reports made, some new business was discussed after which the meeting was dismissed with prayer.

A Word From Roy Roper

Chilton County farmers were urged this week by Roy M. Roper, President of the Chilton County Farm Bureau, to vote in favor of the cotton marketing quotas in time referendum, Saturday, December 12.

"Framers will be voting to protect the price of cotton when they vote for marketing quotas, because only when quotas are in effect does the law allow loans. There is little question but that quotas and loans have been mainly responsible for the present price of cotton. This can be easily understood when we know that prices our farmer now get for cotton are almost double those in other countries.

"Farmers should also know that the increased demand for cotton due to the war has not been nearly great enough to keep prices up without a loan program. In fact, we now have on hand a two-year supply of cotton," points out Mr Roper.

Another big factor in favor of approving quotas, said the County Farm Bureau head, is that farmers should hold their plantings within acreage allotments and use the remaining labor, fertilizer, and other resources to produce other crops needed in the war effort.

Two-thirds of the farmers voting must approve quotas to be in effect in the 1943 cotton crop.

WHAT'S DOING AT ISABELLA HIGH

By Jesse Culp

The F.H.A. took over in Chapel last week to render a very interesting program. The program was given in the form of a regular meeting on the stage with comedy, fun, and music mixed in a bit. Charles Ray Scott, even though he was not an F. H. A. member, helped them out a bit with the music. Josie Mae Abbott and Jettie Owen also gave a couple of musical numbers. We judge that the music was quite popular with the students, since they kept asking for encores.

Another arrangement was three old maids, represented by Mary Ann Oden, Dorothy Oden, and Betty Ann Jones singing a comedy number. Then a group of theirs representing the modern girls sang the very popular song, "Praise The Lord and Pass The Ammunition."

For a good chapel program, count on the F. H. A.

Here's a good war stamp and bond report for the Jr. I Class, handed us by the class reporter:

The boys in the Jr. I class have bought $5.70 worth of stamps, and the girls have bought $4.90 worth making a total of $10.60 that the Jr. I class has invested in war stamps.

Douglas Hayes and father have bought one $18.75 bond; Elnora Jones and mother have bought 7 $35 bonds; Louise Calfee and father have bought one $18.75 bond.

Elnora Jones is leading in war saving stamps with a total of $2.00 (leader of the girls). Cecil Franklin is leading the boys in war stamps buying with $2.00

T'would be correct to call the Senior II's agriculture girls and home economics boys. Guess a little swap-up is good sometimes . . . I wish to dedicate this column to all my friends in the service. In other words, any fellow who is in the service is one of the best friends that I have, for he is helping to keep me and everybody else free. Last week I received from Pvt. Arthur Henley of Pocatello, Idaho a letter, in which he said that he enjoyed reading this column a lot. Well, Pvt. Henley, and all you other service boys, I hope that I can do something that you will get some benefit from, for it is you who have gone out there and given all that you could if neccessary to keep our schools, our rights, and cur lives.

JEMISON NEWS

Jemison defeated Thorsby 28-16 in a basketball game last Friday night. The Jemison B team defeated Union Grove 23-19.

The Baptist Missionary Society and Christian Service met in their usual meeting in the home of Mrs. A. C. Bratton on Thursday night at 7:30. Although the weather was inclement there was a good representation from both Societies. The program furnished by the Baptist ladies was very timely and splendidly rendered. Mrs. Fred Smith read the Scripture. Miss Mary Clements gave an appropriate poem while the scene of the Angel, Mary Joseph and the Christ-Child was portrayed by Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Mrs. G. S. Naish, and Eloise Naish. While Silent-Night, Holy Night, was sung by all, and the blue spot-light was thrown on the Manger scene, all present felt very reverent. Misses Evelyn Cooper and Melba Patton added much to the program by their discussions.

The Christmas party plate served by the Methodist ladies was delicious and further carried out the season's spirit.

The G. A.'s met Thursday afternoon at Mary Catherine McNeills. Prayer service for foreign missions was observed and the Lottie Moon Christmas offering was given. An interesting program was given by Ann Turner, Dorothy Ann Denson, Mary Edna Reynolds and Mary Catherine McNeill. Hot chocolate and cookies were served.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Stiffening Axis Resistance Holds Up Allied Drive on African Strongholds; U. S. Navy Scores Again on Jap Fleet; House Moves to Increase Farm Parity

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding general of the U. S. army ground forces (right), congratulates army officers to whom he has awarded the Order of the Purple Heart. The decorated heroes who were wounded in action against the Axis forces in Africa are, seated left to right, Lieut. Darrel G. Lee, Inglewood, Calif.; Lieut. Leslie Ward Dooley, Athens, Tenn.; and Capt. Ford Allcorn, Boonville, Mo. Standing in background is Brig. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, chief of staff for General McNair.

FARM PRICES:

Parity Rate Boost?

Farm parity prices would have to be revised upward 12½ per cent if a bill passed by the house of representatives is eventually enacted into law.

The measure passed by unanimous vote would require the department of agriculture to raise parity prices for all agricultural commodities, to include all costs of labor, including hired hands and farmers themselves.

That such action would be strongly opposed by President Roosevelt in his inflation efforts was indicated by the fact that a similar provision included in the price act amendment last fall was bitterly fought by the administration and finally compromised.

Explaining the provisions of their measure, house agricultural committee members explained that under the existing setup no allowance is now given farmers for their labor costs in fixing price ceilings, in spite of the fact that "farm wage rates were going up daily." The farmers ask no more than "equality treatment," the committee declared. "They know that every manufacturer is permitted to include his labor cost in figuring his costs of production."

TUNISIA:

Naval Phases Disclosed

Naval guns of the British fleet added their power to the arms of the Allied forces pressing hard on the Axis defenders of Tunisia, by sinking four supply transport ships and two destroyers in a convoy carrying supplies and reinforcements to North Africa.

Announcement of the victory came soon after the admiralty and U. S. navy department disclosed that the Allies had lost 16 vessels during the original A.E.F. landings in North Africa. The toll was described as considerably smaller than originally expected.

Included in the United Nations' losses were the British small aircraft carrier Avenger, three destroyers and five lighter vessels as well as five U. S. naval transports.

As the stage was set for the final showdown for control of Tunisia, the German-controlled Paris radio admitted that a British-American column had penetrated to the east coast of Tunis and had advanced between Sfax and Gabes.

With opposing forces concentrating in a narrow coastal area between the cities of Tunis and Bizerte Allied advances had slowed down in the face of strengthening German resistance.

Despite continuing vigilance of Allied sea and air patrols, the Axis had admittedly gained reinforcements. In certain areas they achieved local air superiority. Moreover the fierceness of their attempted counterattacks and the presence of considerable Axis mechanized equipment in the Tebourda-Djedeida area indicated the enemy's unexpected strength.

NO. AFRICA REGIME:

People Will Decide

As evidence mounted that Admiral Jean Darlan intended to make his leadership in North Africa permanent, official Washington reiterated its declaration that the French people ultimately will be the ones to decide who is to rule.

Spokesman for the administration was Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who said laconically that the United States was too busy winning the war in North Africa to worry about reports that Darlan had taken over.

PACIFIC:

U. S. Strength Grows

Offensive actions undertaken by Allied forces in the Pacific war theater had continued to gain momentum.

U. S. naval forces decisively beat off another Jap attempt to regain control of the southern Solomons by sinking nine more enemy ships, including six warships in an engagement north of Guadalcanal. Jap losses included two large destroyers or cruisers, four destroyers, two transports and one cargo ship. The Americans lost a cruiser and reported other ships damaged. Meanwhile American land forces continued their mopping up operations around Henderson airfield.

Indicative of the growing strength of the Allies was the report from Auckland, New Zealand, of the safe arrival of an American expeditionary force so large that it took hours for the dee-laden transports to disgorge their cargoes of men and supplies. Lean gray warships of the U. S. navy had safely convoyed the transports through Jap-threatened waters.

In New Guinea the tempo of the allied offense against the narrow Jap-held beach-heads bordering Buna was stepped up. Allied airmen beat off a Jap naval force attempting to land reinforcements and supplies for the hard-pressed Nipponese and shot down 23 Jap planes. American and Australian troops meanwhile had infiltrated to the outskirts of Buna and had driven down the beach from Gona toward Sananda, five miles above Buna.

INVESTMENT INCOME:

$25,000 Ceiling?

Even as salary freezing regulations were made public throughout the nation, congress was invited by President Roosevelt to put a $25,000 ceiling on net investment income to match the $25,000 ceiling imposed on net salaries by James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization.

Under the existing system, individuals are restricted to gross income from salaries of $67,200 a year, or net income after federal income taxes of $25,000. Income from other sources is not now restricted. Pointing out that there has been widespread criticism against inequalities in the present system, Mr. Roosevelt proposed that identical limitations be put on income from investments.

Such a procedure would mean that an individual's total income from salary, from investments or from both could not exceed $25,000 net or $67,200 gross in any one year.

LABOR PEACE:

Decreed by CIO-AFL

For the first time since the CIO split from the American Federation of Labor in 1935, the two organizations entered into an agreement that opened the way for permanent peace and possible full reunions of the two organizations.

Meeting in Washington special committees of the two labor unions agreed to establish a joint commission to resolve all differences between them. To this agreement, they added a proviso that all unsettled issues should be referred to arbitration.

President Roosevelt had long urged the two groups to submerge their differences for the national welfare. Presidents William Green of the AFL and Phillip Murray of the CIO had publicly stated their desire for peace.

MUSSOLINI:

Whistles in Dark

With powerful American and British armies only a few hundred miles across the Mediterranean from Italy, with northern industrial cities rocked by RAF bombing attacks, and with Prime Minister Churchill's grim warning of future disaster still ringing in his ears, Benito Mussolini delivered an 81-minute harangue to the Fascist parliament.

In essence, the duce's speech was a "whistling in the dark" performance designed to whip up the Italian people's lagging war spirit. His prescription for national morale: "Learn to hate and to cease spreading silly stories and gossip."

Reading extracts from Churchill's speech warning that Italy would be placed under "prolonged, scientific and shattering air attacks," Mussolini said the English leader hoped to undermine the Italian people's resistance. He promised that Germany would reinforce Italy with "powerful contributions" and said "the joint Italian-German defenses will give the raiders a hot reception."

Il Duce revealed that Italy had lost 162 warships and more than 400,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen in the 30 months of war.

RUSSIA:

Headaches for Hitler

Russian strategists concentrated doggedly on the task of rolling out the twin bulges at Rzhev and Vyazma on the far-flung line from Leningrad to Stalingrad as the Red's spectacular offensive continued to push the Nazis back and threaten the entire structure of their winter lines.

Hitler well knew the danger poised by the Russian thrusts at Rzhev. If this key point were taken, his troops in the Leningrad sector to the north would be in peril. And should these forces be trapped or forced to retire to avoid entrapment, then Finland would be left high and dry to make such terms as she could with the victorious Russ.

But Hitler's headaches were not confined to the Rzhev areas. At Stalingrad the Reds captured a strategic hilltop southwest of the city that had dominated the approaches from this direction and had been used for weeks by the Germans for artillery and observation posts.

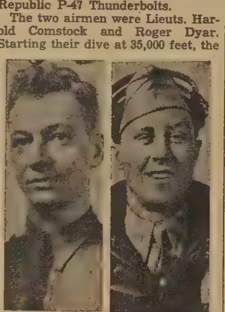
Southward in the Caucasus, the Nazis faced the threat of disaster, for the steadily mounting strength of the Russ placed his control of oil, wheat and coal lands in jeopardy.

THUNDERBOLTS:

Make 725 M. P. H.

Hurtling through the air faster than any human beings had ever traveled before, two 22-year-old army lieutenants dived their fighter planes at the astounding speed of 725 miles an hour in twin tests of Republic P-47 Thunderbolts.

The two airmen were Lieuts. Harold Comstock and Roger Dyar. Starting their dive at 35,000 feet, the pilots reported the terrific speed froze their control sticks, causing them to resort to emergency cranks to pull the ships out of the dive. Reporting his reactions, Lieutenant Dyar said:



Lieuts. Roger Dyar Harold Comstock

"I had a feeling that any second the plane was going to pull away from me and leave me stranded right there, five miles above the ground."

STOCK SHOW:

'Sub' for International

The war had long before intervened to cancel the International Livestock Exposition, but in outdoor pens in Chicago's stockyards, 6,349 farm animals from 19 states and two Canadian provinces competed for prizes in the Chicago Market Fat Stock show—an exhibition organized to bridge over the period until the International could be held again.

It was a one-way ride for the barnyard champions, for war-time transportation regulations decreed that the steers, hogs and sheep must be moved to the slaughter-house after the show. Gone for the duration was the traditional pageantry attending the exposition since the International amphitheater was taken over by the army last June.

No admission fee was required for the substitute show.

MISCELLANY:

ORAN, ALGERIA: The release of 157 unshaven, ill-fed Norwegian seamen and 50 British naval personnel, all of whom had been interned south of Oran for from nine months to two years, was announced here. An Allied spokesman said they joined another group of 40 Dutch seamen who had been freed previously and that 33 Greeks and Belgians were likewise being release

New House Seats Promise Merry Christmas for GOP

Under Guidance of Republican Leader Joe Martin, Democrats Will Face Increasing House Opposition.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The GOP elephant is looking forward to his merriest Christmas in a long time. His trunk will be filled with lots of pretty presents this year—those nice, new, comfortable seats in the house of representatives and the senate.

As the last session of the 77th congress moves to a close there is a contented smile on more than one Republican visage. Not the least genial is former Republican national chairman and continuing leader of the house, Joe Martin of Massachusetts—the "a" in Martin pronounced as the "a" in "yard" at Harvard. (That doesn't mean, however, that Joe talks Harvardese—he's a small town boy and makes the most of it.) Beginning January 4, 1943, when the new congress meets, Joe will be out in front ready and able to snap a long raw-hide over his political herd. He doesn't use that method, but he knows what everybody else has known since November 3—that his political power has risen like the mercury in August.

Silently Behind the Scenes

Like most of the effective workers in congress, inter or intra-party, Joe does his stuff quietly behind the scenes. And the impression I got when I talked with him recently in the gloomy, high ceilinged office of the minority leader in the Capitol was that he is more comfortable now that he has slipped out of the chairmanship robes. He can get his coat off, roll up his sleeves and start on his big under-cover campaign.

The slogan for the new venture is "12 to 13 or fight." That means, as most people in Washington know already, 12 Republicans for every 13 Democrats on the congressional committees. (Most committees have 25 members.) That will mean a bare majority of one for the Democrats and more than a corresponding increase in Republican influence in the drafting of legislation.

Reduce Expenditures

There are certain Democrats in both houses, such as Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia, upon whom house leader Martin can count to join in the chorus of one of the theme songs which is going to be heard raised with vehemence from the Republican side of the house—reduction of expenditures for non-war projects.

Taxes, the Republicans say, are going to make the middle class more class conscious than they have been for a long time. The white collar, salary man, realizes that he is carrying a financial load which is not being shared by the great army of workers whose incomes have skyrocketed. Many of the middle class are on fixed salaries that didn't go up. It is this class which has bought the most bonds. The Republicans are going to take advantage of this situation and do their utmost to become the champions of the middle class.

One Republican congressman said to me recently:

"We can't outbid the U. S. treasury for the support of the people who are getting various kinds of subsidies or benefits from the administration. We have got to appeal to the salary man, the man with a small business, the fireman, the bus-driver, the people who are paying for homes and buying insurance. That's why it will be a bad mistake if we get ourselves tied up with any of the wealthy eastern politicians. They can give us some money, but that's all. We won in the last elections with very little financial help."

As this is being written, the choice of a Republican national chairman has not been made, but if it goes to an easterner whose backers are associated in the public mind with great wealth, it will be a bitter disappointment to a group of practical minded Republicans in congress who are looking forward seriously and hopefully to the presidential campaign in 1944.

However, at this point it might be said that the national committee chairman in neither party has the power or the importance that he once held. There was a time when he could get on the long distance phone and tell a state chairman just whom he wanted nominated for the presidency and if he was a fairly powerful popular figure, "the boys" could and would frequently deliver. Those days are over and press and radio gets much of the credit. Candidates have become real personalities to the voters and the voters don't let the bosses make up their minds for them any more.

Increase of Federal Agents

The Republicans realize this. They also realize that there are other powerful influences which exist now which did not exist the last time they won a presidential election—one is the increased influence of the party in power which has grown with the increased number of federal agents who are in contact with the people. The Republicans, therefore, will do all in their power in the next session of congress to cut down the organizations such as the Triple A and the OPA.

Another federal agency which undoubtedly will be greatly increased if the man-power problem is to be solved, is the United States Employment Service. However, if the employment service has to stand out in front in the enforcement of a compulsory labor law, it may become a political boomerang to whomever the public considers is responsible for it and the Republicans hope to manipulate that situation to their benefit.

Leading the Republican party next year will require political skill because the party of the opposition in wartime is in a difficult position. It must get its share of the credit for winning the war, but it must avoid the blame for the mistakes which are bound to be made and side-step the brickbats which any measure attracts which hits any particular group of voters.

The Republicans have plenty of problems ahead, but if House Leader Martin is typical, they have plenty of confidence and more energy and enthusiasm than they have been able to display for a decade.

Here are excerpts from three days of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's diary (if he kept a diary, which he doesn't, but the words are the secretary's).

Monday: Went to Peoria, Ill., and addressed a meeting of the National Catholic Rural Life conference. This organization was founded over 20 years ago and has as its objective the betterment of rural living.

At noon attended a luncheon meeting given by the Chamber of Commerce. Many farmers were present. In the evening I addressed a meeting of the American Meat institute in Chicago. The institute had a number of farm leaders as their guests. At all of those places the question I heard most often was: "How are we going to get enough farm labor to keep up the production which you say must be maintained?"

After the meeting Monday evening I went down to my farm in Indiana. The fall pigs had to be vaccinated and given shelter. There were the usual amount of repairs and odd jobs to be done and I began to see the need for more help. The labor shortage which I had heard about during the last few days was painfully evident on my own farm.

Tuesday: Sold the last of our spring pigs. I obtained use of a couple of trucks in addition to my own and we had them all in the stock yards by noon. My daughter, Ann, came up to the farm from Purdue university after morning classes and we drove the last truckload of hogs to market ourselves.

While at the bank, the editor of the local paper came in and greeted me and remarked it was too bad about Joe Todd. I asked him what had happened. He told me Joe's relatives had just received word that he had been killed in action in the Pacific. Joe and Ann had gone to the same country school. They had been in the same Sunday school class in our country church. He had enlisted early in the air corps and had advanced to the rank of a first lieutenant.

Wednesday: Back in Washington . . . I wish that it were possible for me to see and talk to farm people more often because of the inspiration I receive from them.

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT IS high time to think of a gift or two for Aunt Emily and Sister Sue. Why not give aprons this year? Your piece bag is sure to have many odds and ends of rick rack braid and bias binding and bright scraps of material which will do for trimmings with a ¾-yard remnant of plain gingham or unbleached muslin.

The diagram gives you cutting dimensions for the skirt and shows

COCOANUT GROVE

Fire and rescue workers enter the smoldering ruins of the Cocoanut Grove night club in Boston to remove bodies of the dead and injured. This fire, the nation's worst since the Iroquois theater fire in Chicago in 1903, took a toll of about 500 lives. The fire was caused by a 16-year-old bus boy who lit a match so he could see to replace a ceiling light bulb. The match started an artificial palm tree burning.

Always Being Bossed by Corporals

Members of the German armistice commission in French Morocco, captured by U. S. forces who landed there during the North African operations, are shown being marched off for internment by an American corporal. Taking orders from a corporal is nothing new for them. That was Der Fuehrer's rank in the German army.

Army Coffee Rationing Helps Civilians

More than a year ago the army quartermaster corps took steps to ration coffee. As the table top rotates, the army officers sniff and taste each sample of coffee, at the quartermaster depot, in Chicago, where 48,000 pounds of coffee is roasted daily.

Sinks French Fleet

The scuttling of the French fleet at Toulon, when the Germans stormed that great French naval base, was ordered by Admiral Jean de la Borde (above), commander-in-chief of the fleet. Sixty-three vessels, including three battleships, were in the harbor at the time, and 61 of these were believed lost. Thus were the Nazis deprived of the fleet on which Hitler had banked so heavily.

DRAW a long breath of relief, you lads who secretly adore Greer Garson—with her marriage to Richard Ney postponed until after the war there may still be a chance for you! At least, at the moment there is; one never knows what to be sure of when a Hollywood marriage is concerned. At any rate, as of right now, this one is delayed; seems, according to Lieutenant Ney's announcement, that there was no place where they could be married until 10 o'clock, when the time came, so they decided to wait.

WHO'S NEWS This Week

By Lemuel F. Parton

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Maj. Gen. George S. Patton, tagged as a two-gun general, so tough he chews cactus, is exultant, vociferous and omnipresent in French Morocco as the commander of the United States forces there. The general, who earned his two-gun title, as it will be explained later, was educated in the Classical School for Boys at Pasadena, Calif., before he went to West Point. There he may have learned of Hannibal's elephants. At any rate, he was out early as a tank specialist, commanded the first tank brigade in the First World war, was severely wounded and lavishly decorated, and thereafter became the champion tank-herder of the U.S.A. He is now commander of the first armored corps. He was in command of the landing and mopping up operations on the African Atlantic coast.

Introducing Two Gun Patton, Tank Herding Champion

At 57, he is bull-voiced, hard, muscular and fit, his two guns still in his belt, and with nothing written off but his hair. That the Pasadena lotus-land of the Rose Bowl and the dolce far niente should turn out from a classical school the toughest, rootin-tootin' general of our high command is something to put down in the book.

As to the two guns, Colonel Patton, with General Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico, was chasing Villa's men through the chapparal. He caught up with Candelario Cervantes and a band of exceedingly tough hombres. It came down to a close-range shooting match, with the colonel backed up against a wall, whamming away at the mounted Cervantes troop, with two .45-caliber revolvers. He emptied them both, and as he started to reload, bullets came so close that they hemstitched his silhouette on the wall. He got both guns working and dropped Cervantes. He rode happily back to headquarters.

He was the first officer assigned to the tank corps in the First World war, and organized and commanded the 304th brigade. On September 25, 1918, at Bogais, he led six American and two French companies into action—with 22 tanks. He was wounded. For this and other such exploits, he was awarded the Distinguished Service cross, two citations, the Silver Star, the Purple Heart, the Congressional Medal of Honor and the World War medal.

In the post-war years, he continued as a tank specialist, and in December, 1940, was giving his thundering herd a workout in Abbeville, Ga. A year later, his "hell on wheels" Second Armored division was the leading attention-getter around Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. They had only 75-mm. field artillery guns then, but it is noted in dispatches from North Africa that the general is all set up with a lot of new 105-mm. self-propelled guns, and that one of them blew a hole in Fort Lyautey big enough to let his men through to capture the fort.

PIERRE PUCHEU, one of the roughest and toughest of Hitler's me-too men of Vichy, was the loudest in defamation of America and one of the first to duck when the Yanks came—right over to Africa he fled, to string with a winner in his customary manner. As chief of the Vichy Gestapo, he had charge of shooting hostages. It would appear that, in Africa, he might embarrass even our state department, necessarily hospitable to all comers in a wartime emergency. The Fighting French naturally find M. Pucheu hard to take.

War Makes More Queer Bedfellows Than Do Politics

He is a synthetic strong man, big and husky, who built himself up with tough talk and a pair of out-size rubber-tired spectacles which make him look ogreish.

His participation in the inside job which delivered France, roped and hog-tied to Germany, began in 1923 when he became foreign relations officer for the Comite des Forges, the steel and munitions cartel organized two years previously, to betray France and fatten Germany from that day to this. Flandin, in-and-outer in big-time French politics and on the receiving end of every big smear of his time, including the Stavisky scandal, was a co-conspirator with Pucheu from the first, and fled with him to Africa—a noisome twosome and a double-threat.

Pucheu worked offstage for years, keeping the French Lorraine ore steadily routed into Germany, but in 1936 stepped out into the open, with the raucous and rotund Doriot, for Hitler and Fascism against the French republic. He was a loud agitator against "putrescent democracy."

One of his dividends from his steel cartel manipulations was his big Japy machine and munitions plant on the border. When his friends, the Nazis, marched in, they didn't lay a glove on his plant, and he soon had it in full operation again.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

FLOYD NEWS

Last Sunday was preaching day. We had a fine Sunday School.

We had a nice crowd and several visitors of whom we were mighty proud.

Our Sunday School seems to be on the incline and we sure do appreciate our visitors and especially invite them to come and be with us every time they can. We also had Bro. Elmore Prickett and wife with us, he is working at Mobile.

After Sunday School we had a most interesting sermon by Bro. Edward Wilkins (our pastor) the subject. Get in the old paths and walk not sit down.

We especially invite all who can to come and worship with us for we feel like if there ever was a time that the people needed to get close to the Lord it is now and to pray as never before.

On the third Sunday evening there will be singing and we invite all singers and lovers of music to be with us. We will use the new book Blessed Hope.

Prichard officers were said to have broken up a theft ring when raid recovered 40 stolen bicycles.

Get Mothers, Fathers Sisters or Brothers Christmas present at Bell Hardware Company. Something to please the whole family.

On Dr. Goebbels' calendar there's a circle 'round January 1

ON JANUARY 1 the Nazis are going to find out just how we Americans really feel about this war —whether we're all of us in it all the way.

For January 1 is the date set by Uncle Sam when everybody on a payroll ought to be enrolled in the Payroll Savings Plan—so that at least 10% of the gross payroll of every firm goes into War Bonds every payday.

And when we reach that goal by January 1—it's going to be painful news for Dr. Goebbels and his cronies!

At the moment there are many of us who ought to be on Payroll Savings Plans—and aren't. And though some of us are investing more than 10%, a lot of us are doing less than we can and should.

So it's up to you to see that we "Top That 10% by New Year's." If you're not in on the Payroll Savings Plan, sign up today. If you're setting aside less than 10%, get signed up for more—and fast! If you can afford to invest more than 10% do it—and be glad you can.

For there's nothing that can end this war quicker, nothing that can shatter our enemies as completely as the knowledge that we Americans are all of us fighting this war with everything we've got! And doing it our own democratic way—because we know in our own minds we've got to do it to survive.

And in serving our country we serve ourselves—not only today, but tomorrow as well. For every $3 we put into War Bonds comes back to us as $4 when the Bonds mature—to buy the things we want and cannot get today.

Won't you put your name on the line today? Sign up on the Payroll Savings Plan for not 6% or 7% or 8% but at least 10% of your wages every payday.

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO:

If you are . . .

1. Already investing 10% of your pay in War Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan—boost that 10% if you can.
2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed, but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
3. Working in a plant where the Payroll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager—and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
4. Unable to get in on the Payroll Savings Plan for any reason, go to your local bank, or wherever Bonds are sold. They will be glad to help you start a Plan of your own.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Don't forget to go down by the Alabama Power Company's windows and take a good look at the Lions Club display of the prizes being given away on December 22nd at the New Wadesonian Theatre. Some mighty pretty and some mighty valuable prizes are among those offered this year.

Understand that Jim Parrish has taken the place of Grady Bates as representative of the Emergency Aid Insurance Company in Chilton County. We have another long tall friend who works with the same Company, name of Jim Folsom, who no doubt you have heard of. Anyway, best of luck to Jim, (we mean Jim Parrish) and may all his policies be large ones.

Which reminds me one of the fellows who are over 38 and who had already been called up for examination, etc., read the papers the other morning stating that all men 38 years or older had been deferred. He said that wasn't anyone in his end of town being run over by an automobile, that was him celebrating when he read the paper.

Had you noticed Diefenderfer and son in town walking around lately. Young milton who left Sunday night and is stationed at Gilroy, California, spend several days here with his family, Milton has been in the Service exactly one year this month.

Wonder what in the world a fellow who is in the Army would spend his furlough hunting for. Maybe that don't make sense to you, but neither does it make sense to me. But let's get back to the subject. M. D. Foshee, who is without a doubt the best hunter in these here parts, has been home for the past several days on furlough and has spent most of the time hunting. The thing about M. D., is that he doesn't only hunt, he gets things. He brought in a nice bag of turkey and [illegible] the other morning and we were just thinking we sure wouldn't like be Hitler, if M. D. was stalking us.

Here's good news for a lot of young folks around our town. Bob Sumner is really making good at this war business. Bob, who had already graduated from a gunnery school, has now completed his bombardier-navigation training and is ready for his assignment to an operational training unit. Friends in Clanton will be proud of Bob. He is Staff Sgt. now and by-the-way he was one of the top men in his class at graduation. This probably means that pretty soon we will be reading about Robert W. Sumner shooting down a flock of Stuka Dive Bombers, and boy, that will be good reading. In case we didn't tell you, Bob is at Army Air Forces Advanced Flying School at Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Monday night Clanton looked like a blackout was in progress. Quitting work about eleven we noticed that the Bus Station Cafeteria had closed. On down the street the Dixie was dark. Still further on our way the City Grill force had called it quits for the night and gone home. Lately all the Service Stations have been closing at night instead of the old habit of staying open all of the 24 hours. But to cap it all we stopped by the post office and believe it-it was locked and we couldn't even get in to our box. As we came off the steps we stopped and struck a match to see if they hadn't rolled up the side-walk but they hadn't. Must of overlooked it.

We're sorry to hear that our friend Dr. H. M. Nix is sick at his home in Maplesville. He has had to discontinue his practice for the present. Always a popular Denfist, Dr. Nix just worked too hard and now will have to take things a little easier for a while. We wish for the good Doctor a speedy recovery.

Wonder where Luther Culpepper got that very blue hat . . . If you haven't done your Christmas hinting, the time is getting short, and you better start now . . . Ada Bennett has done hers . . . and have you seen the beautiful things for the ladies down at Johnson's Fashion Shop? . . . We learned that Morgan Reynolds, son of Mr and Mrs. Grady Reynolds has been sighted for bravery in action . . . Somewhere in the Pacific . . . "Vic" Heard, City Clerk, can think of the dog-gonedest things. Now he warns that after December 31st our City Taxes are delinquent. And the last installment of last years income tax just paid. . . . Another batch of Christmas cards. We believe that folks really took the postmasters word for it this year and are mailing their cards and presents early . . .

Morgan Reynolds Sighted For Bravery In Solomon Battle

Morgan Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Reynolds, of Clanton, has been sighted for bravery in the Battle of Savo Island, August 9th, 1942.

Here is the comment for the official record of his conduct during this battle.

"Ensign Reynolds was assigned as Junior Officer, turret II and had as his battle station, in charge of the lower powder room of that turret. He remained on station until ordered to leave. He assisted in rescuing those men remaining alive in the lower powder handling room of turret I. During the entire action and the period following, Reynolds conduct was excellent and outstanding in that he endeavored to do all he possibly could to aid and help others." Signed |s| Wm. G. Greeman, Captain, USN.

Morgan graduated from Chilton County High School in 1936, entered the University of Alabama in the Fall of the year and received his B. S. Degree from the University in August 1941. His intention was to study law, but upon graduation applied for enlistment in the U. S. Navy and was accepted in October, 1941. He was called into service on January 10th, 1942 and was assigned to the Cruiser U. S. S. Astoria, which was then with the fleet in the Pacific.

In the Battle for the Solomon Islands commencing August 7th, 1942, the U. S. S. Astoria was hit by shell fire and torpedoes and was set afire and the order was given to abandon ship at 2 o'clock a. m. on Sunday morning August 9th, 1942. Morgan clung to a piece of wreckage and was rescued about noon on August 9th, after having been in the water about ten hours.

Morgan is now somewhere in the Pacific.

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT AT METHODIST SUNDAY EVENING

Sunday evening at 5:30 the Clanton Methodist Church will present a Pageant. Contributions on that day go to the Methodist Orphanage at Selma, Alabama and Mr. L. J. Stewart, superintendent, asks all who can to attend services this day and especially the Pageant in the evening.

In some branches of military service, women are studying jiujitsu.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM AT BAPTIST CHURCH

There will be a Christmas program at Clanton Baptist Church this coming Sunday evening, December 20th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The program, in pantomine form, will be centered around the birth of Christ, his life, gifts presented by little children to the manger, prayers and songs. There wil lbe beautiful and effective lighting arrangements.

The program will last for about one hour, and promises to be one of the most impressive we have ever had. Everyone is invited, and urged to be there on time as the program will begin promptly at 7:30.

The committee on arrangement of the program wishes to extend its thanks to all those people who have contributed material and work toward decorating, and other things pertaining to the program. All have been most generous and the committee appreciates it all.

All Stores To Close Three Days For Christmas

In fairness to our employees, we the under signed business and professional men of Clanton hereby agree to close our places of business all day Friday December 25th and all day Saturday December 26th. This means we will close Thursday night December 24th and reopen Monday morning December 28th.

The buying public may be governed accordingly.

WAAC APPLICATIONS AT BOARD NO. 2

Any young ladies in Chilton County who wish to join the WAAC's? Well just in case there is Mrs. Zora Guy Smith, at Board No. 2, has some applications for the prospective members. If you are interested go uy and have a talk with Mrs. Smith and she will give you all the informatio. necessary.

Preaching again on the third Sunday morning at 11 a.m., and at night the young peaple of Walnut Creek will present the Christmas program. Even ol' Santa is going to be there. Sunday afternoon we will preach at Concord on the Chilton Circuit.—Rev. Reese Farnell.

HERE'S WHAT YOUR BOY GETS FOR HIS CHRISTMAS DINNER

Uncle Sam's soldiers at posts and camps in the southeastern states may have the idea thattheirThanksgiving dinner was a right satisfyin' meal, but they haven't really seen anything yet.

On Christmas day, they're actually going to sit down to a repast that would make a gourmet lose face because he hadn't thought up something like it before, the approved menu at headquarters, Fourth Service Command, reveals.

Nor will these fighting men do so badly at breakfast with their oranges, cereal, fresh milk, hot cakes, bacon, toast, butter, syrup and coffee. And again, lots of folks could do with their supper of cold sliced turkey, potato cakes, cranberry sauce, bread, butter, spice cake and cocoa.

That is, they can have that for supper if they're not sams appetites after polishing off that Yuletide dinner prepared a la this menu:

DINNER

Fresh Fruit Cup, Cream of Celery Soup, Roast Yuong Turkey, Dressing and Giblet Gravy, Cranberry Orange Relish, Celery, Olives, Mixed Pickles, Radish Roses, Enowflake Potatoes, Green Beans, Tomatoes, Corn Pudding, Hearts of Lettuce with Russian Dressing, Hot Rolls, Butter, Mince Pie, Pumpkin Pie, Ice Cream, Spice Cake, Grapes Oranges, Apples, Mixed Nuts, Mints, Hard Candy, Black Coffee.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HAS REGULAR PASTOR

The Clanton Presbyterian Church has obtained the services of Rev. J. D. McPhail as their pastor, who will preach here each 2nd and 5th Sundays. Rev. McPhail is the pastor of the Centreville Church and will divide his time with the Clanton Church. He is interesting and well liked by all who know him.

Everyone is invited to attend these services. All Presbyterians of Chilton County are especially urged to help start their Church back into active work.

COTTON GINNING REPORT

Census report shows that 8,354 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1942 prior to Dec. 1st as compared with 4,869 bales for the crop of 1941.

COUNTY BOARD OF REGISTRARS TO MEET

The Chilton Countv Board of Registrars will be in session at the Court House in Clanton, Alabama for ten days beginning January 11th.

—Buy Bonds—Bye, Bye Axis—

Background Of Roger W. Babson

American business has no more inspiring personality than Roger W Babson, internationally-known business commentator and investment adviser An outstanding feature of his philosophy has been his lifelong insistence on the importance of religion in business.

Born n 1875, reared in the old-fashioned atmosphere of hard work hustle on a farm in Gloucester, Mr. Babson went to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Upon graduating in 1898 he turned instinctively to financial and business activities.

Hs exertons, however, undermined his health; he contracted tuberculosis and he was sent West "as good as dead." It was while he was convalescing from this dread malady that he worked out some of the possibilities and problems of business statistics.

That wa forty years ago. Todav his weekly statistical and financial reports are read by thousands of businessmen and his research work is carried on by a large staff of workers.

Mr. Babson founded Babson Institute for men; and, in cooperation with Mrs. Babson, developed Webber College for women,—both nationally-known educational institutions. Here young men and women may concentrate more in the fundementals and less on the frills of business.

To millions of newspaper readers, Mr. Babson is best known by his familiar weekly sories on business which appear in more than 400 papers throughout North America. Of unbounded energy, Roger W. Babson has probably done more than any other man to bring statistics to life, to instil a broader vision in businessmen, and to publcize the ups-and-downs of the business scale.

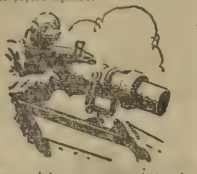
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Aerial Camera for use on Scout and Observation and Reconnaissance planes is essential to both the Army and Navy air forces in planning battle formations and in obtaining information on enemy fortifications and movements. They look something like a cannon, and cost about $3,400 apiece.



The aerial cameraman can plot wide territories in bold relief so that Army or Navy Intelligence can make accurate measurements of enemy territory. We need many of these cameras so necessary to the air arms of the Army and Navy. You can help buy them with your purchases of War Bonds. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day, and help your county go over its War Bond Quota.

The SPIRIT of SANTA CLAUS

THERE will be many shadows clouding our Christmas Day this year: but Christmas is important! It comes at the close of the old year binding up the wounds of bitterness, making fast the moorings of friendship, renewing the promise of peace and good will, invoking the magic of memories.

Christmas is the children's feast: has the Master not said that what we do unto the least of His little ones we do also unto Him? It is twenty centuries since there was no room for Him in the inn and many children have neither a bed nor place of safety these nights. For these, we give our efforts, our bundles, and our prayers.

In America, the children must not lose their faith in Santa Claus. The best explanation regarding Santa Claus and the Christmas Spirit I have ever been offered or able to figure out for myself, is the one that was given to me by my mother on that fateful day when I accidentally caught a delivery boy entering the house bearing an ill-concealed rocking horse.

Santa Claus typifies the Christmas Spirit: the mothers and fathers, those be-whiskered gentlemen in the stores (who puzzle lots of boys and girls by being so numerous), the delivery boys, and all of us who support and participate in the campaign of spreading cheer, we are the life blood and sustaining power of the Christmas Spirit.

The children of today must have their toys this Christmas; and we must be extra-careful that no child has occasion to lose his faith in Santa Claus. There are plenty of sleds and drums, dolls and painted carts and Christmas trees to go around; but it is up to Santa's helpers to see that every child in the land is remembered.

And we grown-ups must have our Christmas, too. For when we out-grew our toys we set this day aside to reunite our families and strengthen the bonds of friendship.

"Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight."

How Happy Pierre Paid For His Special Yule Gift

Many touching, and very human stories about Christmas and the Christ Child are being told and read at this time of the year.

One of them, related recently by a movie producer in Hollywood who stated he heard it at a little French church in his West coast town, fits in very well with the spirit of Christmas.

According to the story repeated, a member of a sectarian order was erecting a little vignette of the Nativity scene. A short time after the scene was erected, the tiny figure of the Christ Child was missing.

The loss was reported immediately to the rector of the parish who came hurrying to the scene of what looked like a theft. On the way back, feeling very sad because of the loss, he was almost struck by a boy in a little red wagon, rushing down the street. The rector knew the happy little boy very well. He was Pierre, the local Baker's son.

Just as he was about to speak to him he suddenly noticed the missing figure in the boy's wagon.

"It was you, Pierre," he cried, "who stole the Christ Child."

Pierre, silent, said nothing and hung his head.

After being scolded and asked why he took the figure, the tot began to stammer: "I wanted a red wagon, this wagon, for Christmas. I prayed for it in His name, telling Him that if I did get it I would give him a ride in it. For it is His birthday, you know."

The kind rector, tears in his eyes, had not words of reproof, but kindness for thoughtful little Pierre.

"I'm sorry, son, that I didn't understand. You are quite right. It is His birthday. You have given Him more than any Magi ever gave to Him on the day of his birth, many, many years ago.

Despite Priorities

Yule Gadgets Will Abound For Toy-Minded Youngsters

Despite the war, the kids want toys at Christmas time. And Santa, who has lived through many wars, is going to see to it that his little friends get them.

Because of war priorities, metal and mechanical toys will be practically unobtainable. But wood and plastics will take their place. The type of toys that they are will bring fun and enjoyment to the children getting them.

One of the new games seems, at first glance, to be a jig-saw puzzle. It is not exactly a puzzle, but what you make from it can be puzzling to those who behold it.

This game consists of various pieces of colored and oddly shaped cardboard. By using the various, oddly cut pieces you can make a realistic looking lion, or house, or giraffe or even a zoo house to keep the "an-i-mules" in good condition.

The real fun comes in on this game when you take the head of a baboon and put it on a giraffe's neck which is attached to an elephant's body with dog legs! To solve the milk delivery problem you can put horse legs on the body of a cow.

Another interesting game—a constructive, entertaining one—is that which has miniature bricks, decorated in waterproof red paint. With the bricks you can build all sorts of buildings by laying them as a regular bricklayer would. For mortar a trick type of stickum is used. After you have built yourself a house, or a bombshelter, or a garage and then become tired of it, all that you need do is set the whole business in water. The water loosens the stickum-mortar, the bricks fall apart, and you are ready once again to build another type of building.

This year a new toy-gadget for the baby who is beginning to notice that it has some mighty active arms and legs has been fixed up by Santa for distribution on Christmas morning. It is a cradle gym. It has a horizontal bar strapped across the top of the crib or play pen.

From the bar hangs a trapeze, a climbing rope, and flying rings. Even little, before-tot age creepers, it has been said, can do marvelous things on the "circus" equipment.

Even though the children of U.S.A. 1942 won't be getting the usual type of toys for Christmas, they will be getting some fine substitutes.

The Tree of the Christ-Child

The Christmas tree has many legendary origins. One of these legends has it that when St. Boniface was converting the Germanic tribes from their heathen worship of Thor to Christianity, he turned their attention from the fallen Thunder Oak, under which the human sacrifices demanded by their barbarous religion had been made, and singled out a young fir tree.

Here was a new symbol: a tree dedicated to love and good deeds. With no stain of blood upon it, its tip pointing towards the undying stars, it should be a sign of the new faith: the tree of the Christ-child. No longer was the emblem of faith to be a thing of dread, but set up in the halls of the chieftain and surrounding with friendship and feasting.

In the homes of the tribesmen, the new tree of the Christ-Child honored the birthday of the Saviour and children played beneath it. It became the symbol of love and simplicity: for "Unless ye become as little children, ye cannot enter the Kingdom of God."

In America, families gather around the Christmas tree in the home, throughout the land community trees are lighted and the old carols are sung; symbols of the spirit of the Christ-Child—the brotherhood of men.

At a turkey sale at Uniontown recently, out-of-town buyers paid approximately $80,000 for 20,000 turkeys. There is talk of erecting a cleaning and dressing plant there.

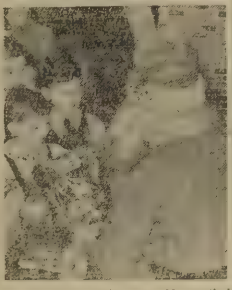
Douglas Edwards, formerly of Troy, who began radio broadcasting there, after years as a newscaster in Atlanta and Detriot has been called to New York to join the Columbia staff.

The Mobile Press-Register has installed a new Duplex super-duty press which weighs 140 tons. Four freight cars were required to transport it. Its speed is 1,300 papers per minute. It is capable of printing 80,000 20-page papers an hour, or 40,000 40-page papers. It stands 25 1-2 feet above the foundation and is 49 feet long and 10 feet, 9 inches wide. The Press-Register issues 70,000-odd papers daily.

Disillusioned Santa Reveals Everything In Last Appearance

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—"I'm tired now. In fact, every year around this time I'm very tired." That is what Santa Claus (a professional one though, for the real one doesn't ever get tired) had to say recently as he was taking off his red and white suit, preparatory to going home.

As he pulled off his white whiskers wearily, he continued: "Besides, this business of being a jolly old fellow is highly seasonal work. Just a couple of weeks' work in December, then something over 11 months' vacation. It is a good thing I am an electrician. I'd possibly starve to death." (The kids should have heard such heresy!)



A few seconds followed while he put on his dark green knit tie before he continued his slightly weary talk: "It was all right at first and the pay was good—$4 for a party appearance or a club or a lodge. Or $2 for a private home call. But I guess I can't take it anymore. Anyhow, the kids won't miss me. (Imagine that, the kids not missing Santa Claus!)

Comes next year there will be one ex-Santa who isn't filling stockings, and putting presents under trees, or telling pop to take it easy with son's electric train. That retired Santa will be just sitting in his own home—not, definitely not, at the North Pole—listening to the Christmas carols on the radio, and wiggling his toes. For his shoes will be off.

A Tuscaloosa County man reported that a goat ate the auto license sticker off the windshield of his truck when he left the vehicle for a few minutes. The incident is said to have "gotten his goat"—(he was also stuck for a sticker.)

Plenty of Trees

It doesn't take long to grow a suitable size Christmas tree from a seedling. That is one of the reasons why there isn't much possibility that the nation's supply of Christmas trees will reach a point of depletion.

Many farmers, having some acres of soil not suitable for regular farming turn the ground over to producing evergreens for Christmas use. Many have thus undertaken the establishment of Christmas tree plantations where harvesting is conducted on a sustained yield basis.

Most of the balsams, spruce, hemlocks, pines, cedars and firs used for this purpose are the product of northern swamp lands.

Origin of Yule Gifts

The giving of gifts to the poor at Christmas time originated with the belief that the Christ Child sometimes came to the door as a beggar.

Patients in a Birmingham hospital recently included a three-year old boy, bitten on the face by a horse, and another boy, kicked in the face by a mule.

The Defense of American Freedom is our First Consideration

A Soldier's Letter To His Friends At Christmas

Brookley Field,
Mobile, Ala.
December 14, 1942

Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Sir:

Thanks for your fine cooperation in printing my letters; and may the entire county back her boys in the Service, for we are proud of you.

Christmas this year in many American homes will be different from any we have ever experienced before. Few are the families this Yuletide where the home circle has not been broken, at least temporarily, by the absence of a loved one — father, son, brother or husband — who has gone away to serve his country. With our armed forces striving for the cause of Freedom along the farthest-flung battlelines of our history, there are tens of thousands of our homes where "Christmas as usual" is impossible because of him who is away.

Perhaps yours is one of those homes. Perhaps your Christmas will have its joy marred by the reminder of him who last year was so vital a part of the holiday. You will recall the jubilance of his Christmas spirit, and on Christmas morning his voice was merry and cheerful.

He will not be present when the gifts are opened this year. He will not be able to accompany you to church on Christmas Day, nor will he be in the family circle that sits around the radio and hears again the story of the Babe of Bethlehem. He has given himself that tyranny shall not rule over you, that Liberty's banner shall never be furled. He has denied himself the luxury of a home Christmas so that you may never have a hollow Christmas. Like the One whose birth we again celebrate, he has gone out prepared even to die, if need be, that you may live,

His absence this Christmas will be marked in your home by the presence of a vacant chair. This a symbol that unites you with him, across the miles, whereever he may be.

I can hear the still small voice from that vacant seat saying, "Yes, by all means, swing the earth near to a star —and bring human quarreling, strife and folly to an end. But let the star be the Star of Bethlehem, and we will always have A White Christmas All Over The World."

Wish you all a Merry Christmas,

JEMISON NEWS

The Teachers' Home was the scene of a most enjoyable Christmas party Friday evening when Miss Miriam Harvey entertained the senior class. The decorations were of holly and mistletoe centered by lighted Christmas candles.

As each guest entered he placed his gift under the brightly lighted Christmas tree.

Many new and interesting contests and games provided amusement for everyone. One of the most enjoyable contests was that of identifying the baby pictures of the various members of the class.

Delicious refreshments were served on plates decorated with tiny lighted candles.

To crown the joys of the occasion the guests gathered around the Christmas tree where William Cofer handed out the gifts.

Barbara Hayman very efficiently assisted the hostess in directing the games and contests.

Instead of the annual Christmas tree and the exchange of gifts the Methodists of Jemison decided to have a church supper all seated around one long table. This was held inside the church. The table was very pretty with tall, crystal candelabra and the tall, red tapers and Christmas greenery.

A large Christmas tree was at the front of the pulpit laden with gifts for the pastor and his family.

After enjoying the delectable plate of baked chicken, dressing, salad, cranberry sauce, sweet pickles, congealed dessert, cake and coffee, a pagant "Come Let Us Adore Him" was splendidly rendered by the following Dorothy Ann Denson, Joe Bratton, Mary Katherine McNeill, Eloise Naish Alice Dorr Denson, Carilyn McNeill, Edgar Patterson, and Sue Bratton. All participated in singing Christmas Hymns. Mrs. A. C. Bratton, Mrs. John Sergeant, and Mr. Denson sang "We Three Kings of Orient Are." Little Carilyn McNeill made an appeal for the Children's Home in Selma. An offering of $15.10 was given for the home.

All present thoroughly enjoyed the association of one another and the feeling that they had helped the unfortunate children at the Methodist Home to enjoy Christmas made all the more happy.

The G.A.'s of Jemison had a Christmas party at the home of Dorothy Ann and Alice Dorr Denson. After the singing of Christmas arols many games were played. The fun came when gifts were exchanged.

Fruit cake, hot chocolate and Christmas candies were served.

Misses Miriam Harvey, Charlotte Nichols, Mary Clements and Evelyn Cooper attended the Delta Kappa Gamma luncheon in Clanton Saturday.

Mrs. Ollie Dawson left Tuesday for Mobile where she has accepted a position.

James Lloyd Bean was home from Fort McClellan during the week end.

Mrs. W. R. Langford was home from Mobile.

STATE DIRECTOR TUCKER PRAISES DEFENSE GROUPS

Reports of Army officers who acted as umpires for the surprise State-wide blackout on the night of December 2 indicate that performance of Alabama's Civilian Defense units was generally "more than satisfactory" Hayse Tucker, executive director of the State Defense Council, said after studying the reports. "They speak, on the whole, in commendatory terms of the manner in which the organized protective units did their jobs", Director Tucker said.

"The outstanding weakness, which was evident in practically every community, was the lack of a satisfactory air raid alarm system. In making this statement, it should be taken into consideration, in fairness to the various communities, that many of them had raised sizable sums of money and had ordered siren equipment; but that due to priorities, no deliveries had been made of the larger type alarm equipment. Due to this fact, the various Defense Corps must realize that their organization must be better drilled than ever and that all of the personnel must respond promptly to help spreading the alarm in the event of an air raid. There were sectors in towns where the alarm system was not heard and where the air raid wardens did not respond in sufficient numbers to spread the alarm in outlying sections.

"The umpires" reports indicate that the response of the general public, rated as a whole, was good, but that complete success in several instances was marred by failure to get complete cooperation.

"In most cases the list of business firms or industries which failed to cooperate are a part of the umpire's reports and will be furnished the communities concerned."

"These reports, as made by officers of the Fourth Service Command in Atlanta, have been sent to the State Defense Council as confidential military information and as such cannot be released for general publication. The details are for release only through the staff members of the State Council in conference with the particular Defense Corps concerned."

FARM BUREAU ORGANIZES IN VERMONT COMMUNITY

At the Vermont School House Friday night, 75 citizens of that community met and organized a Community Farm Bureau.

Cay Klinner is president of the local organization.

These farmers recognize the good work that the Farm Bureau has done for them and what it can do for them in the future. They stated that any organization doing them as much good as the Farm Bureau was, certainly receive their backing and cooperation.

Other Communities in Chilton County are organizing and every farmer should give this important matter serious consideration.

LIBERTY HILL

On account of rain last Tuesday the Cemetery Cleaning was postponed until Wednesday. Just a few were there to do the work, Mr. and Mrs. John Littlejohn, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Baker, Mrs. Sam Avery, Dolpheus Jones, Jim Tippett, Zack Zane and William Lowery, Pauline Lowery, Frances Littlejohn was all that were there to do the work but it was so cold we had to work or freeze so we went to work cutting bushes and digging grass and the best of all by request of Zack Lowery and others Mr. Parrish the Commissioner, sent the road machine out there and really done a fine job for us making us a driveway on each side and through the center. We sure do think Mr. Richard McKinney, the road machine man and Mr. Parrish for the good work and kindness to us. We shall not forget them. We hope every one that didn't get to help work that day will come and see how they like the job.

Let's all remember our preaching days and come. It is a time when we need to keep our church work going and let's don't forget to pray. We always welcome visitors, come one, come all.

An Ashland man was recently drowned in the Tallapoosa River, in Randolph County. He had driven his car onto the Wedowee-Lineville ferry and left the engine runing. When told that his car was moving he likely stepped on the accelorator instead of the brake. His car darted backward and into the stream. His body was found two days later.

DOLLARS FOR VICTORY

Why "We The People" Must Buy Government Securities

The Wheels of War are turning swiftly now. America's mighty power starts to tip the scales.

Behind our fighting forces must stand our Billions—Billions of dollars.

It will cost about $78 billion dollars to finance the war next year which added to the ordinary cost of government of $6 billion dollars, makes $84 billion dollars.

All Taxes put together will produce only $24 billion dollars. $60 billion dollars must be BORROWED.

War Savings Bonds and the Payroll Allotment Plan are expected to yield $12 billion dollars. This still leaves $48 billion dollars to be BORROWED.

The banks of the country are buying government bonds, but there is a limit to what the banks can do if we are to finance this war without disastrous inflation. If they buy $24 billion dollars this fiscal year, that still leaves $24 billion dollars to be BORROWED.

Here's where "We The People" come in. It is up to us to lend our money to finance the weapons for those who are giving their lives. We are not giving. We are lending to our government. They promise to repay us with interest.

If a United States Bond today is not the best investment in the world, there are only two that are— A JAP BOND or a GERMAN BOND.

Members of Circle Four of the Baptist W. M. U. were guests of Mrs. Jimmie Taylor last Monday afternoon. Mrs. Clara Curry brought the devotional message and opening prayer. All old business for the year was rounded up, and the meeting dismissed with the group singing "Bless Be The Tie That Binds" and repeating the Lord's prayer in unison. After the meeting was dismissed those present drew names and exchanged gifts in the Christmas Spirit. They also enjoyed delicious hot chocolate and sandwiches served by the hostess.

Those who did not hear the "Story of Our Lord" given in Scripture and music at the Baptist Church last Sunday evening certainly missed a treat and an inspirational blessing. The choirs and members of the churches, who helped with this program, along with their director, Mrs. Raymond Mims, and her assistant, Mrs. Erle Ellis, are to be congratulated for such a lovely program. We sincerely enjoyed it and we're sure those who heard it will say the same thing.

JOHN E. JONES SELECTED FOR SPECIAL TRAINING

John Ellis Jones, 20, son of Mr. William Houston Jones, of Route 5, Clanton, Alabama, has been selected for training as a Naval Aviation Cadet.

Jones is a graduate of Chilton County High School, Clanton, Ala., and for one quarter attended Auburn College.

Having applied for enlistment before December 15, he was sworn in at the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board, Atlanta, and when ordered to active duty this young man will begin training, after the completion of which he will receive his Navy "Wings of Gold" and a commission as either Ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve or as Second Lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, with assignment to active duty a flying officer with the Fleet.

A central Alabama sheriff wonders whether the milk of human kindness sometimes curdles. Recently he lent his car to a soldier on leave, generously telling him. "Go out and have a good time." A few hours later the car was found wrecked and abandoned.

Urges All To Give Bonds For Christmas Presents

December 15, 1942

The Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Editor:

I wrote an article in the paper last week urging people to give a War Bond for Christmas presents this year. It seems to me that a Series "E" Bond makes perfect pesents because your money helps buy the tanks, planes, and guns that America needs to win the war. You can buy $18.75 bond and in ten years the Government will take up the bond for $25.00. The full faith and credit of the United States Government is pledged for the payment of both interest and principle.

Don't you think that ever yboy who is now enlisted in the service, some fighting on different fronts, will appreciate your giving a bond as a Christmas gift? Our boys are begging for guns, planes, tanks, and ammunition to fight with.

I hope every patriotic citizen, every mother, father, brother, and sister of any boy in the Army will buy a bond as a Christmas gift. If they are not able to buy one, I hope they will see their neighbor and get them to buy one.

I suppose all of you who read the daily papers saw how one boy leaped out into the ocean and got one soldier with ane leg shot off and another one with one arm shot off. He tried to save the life of both soldiers. A shark came along and took the one with one leg, out of the boys arms. A second shark tried to get the boy with one arm off, but the soldier took a long bladed knife out of his belt and drove the shark away. He saved hisandthe boys life both.

We grumble and complain of being deprived of a little sugar, coffe, gasoline. Will you stop and think for one moment the difference in what Christmas will be to us and to our boys on the front. Let's all buy bonds for Christmas.

I understand that a great many people are having their bonds redeemed. I hope all those that buy bonds that possibly can will at least not redeem them for the duration of the war.

A Merry Christmas to all.
Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS
Executive Chairman.

School Children Missed 2,986 Days In November

According to the 1940 census 5.6 of the people of Chilton County over 21.0 did not go beyond the fourth grade.

The national average for non attendance is 3.8, the state average is 6.7 National average for those only finishing fourth 9.9 State average 22.1.

The highest per cent for non attendance for any county in the State is 18.3 and 39.6 for those who have only finished the fourth grade. The figures were compiled by the Alabama State Department of Education.

During the past month 2,085 children missed 2,986 days in the schools of the county giving illness as the reason. 1,921 children were out 6,933 days working. The County Department of Education wants to urge parents to keep children out as little as possible to work. All farm work should be finished by this time. A great many parents in the county are allowing their children to do a small job that could be done after school or on Saturdays. The children in one school room in the county was asked recently by the attendance supervisor how many went to town on Saturdays, every hand in the room went up. They figured that 32 days out of each school year was spent by these chi-dren on the streets of Clanton.

At the close of the past month, there were 4,921 children enrolled in the schools of the county 4,237 averagd being present every day.

Our county needs well trained men and women. The Government is spending large sums of money to give the badly needed training to men in our armed forces. Our country will always need healthy well trained people. Parents are discharging their function as parents and doing their part as good citizens when they place a high value on the time that their children spend in school.

The Study Club met Friday Dec. 4, with Mrs. W. E. Golden., Mrs. P. T. Hinkle, president, led the business meeting. A program on the the theme "Diplomatic Leadership" was given. Mrs. J. P. Hayes spoke on "Max Litrinson" and Mrs. Omar Reynolds gave an interesting paper on "Winston Churchill" Mrs. Iva Saxon McCravey rendered a lovely piano selection.

Delightful refreshments were served to fourten members.

Mrs. S. J. Ezell of Birmingham, Mrs. John Ellis, Mrs. George Jester and Miss Iva Saxon McCravey were guests of the club.

The Study Club in its war effort asks your full cooperation in "The Silk-Nylon Scrap Drive" which was officially opened on Nov. 16.

Your Government is calling for your silk and nylon hose that are no longer serviceable.

What wil lbe done with them? They'll be remare into parachutes and powder bags. Here's what you do—you wash the hose and on your next trip to town, you deposit them in one of the collection boxes in all stores selling women's hose. The merchants will then dispose of them to an appropriate agency for reclaiming — without profit.

Honorable mention will be given to te dealer leading in collected hosiery each week.

Mrs. Grady Heflin is chairman for the Study Club of Clanton.

WHAT'S DOING AT ISABELLA HIGH

Isabella basketball fans got their first thrills last Friday when the Mustangs challenged the Maplesville cagers in the local gymnasium. The game was hard fought all the way through and good sportsmanship was displayed.

Isabella took the lead in the first few minutes of the game and was never behind in the scores. In the first period it looked as if the score might be a bit one-sided with Maplesville on the little end; but they began to tighten up and stand their ground. The score at the end of the half was28to 8 in our favor.

Maplesville came into the third period with the determination to get places, and soon they were adding to their score. But Capt. Robert Cummings (6) was able to keep the Mustangs pulling together and they shared in the scoring.

No particular player was the star in the game, but all of them did commendable playing. No substituting was done by Isabella, while Maplesville sent in a good many of her reserves. Earl Ousley, Captain of the visitors did some good heads-up playing, as did Johnny Smith and Louis Golsom Captain Robert Cummings, Otis Ousley, Judson Cummings, Gordon Conway and Monroe Kincaid composed Isabella's team, and all played well.

Anyway, they were rewarded for their efforts, for Isabella won in the end with the score reading 27 to 29. However, as some fans expressed it, that was "too close for comfort."

The bus drivers presented one of the best chapel programs in many a moon Wednesday of last week. The Auditorium was crammed full, which is unusual for a program of that kind. Everyone was not disappointed, however, for they did present an enjoyable show.

The larger part of the program consisted of music, with a little comedy worked into almost everything. Orignal and funny talks were made by Erman Cleckler, Lomer Williams, Melvin DeVaughn, and Jesse Culp. These talks gave information on everything from hog-raising to bad kinfolks and were written by the speakers themselves.

A very interesting part of it was the way they were dressed. All o fthem were just as crazy looking as their human minds could imagine, making their appearance alone quite an amusing sight. Of course, there was plenty of a little bit of everything to decorate their faces.

Those taking part on the program were H. C. Gray (who did most of the directing), Melvin DeVaughan, Lomar Williams, Harold Scott, Chas. Ray Scott, Erman Cleckler and Jesse Culp.

The Grammar school is buying their share of War Bonds and stamps. as was indicated by a report in the Isabella School Journal last week. Pete McKee, Earligene Dawson, Gulmer Traywick, and Martha McKee have all bought $25 bonds. Incidently Pete McKee is only a first grader, too. The individual classes have bough the following amounts of War saving stamps:

First Grade $5.00
Second Grade $ .50
Fourth Grade $6.95
Fifth Grade $14.00
Sixth Grade $19.70

METHODIST ORPHANAGE WHITE CHRISTMAS DRIVE NEEDS YOUR HELP

Methodist churches of Alabama and West Florida in large numbers are answering the call of the scores of children in the Methodist Children's Home in Selma, and sending pledges of generous suport of the "White Christmas" campaign for a fund of $50,000, to maintain this Home during 1943 and to meet emergencies which are bound to occur under present war conditions.

Many of these churches have in fact agreed to increase the amount of their quota to meet the increased needs, due to the high cost of living, and to enable the Board of Directors of the Home to execute plans for increased usefulness, by making necessary repairs and improvements on the premises of the Home.

It is pointed out that this Home has 167 acres of fine land, equipped with the necessary houses, barns and farm implements. There is the main building which houses the offices, dining room, kitchen, library and guest room, and also provides dormitory space for the children. There is the nursery building, where now about 32 of the very youngest children live. The nursery has its own kitchen and dining room. and is under the supervision of two matrons.

There is also the Smith-Allen Memorial Hospital, well equipped, where Selma's best specialists donate their services, and where a capable nurse is in charge. Other buildings include the laundry building, four large cottages providing housing for older boys and girls, also a dairy barn. where 31 Jersey cows produce all the milk and dairy products used in the home. By way of additional activities for the larger boys and girls they take care of a large number of White Leghorn hens. and 30 odd fine hogs which keep the supply of pork fresh and abundant.

But the wants and needs of these scores of children are many and the Board of Directors of this Home asks Methodist parents to "check up at your house and you will get the answer to our needs, and feel prompted to bring a generous contribution to your church on Sunday, December 20, to meet the needs of these 'other children.' who have the same ambitions, desires and appetites as your own, but are deprived of parental love and companionship."

Alabama Farmers Favor Cotton Quotas

Of more than 1400 boxes out of 2000 in the state the Farmers of Alabama voted nearly 11 to one favoring the adoption of the 1943 marketing quotas. The vote in 1450 boxes gave 69,166 farmers in favor and 6,121 against.

With 100,000 or more votes cast, the 69,166 "yes" ballots assure a two-thirds majority to put Alabama in the list of states favoring the quotas.

If two-thirds of the cotton producers in the United States go on record as favoring the marketing quotas, they will automatically bind the producers to rules allowing each farmer to plant a "fair" share of the cotton that can be marketed at "fair" prices. The government will offer loans on entire crops at the rate of 90 percent of parity.

Should the marketing quotas fail passage, no restrictions will be imposed on the amount of cotton which may be marketed by any producer, regardless of the number of acres he plants, and no government loans will be available.

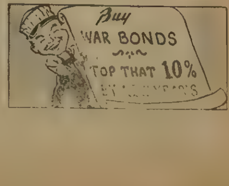
THORSBY INSTITUTE NEWS

The Helen Keller Literary Society gave its annual Christmas program on Saturday evening, December 12th. The entire school took part in the pagent, 'The Adoration of the Kings and Shepherds', which was very successful. The Philomathic Club won the point for attendance.

On Friday December 18th there will be one session only, ending at 12:30 for a vacation of two weeks. School will reopen on January first and will also be in session on January second (Saturday).

An Arbor Day program held during morning chapel on Monday, December 14th opened with a hymn and scripture reading by Annie Lou Payne, followed by a brief history of Arbor Day presented by Lula Mae Collins, Fred Honeycutt, Kaye McClain and Erline Collins read an article on "Tree Worship"; Lillian Peal, a poem, "Giving Thanks for Trees." The whole school then adjourned to the campus for the planting. At the selected site Mabel Wood read a poem, "The Bargain of the Woods and Stream." "Trees" was given by Annette Merchant. Each member of the senior class added a shovel full of dirt to the pile around the little pine tree which had been set in the ground by Oran Marcus, who then passed one shovel on to Frank Porter, a junior, on condition that the juniors would next year repeat the custom in their turn as seniors.

Kissing between the sexes began, according to Cato. Roman poet, a century B. C., when Romans tested their wives for wine drinking.



It Happened On Christmas Day

Ironically enough, several strange and important war activities have taken place on Christmas day.

One which many of the British and German soldiers of the last World war remember is the strange Christmas day that took place on the 1914 front. The World war was definitely on, but for a short time, on Christmas day, there was a period of peace on earth between the fighting soldiers.

In the Flanders sector, German and British soldiers ceased firing by mutual agreement, and went over to each other's trenches and dugouts to spend the day in feasting and celebration.

A very important military event in colonial American history also took place on Christmas day. George Washington, leading his brave, but weather-beaten army of 2,400 men across the Delaware, captured the city of Trenton, N. J., which British and Hessian troops were then occupying. Over 1,500 enemy troops were captured in the surprise march.

Medieval Rulers Enjoyed Huge Christmas Dinners

Calculation of the Christian era is usually credited to Dionysius Exigeus in the Sixth century. However, he was somewhat in error, as it is believed Jesus was born before what was January 1, in A. D. 1. The phrase Anno Domini (year of our Lord), of which A. D. is the abbreviation, was believed to have been first used in 1219.

Lesson

Across the expanse of the centuries comes this lesson of Christmas: "Peace on earth to men of good will."

Christmas Stories Revealed by History

Fortunately, the "idea" in the minds of some to tell the truth to the kiddies—that there isn't a Santa Claus—isn't catching on as well as they hoped.

Everybody—and this includes the kids—enjoys a good story, especially around the Christmas season.

Down through the years have come many beautiful stories, jammed with the kindness of the best in humanity. It is from such stories that many of our Christmas customs have come. For the observance of such customs the United States is indebted to many lands. Palestine, Egypt, Turkey, Italy, Germany, England and Holland all have done their bit to contribute to our added enjoyment of Christmas customs and traditions. To the Holy Land, more than any other, all civilization is indebted for the matchless history of the Christ child.

One writer who has investigated the observance of the birth of the Christ Child has noticed one curious fact. That is, Christmas was not among the earliest festivals of the church. Irenaeus and Tertullian, early church fathers, omitted it from the list of feasts. According to what Origen noticed in the Bible, only sinners, not saints, celebrated their birthday.

It was in the year 200 A. D. that evidence of the feast of Christmas was first noted. This was in Egypt. And it wasn't until years afterwards that December 25 was decided upon as being the date for the celebration of Christ's birthday. During that time Christmas was celebrated on various days, one of the dates being as late as May 20. Eight hundred years after the first feast of Christmas, church authorities used the term Christes Maessi, from which comes the English word Christmas. This was in 1038.

Don't Waste TRANSPORTATION

Of the 6,800 Pullman sleeping cars and 17,500 passenger coaches on the railroads today, a large part are assigned to troop service—and the armed forces have first call on all the rest.

Essential travel on war business—men on furlough—tire shortage and gasoline rationing—all add to the demand for space on the trains.

That demand must be met with the cars we have—other war needs make it impossible to get any more.

So please help the other fellow who must travel—and help yourself—and help us to get the best use out of what we have.

A FAIRYLAND OF TOYS ALL CHILDREN DREAM OF

"Visions of sugar plums dance in their heads" was written a long time ago, but children have not changed a smidgin about Christmas! They still spend months ahead being Very, Very Good . . . and dreaming sweet dreams of dolls and trains and good things to eat . . . and waiting with bated breath for the moment when Toyland opens at Hayes Chevrolet Company. THE MOMENT IS HERE! Boys and girls, mothers and fathers, see our toy wonderland this very day!

"I am a SOLDIER of the Wires"

"With the approaching holidays, I am thinking more and more of the problems which confront us operators in getting Uncle Sam's war calls through, so I decided to speak right out and ask for the help I feel sure everyone is willing to give.

"You know that we operators have a real job to do for Uncle Sam. Every day we put through countless calls from growing Army camps, humming war industries and busy government agencies—calls that we 'soldiers of the wires' know must go through—calls that speed our Nation on to Victory!

"This December, war will take no holiday and Uncle Sam will be using the telephone more than ever. Therefore, we operators are asking you to help us by not making holiday greeting long distance calls this year. We urge that no such calls be made, especially on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day or New Year's Eve.

"I know it is asking a lot, but Uncle Sam surely needs these long distance lines and when he needs them—it's right now! I know we can count on your cooperation."

Christmas Cards Are Personalized Through Pictures

Photographic Christmas greeting cards have been gaining in popularity during the past few years.

The possibilities are widespread as far as the kind or type you would wish to send. There can be group pictures, individual pictures, humorous ones, big and small types.

Even the greeting itself can be included with the picture of the person or persons through the use of a large printed card. Humor is injected into the cards by having a Santa Claus drawn on a large background, with a hole left in the spot where the face should be. Any young member of the family need but put his head in through the hole for the finished effect.

If you are not a good photographer, or have doubts as to whether you could take such a suitable picture, you should know at least three or four persons who are willing to take the picture for you.

Ancient Yule Customs Still Live in England

Many ancient customs prevail in England at Christmas, according to present day records. One custom that goes back to Saxon times is still observed at Okehampton, Devon. Here a "market" is held the Sunday after Christmas at which a man may speak to or kiss any girl who takes his fancy. Mistletoe definitely is not necessary.

In the village of Cam on the day after Christmas the poor are again remembered. For, according to the will of Margaret Treman, one of Cam's former citizens, any parishioner is entitled to the gift of a loaf of bread. Also, the first 50 widows who apply are given money.

Chinese Copy Custom

Chinese children start Christmas day by folding their hands on arising and wishing each other a good day before opening a single gift. The Chinese have adopted American Christmas customs.

Varied Legends Recount Stories of First Christmas Tree

"Here is the living tree with no stain of blood upon it, that shall be the sign of your new worship. Let us call it the tree of the Christ Child. You shall go no more into the shadows of the forest to keep your secret rites of shame. You shall keep them at home with laughter and song and rites of love."

This is a statement attributed to St. Boniface, the English-born apostle of Germany who had saved a young child from sacrifice in the early days when Thor was worshipped by the Germanic peoples. The tree the Saint referred to was a young fir, growing nearby.

Such is just one of the many stories connected with the origin of the Christmas tree. The origin of the Christmas tree custom is obscure, notes Dr. Donald Bond, instructor in English at the University of Chicago, for he can quote authorities claiming the Christmas tree's origin in France, Scandinavia, Egypt, England and also Germany.

Only one of all the legends connects the Christ Child with the Christmas tree. This story goes back to the manger at Bethlehem where trees from all over the world had come to do honor to the new born babe. Very little attention was paid to the diminutive fir by the other more beautiful, statelier, and majestic trees. Suddenly, though, star upon star fell upon the little fir until it shone with all the brilliance of heavenly light.

A Scandinavian tale of woe traces the Christmas tree to that land. Two star-crossed, unhappy lovers dramatically died. From the spot where they died, it is related, a tree grew which on Christmas night gleamed with brilliant lights.

German immigrants to the United States in 1843 are said to have introduced the decorated Christmas tree. According to claims of historians, the practice of decorating the tree at Christmas time originated in Alsace in 1605. At that time the natives brought fir trees into their homes and decorated them with homemade decorations and sweets.

Despite the origin of the Yuletide tree, the sale of trees has developed into an extensive, profitable business. Likewise, tree furnishings becoming an enormous business in itself. From records available, it has been learned that over 111,000,000 electric Christmas tree bulbs were sold in America every year. Possibly the amount will not be as large this year as last, but you can be sure that Americans will have their Christmas tree with decorations and lights on them.

CHRISTMAS QUIZ

1. Where do children receive Christmas gifts from a camel?

4. What important event took place on Christmas day almost two thousand years ago?

5. When was Christmas proclaimed a national holiday?

6. Where did the early Christians obtain their Christmas trees?

7. What is the most widely known Christmas story ever written?

ANSWERS
To Christmas Quiz

1. Syria. The youngest of the three camels bearing the Wise Men distributes the gifts.

2. Santa Claus. The Dutch brought St. Nicholas (Sint Niklass) to America where he was gradually transformed into Santa Claus.

3. Spruce. The Fir holds its needles the longest.

4. Christ was born.

5. There are no "national holidays" in the United States. The Federal government proclaims holidays only for federal employees.

6. Early Christians didn't have any. Christmas trees weren't used generally until the 16th century.

7. With the exception of the Bible accounts of the birth of Christ, Dickens' "Christmas Carol" is the most widely known Christmas story.

GIVE THE BOYS "A BREAK" THIS CHRISTMAS
Don't Blitz the boys out of their Xmas furlough
SOUTHEASTERN GREYHOUND Lines

YOU'RE going to see that home-for-Christmas look on many a young man in uniform this year. Let's help him get there!

With travel facilities taxed to the limit, and the usual holiday RUSH swinging in—what more generous gesture could we make than to offer "our holiday seat" to these camp-seasoned soldiers, sailors and marines. We can take our own trip later, when the situation eases.

So let's speed the boys off to the home fires for Christmas. They need it most. Give them a break . . . and a boost . . . and a seat for our country's morale.

Jemison F. F. A. Closes Contest

Members of the Jemison Chapter of the F. F. A. have closed their subscription contest which is sponsored each year. Most of the members pay their dues by writing one subscription to the Union-Banner or Chilton County News, and when a member writes more than one, the commission goes to the chapter treasury.

The Chapter was divided into two groups named the "Reds" and "Blues". The group writing the least number of subscriptions was to entertain the other group. Each member of the losing side carries one of the winning side as his guest to a football game in Clanton. The "blues" won this year with a total of forty-eight subscriptions and the "Reds" had forty-five. This part of the contest was over on November 1, but a cash prize of $5 was given for the boy writing the most subscriptions and this was to end on December 1st. Lyndon Robinson won the cash prize with eighteen subscriptions, Jack Jackson was second with fourteen, and Quinton Guin was third with eleven.

Much interest was shown this year. Forty-five of our sixty-three members wrote subscriptions to pay their dues. One hundred thirty-three subscriptions were written up to now. The boys are still writing a few but the contest is over for this year.. We are hoping to have another red hot contest next fall.

City Council Makes Appeal To Parents

At the last regular meeting of the Mayor and Council considerable discussion was given to the seriousness of the way many young people are being allowed to roam the streets and loaf around filling stations and Cafe's until late hours of the night.

The Mayor and Council requests that parents take the necessary steps to stop children loafing on the streets and around filling stations and Cafes after night.

The Mayor and Council advise that all the loafing is not done by just Clanton's youngsters and that they are much concerned about the situation.

The Mayor and Council further advise that if the parents can ont or will not help correct the situation then drastic official steps will have to be taken to correct it.

UNCLE SAM NEEDS MEN AND WOMEN

Uncle Sam wants YOU to work for him as a general mechanic helper.

All women above 18 can qualify by passing an aptitude test. And so can men who pass the test, provided they are not immediately subject to the draft or engaged in essential agricultural pursuits.

If accepted, you are first sent to a training school, where you will be paid 390 a month while you take a three-months course. When that'sbehind you, you'll be immediately eligible for a job paying $1500 a year. There are many openings for work of this kind in the Southeast.

If interested, you should complete Form 57—available at the Postoffice—and forward it to the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Maxwell Field, Ala.

MRS. J. T. COX

The manny friends, over the State, of Mrs. J. T. Cox were saddened by her death. After a short illness, she passed away in a Selma Hospital, Thursday, December 10. The funeral service was held in the M. E. Church at Cox Chapel, the little church in which she was married almost 51 years ago. Burial was at Randolph. Rev. Golden conducted the service.

Her angelic disposition endeared her to every one that knew her. She was ever ready to administer to those around her, both white and colored. She will be missed. Her golden deeds were innumerable.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. J. T. Cox, one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Davis of Port Arthur, Texas, two grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends.

Mr. Cox will accompany his daughter, on her return to Port Arthur, Texas, for an extended visit.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

Well, the dye is cast. Either you have bought it, or you haven't. If you have that's just fine. If you haven't, it's too late now so forget it, and stop worrying.

They say that the most valuable goods come in the smallest packages. Well, Buck and Mary Tucker bought some of those valuable goods Saturday night, December 19th, 1942. And without asking me. We're going to tell you; it's a girl. The name? Why it's Mary Kate, and oh yeah, the weight? It's seven and one-half pounds. Now let's see if there is anything that we have forgotten—the mother thinks it's really a bundle from heaven. The father, well, he hasn't come too yet, but if and when he does, we'll let you know. These things are So-oo-oo trying on fathers. And by-the-way, the mother is doing just nicely. And Mary Kate is consoling father.

Charlie White sent us a picture of his best girl for a Christmas present. Now we wouldn't say that if Charlie was where he could get his hands on us, but he is in South Africa and we are in Clanton. No fooling, Charlie sent us a picture of some of the latest styles in South Africa and requested that we print them. Course he was kidding and so are we, but we would like to show you the photographs—that is, if you are interested in the latest fashions in South Africa. And confidentially, we hope you aren't.

Last Thursday, December 17th, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Pipes celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. Pipes is seventy-four and Mrs. Pipes is seventy-one years old. They came to Clanton 40 years ago when Mr. Pipes has been with the L&N R.R. for six years. He has been with the same company since, and is still on active duty. There are three children and nine grand children but Mr. and Mrs. Pipes are the only ones who are still in Clanton. We wish for this fine couple many more wedding anniversaries and may their remaining sunset years be happy ones.

Helen has gone to Shorty in San Diego. He's there with the Marines . . . A most welcome card from John VanDerveer, Jr., who's in Oregon at Camp Adair . . . and Stewart Armstrong at the same Camp . . . We're sure last Thursday's Birmingham Post carried a picture of Jack Fuque on the front page. The picture was of a foreign battle front and gave no names, but if it wasn't Jack, then it was his spit image . . . Another former News employee wrote us this week . . . Ewart Corley. Ewart is stationed at Fort McPherson, Georgia.

Mr. Charlie Cox was just in to see us last Saturday. Charlie has gone back down to his plantation at Robertsdale. He says he is catching it sort of tough these days too. Everybody who lives there works in Mobile, even the women and it leaves him to cook for himself. Nobody there now, he says, but he and another negro and the other negro can't cook either. We'er glad he said that cause if we had said it, he would have got mad. He came up with Dr. V. J. Gragg, who is spending the winter at Foley. They both returned last week-end.

Dr. W. L. Parrish brought his nephew, Major H. Nelson Parrish in to see us the last of the week. It's the first opportunity we have had to meet the Major and right glad we were to have the opportunity. He is an interesting talker and gets about over the United States once every 20 days, which isn't staying in one place very long at a time. Believe me, that uncle that was with him is really proud of the Major and should be.

There will be service at Cedar Grove Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Local War Bond Committee Receives Following Telegram

Office of State Administrator
Treasury Department
War Savings Staff
1525 Comer Building
Birmingham, Alabama
December 8, 1942

TO ALL COUNTY AND LOCAL EXECUTIVE CHAIRMEN OF WAR SAVINGS COMMITTEES IN ALABAMA:

We have received the following telegram from the Washington office:

Secretary Morgenthau said today that the Treasury Department has not decided on any tax recommendations for presentation to Congress. The Secretary said that the Treasury is now in the process of consulting a number of Government agencies who are interested in curbing inflation. He added that they had not progressed far enough in their studies to decide on any program of fiscal legislation to present to the President or to discuss with Congressional leaders. The Secretary said he doubted that he would be ready to say anything definite on the subject of taxes until after the President has sent his budget message to Congress in January.

Please give this message the widest possible publicity.

Cordially and sincerely,
Joseph H. Lyons, State Admn.

ONE SOLITARY LIFE

(The folliwing article, its author unknown to us, was given to an American traveling abroad by a young Englishman, a student at Trinity College, Cambridge University.—The Editor.)

Here is a man who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until he was 30, and then, for three years, he was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to college. He never put his feet inside a big city. He never traveled 200 miles from the place where he was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

While still a young man the tide of private opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. One of them denied him. He was turned over to his enimies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to a cross between two thieves. His executioners gambled for the only piece of property he had on earth while he was dying, and that was his coat. When he was dead he was takes down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen wide centuries have come and gone and today he is the center-piece of the human race and the leader of the column of progress.

I am far within the mark when I say that all the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that were ever built, and all the parliments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together have not affected the life of man upon this earth as has that One Solitary Life!

The Management and employees of Chilton County News wish you one and all a

Christmas Greetings From Pete Jarman

You friends were good indeed to me during the most critical year of our lives, not only by indulging in my overwhelming re-election, but by taking charge of the situation and permitting me to continue the performance of my duties to you and to our County practically throughout the campaign.

In again expressing my appreciation, I wish to say that it has been my constant endeavor to remain worthy of your confidence and assure you of a continuation of this attitude so long as it is my privilege, pleasure and honor to represent you in Congress.

It is my hope for every one of you good folks that you may enjoy a happy, delightful Holiday Season and that 1943, during which we hope and pray for peace, will be one of the most enjoyable and successful years of your lives. So, it is not only Merry Christmas and Happy New Year I wish you but every good wish in which a true friend could possibly indulge.

Rationing News From The Local Board

The people of North America fought the American Revolutionary War 1775 to 17783 in order that they might establish a form of government of their own creation which they chose to call a democracy. Hitler conceived a form of government in Germany about 1930 which is a form of dictatorship. In his book MEIN KAMP published about 1934 Hitler said that Democracy and Dictatorship could not both exist in the world at the same time. One would have destroy the other. This being true war was inevitable, it was just a question as to time andplace when these two forms of government would clash. The United States did not want this war, and neither did any of the United Nations want it, but it was to fight for our way of life, or submit to a form of slavery.

Now that we are in the war it becomes everybodies war, and every one is being called upon to help in every way possible. Civilization has learned from past experiences with wars that there are some improved ways of dealing with war problems. War always upsets economic and social conditions, prices go up, some commodities become scarce, and want and suffering comes to many innocent people. Governments have learned that one of the best ways to handle war distribution of goods is by rationing. This is merely taking the supply of goods onhand and distributing it to all the people in light of the need of the totalwar effirt. Many people are going to be inconvenienced, but a good soldier takes what he is given and does the best with it.

Duties of Rationing Board

Your local rationing board has a duty to perform to two interested parties: The government, army, navy, marines, and all our fighting units on one hand, and to you people onthe other. This board has no other desire than to discharge this duty i nall fairness to al lconcerned. If we the people will observe the following suggestions it will make the work of the board more efficient and our degree of satisfaction greater.

There will be suggestions in this column each week as to how yo umay assist the rationing board in dischafging its duties. If you will follow these suggestons from week to week it will enable the board to render to you a greater degree of service

IMPORTANT

How To Handle Applications

The public is asked to please submit in writing all applications for tires, tubes, gasoline, and all commodites for which it must apply.

The local rationing board meets only twice a week, Tuesdays and Fridays, and your applications will be handled at that time. Applications must be approved by two members of the board at least, before becoming effective. The board can dispose of your application in its regular meeting in a much more satisfactory manner than at any other time. In fact, at board meetings is the only time applications will be considered, please do not contact board members except at regular meetings.

Sugar and Coffee

If any one did not register for sugar last summer and yet does not have ration book one they may yet register for this book. It is on this book that you are now able to buy sugar and coffee. This book may be had any time before January15, 1943. It is very necessary that every one have this book as it is to be the basis on which book number two will be issued early in 1943. Book number two will provide for the rationing of many things, one being meats.

Stamp 27 in your rationing book number one, which you received when you registered for sugar, is good for one pound of coffee for people who were fifteen years of age AT TIME OF REGISTRATION. and not for those who have reached their fifteenth birthday since the day of registration.

Gasoline

All applications for additional milage have been handled by the board and your supplementary mileage books are ready if your application was approved.

You are not to ask for emergency gasoline unless an actual emergency exists, and the rules define an emergency as the case of a human life being involved, or the threatened destruction of valuable property.

Give War Bonds For Christmas

The Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.
Dear Editor:

On account of the bad weather, I have failed to see some parties in reference to the purchase of bonds. I ask you to publish just these few lines. I hope every person that possibly can will buy bonds and give them to some one as a Christmas present, which will also serve as the best Christmas gift we can give our boys that are now fighting for us. I have just had a letter from a grandson, begging for the implements of war to fight with.

I want to thank every person that has sent me a Christmas card or any token of appreciation for Christmas. I am sorry that I have not had time to send out cards. I take this means of thanking everybody for their Christmas greetings and wishing everybody a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. I hope with all my heart that we will win this war and that every boy will soon be home again to stay.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.
Executive Chairman.

NOTICE

In order to publish the Chilton County News so as to reach the subscribers before Christmas Day, it was necessary to leave out the Community News. However we will publish the items that you sent in nextweek. Write the Christmas news of your Community and send it to us.

Certificate of Honor Awarded Chilton County News

The Chilton County News has been awarded a certificate of honor by Governor Dixon and the Alabama Salvage Committee "for meritorious service in the Salvage-for-Victory drive of 1942, in cooperation with the War Production Board."

The award bears the signatures of Governor Dixon; Secretary of State John Brandon; Thomas Bragg, chair- of the Alabama Salvage Committee, and Leon Gilbert, executive secretary of the Committee. Also affixed is the imprint of the state seal.

At the conclusion of the recent newspaper-sponsored scrap drive the governor issued a statement praising "the inspiring guidance of Alabama newspapers." The certificate just issued, the governor's office announced, is "in recognition of continuous support of the salvage drive, so essential to the wining of the war."

Darlan: 'Free France and Then Retire'; MacArthur's Victories in New Guinea First Milestone in Long Trek to Tokyo; British Cut Rommel's Forces in Two

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Soldiers of Gen. Montgomery's British Eighth army can't complain that they are kept in ignorance of the news on their front and elsewhere. For the British commander has newspapers flown from Cairo to his men at the front. The newsboy here is Pvt. Sam Hayworthy who was a newsboy in Manchester, England, before enlisting.

TUNISIA:
Darlan's Finesse

Adm. Jean Darlan showed his adroitness as a politician when he issued a statement disclaiming any personal ambitions and announcing his intention of retiring to private life after helping free France from the Axis. While the statement did not please the Fighting French nor completely answer Darlan's critics, it nevertheless was a significant document.

The catch in the admiral's promise to retire, observers pointed out, was that it was not to take place until the war was won. Meanwhile, he would have political sway over North Africa.

To friend and critic alike, however, Darlan's record of collaboration with Lieutenant General Eisenhower and the Allied forces was impressive and formed a sound basis on which to defend the arrangement, temporary or otherwise.

Emphasizing his lack of personal ambition, Darlan said: "I have announced that my sole purpose is to free France and then retire to private life with the hope that future leaders of France may be selected by the French people themselves and no one else."

Rains Came

Tropical rains had intervened to bog down American and British ground forces in the Tunisia warfare, giving the Nazis a respite. Land actions had dwindled down to the extent of patrol sorties, with the Allies apparently continuing to sacrifice forward territory to reduce losses pending the launching of a full-scale offensive.

Operating from main bases in Algeria and from forward makeshift fields in Tunisia, Allied fliers kept up a harassing bombing attack on the Axis-held ports of Tunis and Bizerte. Rains, however, kept the action from the forward air fields to intermittent flights. Any stretch of good weather which would dry these fields would permit the Allied air forces to step up their attacks.

PEACE:
Hoover Offers Plans

Proposing peace plans before actual victory to stabilize conquered countries and prevent the tragedy of a second Versailles treaty, former President Herbert Hoover presented a six-point program that would include:

Total disarmament of the enemy; designation of provisional boundaries of nations; repatriation of war prisoners and refugees; immediate removal of the economic blockade once the enemy surrenders; organization of agencies to prevent famine and disease and aid in reconstruction; provisional restoration of commercial treaties.

Mr. Hoover indicated that he anticipated peace in Europe before the enemy was defeated in Asia.

NEW GUINEA:
MacArthur Milestone

With the capture of Buna, following the fall of Gona, Gen. Douglas MacArthur scored a significant military success in New Guinea. For by regaining this territory from the Japs, the Allied forces had accomplished their first step in the gigantic job of recapturing the vast territories Japan acquired in its three months' blitz-krieg through the South Pacific following Pearl Harbor.

That the first accomplishment was modest compared with what still lay ahead few strategists denied. The Japs proved tenaciously irksome even after Buna's fall by landing small forces in the vicinity for sniping and guerrilla war. It had taken more than five months to expel the Japs from the comparatively small slice of north central New Guinea they occupied after their first capture of the Gona-Buna beachheads.

Still in Jap hands in New Guinea were the ports of Lae and Salamaua, several hundred miles up the coast. Their capture would probably be the next milestone on MacArthur's march.

Southward in the Solomons, the enemy had pursued its persistent tactics of trying to supply and reinforce its stranded troops on Guadalcanal. And again the attempt was frustrated by forces. American bombers drove off the enemy, sinking either a destroyer or a cruiser from among 10 warships that tried to reach the island.

ROMMEL:
His Forces Split

Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel found himself in his toughest spot as the British eighth army, commanded by Sir Bernard Montgomery, cut his fleeing Axis forces in two in the Libyan desert, threatening thousands of enemy troops with capture or death.

In a sudden flanking movement, advanced British forces reached Wadi Matratin, 55 miles west of El Agheila on the Gulf of Sirte. There the British spearhead slashed southward, cutting off Rommel's army. One Nazi force continued to flee to the west and the other was caught between the British main army and the advanced elements.

It had been apparent that Rommel had only been feinting in his defense of El Agheila. But it was just as apparent that Montgomery had outsmarted Rommel.

Even before this latest maneuver, RAF pilots strafed the German columns as they retreated from El Agheila. Early advances necessarily had to be cautious because Rommel had left his wake strewn with land mines.

It appeared increasingly certain that the main question was whether Rommel would succeed in getting his men into Tunisia, 475 miles west of El Agheila, to join with the forces of Gen. Walther Nehring.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON: Re-establishment of French sovereignty over Madagascar was provided for in an agreement signed by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French forces. The provisional British military administration will end with the arrival of Gen. Gentilhomme, commander-in-chief of the Fighting French.

ROME: Father Alesio Magni was selected vicar general of the Jesuit Order to hold office until a new general is elected, it was reported here. Father Magni was chosen by the late Father Count Wladimir Ledochowski, general of the order before his death recently in Vatican City. Father Magni's name was in a sealed envelope left by Father Ledochowski.

1943 PROPHECY:
"Tough Year Ahead"

Brig. Gen. Leonard P. Ayers first made fame as an economic prophet when he predicted the stock market collapse of 1929. No collapse or panic was in store in his forecast for 1943. But the Cleveland banker did predict it would "probably be our toughest war year, both for individual business men and corporations."

Among Ayers' prognostications for 1943 were:

Despite recent good war news we probably "shall still be engaged in active warfare a year from now." National income in 1943 will be 15 to 20 per cent larger than the 112 billion for 1942. Cost of living up 10 per cent in 1942 will advance 5 to 10 per cent more. Civilian employment of nonfarm workers will be up 3 to 5 per cent. Dollar volume of retail stores will be down 10 to 15 per cent. The holiday trade just closed will be the last big season for the duration.

NAZIS STIFFEN:
Defenses in Russia

Heavy counterattacks by Nazi forces had been expected in an attempt to lift the pressure on their legions pinched by Russ armies in the Don river bend near Stalingrad and faced with critical difficulties in the Rzhev area northwest of Moscow. But the Soviet armies had been ready for them and had checked the advances after the Germans made some initial gains.

The Germans had used all the tricks in their bag—dive bombers, tanks and infantry assaults—to roll back the Russians southwest of Stalingrad, but their efforts resulted in costly losses of men and equipment.

So effective were the Red operations in the Stalingrad area that despite the bitterness of the fighting, workmen protected by the Red army had repaired an extensive mileage of railroad tracks and supply trains were able to move in for the first time in many months.

That the Germans were determined to hold strategic Rzhev at all costs was indicated by the large number of reserves they threw into waves of attacks on that front. The sturdy Russians, however, absorbed these blows and prepared for further assaults of their own.

FOOD ARBITRATOR:
Byrnes Gets Power

Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes already had responsibility to spare in fulfilling his critical wartime job. But on the shoulders of this willing official were piled new powers, when President Roosevelt vested him with the task of arbitrating any disputes that might arise over the operation of Claude R. Wickard's Office of War Food Administration.

What those disputes might be, neither the President nor Mr. Byrnes would disclose. But Washington observers pointed out that the complex problem of adequately feeding the nation as well as the armed forces during wartime might result in jurisdictional clashes between Mr. Wickard and Donald M. Nelson, War Production chief.

JAMES F. BYRNES
. . . Umpire-in-chief.

Mr. Byrnes revealed, however, that on the day President Roosevelt named Secretary of Agriculture Wickard as food administrator, he handed Mr. Byrnes a letter making him the White House mediation agent.

NAVY RECRUITING:
Extended Temporarily

Navy, marine and coast guard recruiting offices were doing a land office business. For with the official order to reopen enlistments in these services until February 1, thousands of men in the 18 to 37 age class flocked to the colors.

The decision to permit volunteering temporarily in the three services was made because arrangements to draft men for them could not be completed for a few weeks.

Under the temporary volunteer plan a draft registrant had to volunteer through his local selective service board. If the board approved his application, it waived examination by its physician and sent the applicant directly to the recruiting office of the branch of service he selected. If the volunteer were rejected in his chosen service, his draft status was the same as before and he remained subject to induction for another service or for limited service. He would then resume the draft status he had before volunteering.

SOME movie stars can appear in public without being recognized, if they choose to, but not Gary Cooper. Several times lately your correspondent, doing a spot of dog-walking, has met him striding along one of the streets of the neighborhood—his New York residence is nearby. With his hands in the pockets of his dark blue overcoat, the hero of "For Whom the Bell Tolls" marched past women out doing their marketing and nursemaids out with infants—and left behind him a trail of people with their heads turned, looking after him. He's so tanned and so thin and walks so well that he'd be noticed anywhere.

Higher Prices Asked for Extra Effort by Farmers

Time and a Half for Factory Workers' Overtime, Manufacturers' Cost-Plus, Proves Demands Not Excessive.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

There is a package in Washington addressed to the farmers marked "Do Not Open Until After Congress Convenes." It may never be delivered, but the people who are doing it up at this writing think it will be. It will make a nice New Year's present. It is labeled "Higher Farm Prices."

Several straws indicate that the wind is blowing in this direction. The house early this month unanimously passed a measure which directed that the cost of all farm labor be included in computing parity prices.

Since the election is over, nobody can attribute purely political motives to the congressmen who supported the measure. As nearly as I can find out, the vote reflected the mail—the opinions expressed in the letters that the congressmen have been getting since the election—plus a belief on the part of many people in the administrative as well as the legislative branch that if we are to ask the farmer to increase his production effort from 20 to 50 per cent, we will have to give him the incentive of higher prices.

One official said to me:

"When you go to a contractor and say that he has got to double his production or get it out in one-half the ordinary time, you are not surprised when he expects a bonus. When you ask the farmer to raise more than he ordinarily does—he is usually raising all he thinks he can anyway—it is natural that he expects some sort of material reward. Time and a half for over-time has not been abolished, manufacturers are guaranteed against loss by the cost-plus system. Why shouldn't the farmer get his share?"

These are some of the arguments which you hear these days when the question of raising farm prices is discussed. This is quite a different attitude from the one taken when the country was demanding that something be done to prevent inflation. Proponents of higher ceilings claim that they are not inconsistent. They say: "There is no danger of uncontrolled inflation when you permit a stipulated limit to the rise in costs."

Subsidies Not Popular

Already it has been found necessary to subsidize the cheese markets. If you expect to get all the dairy and pork products you need, the argument runs, it will be necessary to pay the farmer a little bit more for his milk and hogs. Subsidies are not popular. If another way can be found, so much the better.

There is, however, another important consideration in connection with the whole food and fiber production program. This is a growing demand that processing and distribution be strictly regulated. Secretary Wickard, as food administrator, has the power to set up such regulations.

Officials who served in the department of agriculture through the last war will testify that although there was efficient food distribution, a lot of smart processors and middlemen feathered their nests at the expense of the farmer and the public. Farmers know this. One congressman said to me: "The folks out in my district do not object to working twice as hard and producing twice as much if they can. They do think, however, that they ought to get a little more money for their extra effort and they also feel they ought to have the guarantee that no speculator is going to make money out of the increased production the way many did in the last war."

The appointment of Secretary Wickard, with his powers over the processing and distribution of food products, was partly a result of opinions such as expressed by the farmer whom my congressman friend quoted. It is argued that since the department of agriculture is responsible for getting enough food and textiles to fill the domestic, army and navy and lease-lend demands, this same agency ought to have control over the preparation and distribution of these products as well.

Not Mr. Wickard's View

There are some, of course, wh take an extreme view of this subject. They would like to see th government take over the whol processing and distribution industry at least for the duration. This is no the view of Mr. Wickard.

Naturally, there will be strong opposition to increased farm price from the Office of Price Administration and various other bodies, whic are supposed to speak for the consumer or which represent the strong anti-inflationist views.

The President has made it plai that he will be the arbiter when such conflicts arise. The formula for parity cannot be altered without legislation since it is already defined by law. Even if the senate concurs with the house and agrees to include all farm labor costs in the parity formula, the President would stil have the power to veto such a measure and the administration could probably muster enough votes to support the veto.

Secretary Wickard, who moves slowly and conservatively, has been gaining power as he advanced. There is more and more evidence of a return to influence of the old line departments as against the wartime agencies like the OPA. The former have more influence with congress and apparently the people have more confidence in them.

The department of agriculture will be there when the mushroom agencies have strutted their hour and disappeared.

Japan Must Learn

"Japan must not only be defeated but crushed . . . maimed and left helpless for a long period."

Speaking not, he says, in the voice of wartime emotionalism nor as the retired colonel or a sedentary editorial writer, Nathaniel Peffer, Far Eastern expert, makes the above statement. "Japan," he says, "must be taught a terrible lesson, a lesson that cannot be conveyed by defeat in itself."

I know Mr. Peffer, have known him since I heartily disagreed with many of his ideas, clear back in college days. I know the great respect in which he is held by the wise men of the East—and the West—today. I know his hatred and contempt for the militarist. So I seized upon the above quotations from his latest book, "Basis for Peace in the Far East" (Harper & Bros.) in the hope that I would be able to tear his new tome to shreds in a pleasurable frenzy of humanitarian sadism and delight my pacifist friends. But later on, as I read this highly enlightening book and absorbed Mr. Peffer's program for post-war treatment of Japan, I saw I would have to temper my opinion of the author's unchristian preachment in the first chapter.

I discovered that Mr. Peffer was merely an old fashioned parent who believes in administering chastisement to a bad child.

Two sets of obstacles interfere with a healthy Japan that can live peacefully in the family of nations, Mr. Peffer explains. One group are external, one internal, self-made.

The external are lack of natural resources of her islands. Therefore, he says, after her period of repentance, the opportunity to buy raw materials and the opportunity to sell the finished products must be established. Internally, Japan cannot function like modern communities such as Detroit or the Ruhr or Lancastershire, and at the same time operate a system in which people live in medieval villages. The terms under which we will help Japan rebuild the devastation which our bombs and shells will wreak upon her, will be the removal of internal obstacles to a more balanced social system.

No reviewer can adequately deal with another man's book. If he could he might just as well write it himself. I have offered these brief excerpts in the hope that the apparent paradox in point of view will whet your curiosity—for unless you read "The Basis for Peace in the Far East" you won't be able to discuss intelligently the basis for peace anywhere, when the time comes for it to be established.

Easy-to-Make Yule Pastries Brighten Table

As Santa Claus and presents are to the children so are the fruit cakes and steamed puddings to the Christmas table. One good fruit cake will serve you in many ways—as a light dessert for a holiday dinner, as refreshment for friends dropping in to wish you "Merry Christmas," and as the main note of interest for your club meetings during the holidays.

The steamed Bran Fig Pudding is inexpensive and yet delicious to serve as a dessert for either Christmas or New Year's dinner. Do it up right by garnishing with bright bits of red berries and holly round the platter and serving with your favorite hard sauce.

Bran Fig Pudding.

½ cup sifted flour
1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups whole bran shreds
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup milk
⅓ cup melted shortening
1½ cups figs, cut

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, sugar and salt, and sift together three times. Add bran, mixing to blend. Combine eggs and milk, and add to flour with shortening, mixing thoroughly. Add figs and mix well. Pour into greased molds, filling them ⅔ full, cover and steam 3½ hours. Serve with hard sauce. Serves 8.

Light Fruit Cake.
(10 egg whites)

4 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or other shortening
1½ cups sugar
5 egg whites, unbeaten
1 pound seedless raisins
½ pound citron, finely cut
½ pound each crystallized orange peel, lemon peel, pineapple, red cherries, finely cut
1 pound blanched almonds, finely cut
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon almond extract
5 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add 5 unbeaten egg whites, one at a time, beating very thoroughly after each. Add fruits and nuts. Add half of flour gradually, beating well after each addition. Add flavorings, then remaining flour, and beat well. Fold in 5 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into pans which have been greased, lined with heavy paper, and again greased. Bake in slow oven (250 degrees F.) until done, increasing heat to 300 degrees during last 15 minutes of baking. In 8½-inch tube pan or 8 by 4 by 3-inch loaf pan, bake about 4 hours. Makes 7 pounds fruit cake.

Observance of Christmas Known by Many Names

Not everywhere is the holiday commemorating the birth of Christ known as Christmas.

The French call the holiday Noel or Nowel. The Scotch use the name Yule, and the Scandinavians Juletide. The Welch call Christmas Nadolig, and the Italians call it Il Natale, while the Germans say Weihnachten.

In Polish the term Boze Narodzenie is used, meaning "God's Nativity." The Bohemians and Croatians say Bozic, and the Slovaks, Vianoce. In Spanish the word Navidad, meaning "Nativity," is used.

Romans Gave Presents

The custom of giving presents was a feature of the Romans during their winter festival, the Saturnalia. The early Christians gave presents to their children on Christmas morning, under the pretense that they were the gift of the Christ Child. There is no country in the civilized world that has not in some form or another the custom of giving presents, either at Christmas or around the Christmas season, and this age-old custom can be traced to the dawn of history.

Christmas of 1776 Witnessed Crossing Of Delaware River

The Christmas of 1776 was an important one in the history of the American republic. This is the day that Washington crossed the Delaware to attack the Hessian forces at Trenton.

General Washington perfected his plan of attack on Christmas Eve at General Greene's headquarters. He believed that the 1,000 Hessian troops defending the British outpost at Trenton would fall easy victims to a surprise attack after spending a night of Christmas feasting and merrymaking.

The crossing of the river began at six o'clock Christmas evening. Washington planned to have his entire army on the Jersey shore by midnight and begin the march to Trenton by one o'clock so that he could attack the Hessians just before dawn. But the ice-filled river threatened to upset his plans and some of his officers wanted to call off the expedition. Washington, however, resolved to carry it through and although the crossing took no less than 10 hours, it was finally accomplished and four o'clock in the morning found his army drawn up on the New Jersey side ready for the seven-mile march to Trenton.

Outposts failed to discover the advancing Americans in time, and the surprise was almost complete. Although the Hessian force was captured, the loss to Washington's army was only four wounded and not a man killed.

Crop of Evergreens May Prove Profitable As Business Venture

There is no question that the growing of Christmas trees can be made a profitable enterprise in many sections where, at the present time, the annual demand is met by importation. A Christmas tree in the best tradition is an aromatic, richly green, symmetrical tree.

Since the chief sources of Christmas trees in North America are New England, the Great Lakes states, Canada, and the Pacific Northwest, it follows that plantations of trees suitable for Christmas use and indigenous, or naturally suited to local soils and climates, could be made profitable in other sections.

Suitable Varieties.

1. The Blue Spruce, a native of the Rocky Mountain section, is one of the most desirable trees for Christmas use, because of its fragrance, its rich color, and its symmetrical shape. Since however, it is of less rapid growth than some other conifers, it should not be relied upon as an early crop. It is of easy growth and, given a bit of time, will well repay cultivation.

2. The White Spruce, native to the extreme northern portions of the United States, is of a beautiful color and shape, but it, too, is slower of growth than are some others.

3. The Norway Spruce was introduced into North America from Europe, many years ago. It makes a rapid and easy growth and has a wide range of adaptability.

4. The White Fir, whose habitat is western United States, is a beautiful tree, entirely suitable for the plantation. If it is to be planted in the East, the stock should be selected from Rocky Mountain growth, for the sake of hardiness.

5. The Douglas Fir has a wide range of adaptability. It matures more rapidly than do some of the spruces, though not quite so quickly as the Norway Spruce. It is of fine form and color.

6. The Deodar, made famous by the late Rudyard Kipling, was imported to the United States from Asia. It has been planted widely, and with success and its graceful appearance makes it very popular as a Christmas tree. It is well adapted to growth on the Pacific coast and in the warmer sections of the East and Middle West.

Children Enjoy Helping Prepare Christmas Tree

The joy of giving and preparing for Christmas will be increased if parents will encourage young children to work out their own ideas for gifts. The young child can select the one or two gifts he gives, and should be allowed to wrap them, and to put on stickers.

Children like to help get the Christmas tree, to make trimmings, and put them on the tree, which should be only a little taller than the child. The child can paint empty spools, string, straws and bits of colored paper, weave paper ornaments, make paper chains, cut silver and gilt paper forms, and string popcorn and cranberries.

Mail Early, Write Plainly, Post Office Officials Warn

Post office officials are again warning everyone to send their Christmas mail early.

They urge special delivery postage for belated Christmas cards and parcels. There will be no regular mail delivery on Christmas day, but perishable matter (if properly marked) and special delivery letters and parcels will be handled as usual

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

(In St. Luke 2:8-15.)

"On earth peace, good will toward men," this is a part of the announcement which came from heaven the day of the beginning of this world-wide holiday, December the twenty-fifth, almost two-thousand years ago. On that day God gave to this world the gift of gifts, His Son, to be the Savior of this lost world and doomed creation. May the privilege be ours. Not only of this United Nation but of the entire human family, to become better acquainted with our gracious savior, our precious Redeemer, our Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ, our Lord, the most wonderful gift this world will ever be given, He is yours if you accept Him. No gift will do you any good if you refuse it.

This earth is a very small speck in God's great Universe, and if we, the people of this small planet accept God's Son as our Saviour, we become heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ. It is not a small thing to be an heir of God. If you are an heir of God, all things are yours. The riches of the Bank of Heaven are yours in Christ, and here is your key, John 15:7 "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."

No temptation befalls this generation that hasn't befallen every generation since time began. True prayer is praying God's own word back to Him. God honors His word, and there are sentences and phrases in Scripture to fit ever need that could possibly be ours; take advantage of the opportunity offered you in time, that ye may spend eternity in peace and happiness in the family of God.

Always remember that every soul is precious in the sight of the Lord, and that just one soul is worth more than all the world of material things.

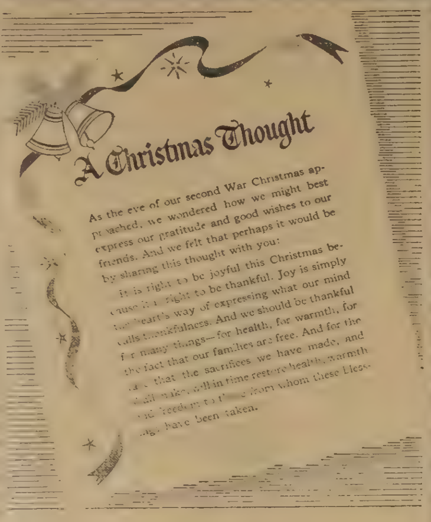
Wishing all the gift of gifts,
Mrs. Una Shoults

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the relatives and friends for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy rendered during the illness and upon the recent death of our beloved wife and mother. The beautiful floral offerings were deeply appreciated.

J. T. Cox, & Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis

Four children, two sets of twins, were recently rescued from a burning house near Greenville. Their parents were away, but the mother arrived to tell rescuers, after two were saved, two other children were in the building.



As the eve of our second War Christmas approached, we wondered how we might best express our gratitude and good wishes to our friends. And we felt that perhaps it would be by sharing this thought with you:

It is right to be joyful this Christmas because it is right to be thankful. Joy is simply the heart's way of expressing what our mind calls thankfulness. And we should be thankful for many things—for health, for warmth, for the fact that our families are free. And for the fact that the sacrifices we have made, and shall make, will in time restore health, warmth and freedom to those from whom these blessings have been taken.

Modern Toys Foster Spirit Of Fair Play

Christmas gifts designed to promote greater use of the imagination among children in the five to eight-year-old group have been planned by toymakers throughout the nation.

Encouraging the spirit of independence and fostering group creative play, the new type toys teach the youngsters to think for themselves.

During the five to eight-year-old period when children are making the transition from babyhood to reality. School days begin for them. The wise, thoughtful parent selects toys for them which stimulate group play. Dull, to those children, are the toys that obviously teach a lesson. But interesting are the toys that teach a lesson under the guise of fun and not in the classroom. Mathematics can be fun if the youngster applies it to counting change for customers in his make-believe store at home.

After being in the classroom all day, children want to release all the nervous energy within them. Toys such as tricycles, small scooters and junior bikes are helpful for the guidance of all such young exuberance.

A veteran locomotive, famous in other days, has been contributed to Georgia's salvage for the war effort. It was the "William R. Smith," used to catch the Andrews Raiders during the War Between the States.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

For a great number of people, a house not decorated with Christmas greens would be dull indeed. One expert has pointed out, though, that there need be no fear that there ever will be a shortage of the greens peculiar to the various sections of this nation if proper care is taken in collecting the greenery.

But as it is today, wanton destruction in the collection of the Yuletide decorations, so thoughtfully placed for our use by Mother Nature, has brought about a danger that we might not have some of the greens we are so accustomed to.

There is a danger that the American holly, in southern Atlantic coast states, and the laurel plants of the mountainous country of the East, will both face extermination unless some organized method of harvesting is brought about.

Three other Christmas decorative plants that are rapidly disappearing because of new, and increased demand, are the winterberry, the ground pine, and the bittersweet.

To a large extent these plants can be saved if the nation turns to the use of evergreen boughs, such as cedar, pine, hemlock and spruce. For a touch of color, artificial red berries could well be used.

The story of our over commercialization is always connected with the background of the dissipation of our native plant life without regard to future stock. Some form of protective law has to be put into effect to protect the quickly disappearing greenery. Restriction or prohibition in certain areas seems to be the coming necessity to save them.

Not Santa, but 'Nisson' Visits Danish Children

The Danish children do not have a Santa Claus, but instead a Christmas brownie, called "Nisson," a little old man with a long, gray beard who supposedly lives under the ground.

The chief features of a Danish Christmas dinner are roast goose, rice and apple fritters.

When the storks have left their nests in autumn, boatloads of coarse brown crockery in the shape of little pigs, with a slit in the back, are brought to Denmark and bought by the children. They are savings banks into which the children drop their pennies. The image is not broken until Christmas time.

DYNAMIC CHRISTIAN LIVING

LESSON TEXT—Romans 12:1-3, 9-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.—Romans 12:21.

Dynamic—there is a word with an attraction for both young and old. It speaks of power, but not just brute force. There is personality with its winsomeness, challenge, accomplishment, all around attractiveness and usefulness as the essential element of this kind of power.

It may surprise some of us to hear that this is the kind of life every Christian may, and ought, to live, by the grace of God. Not that each one will have the gifts of leadership, or the personal qualifications which mark some for places of public service, but that each may have divine power working in and through his life.

Such a life can be lived only as God's power is able to flow through a surrendered life. This must begin in the individual, and in the depth of his own heart. Then it will appear in his relationship to his brethren in the church, and ultimately in his life in the world.

I. In the Heart (vv. 1-3).

It is only the believer who is ready to serve God. The unregenerate man needs cleansing, not consecration. Having that, he is ready for the transforming work of God which will bring him out into a place of freedom and spiritual strength. Notice that this is brought about by an act of the will. We are to present ourselves as a living sacrifice. That is our part, God will respond in blessing.

Conformity to this world (v. 2) is the blight on the church and on the individual believer which so hampers the work of Christ in the world today. The worldly Christian is an anomaly.

The call then is for non-conformity to the world and surrender to the transforming grace of God. Then there will be both true humility (v. 3) and full confidence in God's power.

II. In the Church (vv. 9-16).

The dynamic living of the Christian is not something to be paraded before the world, a thing of which we may be proud. It begins, as we have seen, in the heart, and then gives itself in gracious, affectionate, earnest living within other believers.

Here we note that being dynamic does not mean only being a "live wire." It may express itself in quietness which is graciously powerful; in goodness which overcomes evil; in love which weeps with the sorrowing; or in humility which is willing to touch the lowly.

These verses are full to overflowing with the kind of instruction which, if heeded, would make the fellowship of the church well nigh heavenly. For example, "in honor preferring one another" would put an end to church "fights"—blessed thought! If all were "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord" there would be no problem about getting the work of the church and Sunday school done, and done well.

If Christians were "patient in tribulation," would continue "instant in prayer," and rejoice "in hope," we would at once be free from complainers, and weak or unhappy church members.

We could go on, but the teaching of the Word is so plain that what we need to do is to practice it.

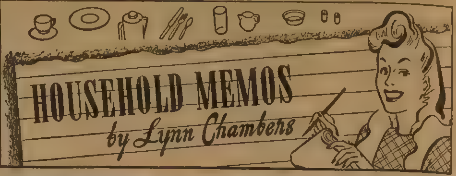
III. In the World (vv. 17-21).

"Take thought," that is, plan to have "things honest in the sight of all men." Bishop Moule's comment is particularly acute. He says the Christian "is to be nobly indifferent to the world's thought and word when he is sure that God and the world antagonize. But he is to be seriously attentive to the world's observation, were the world more or less acquainted with the Christian precept or principle, and more or less conscious of its truth and right, is watching, maliciously, or it may be wistfully, to see if it governs the Christian practice."

How then does the Christian behave toward the world? He does not return evil for evil. How often Christians have failed at that point, becoming involved in a "blow for blow" conflict with some worldly man or institution. How much better to "live peaceably with all men" as far as it is possible to do so.

The Christian is not to seek revenge. The injustice suffered may be confidently left in the hand of God. He will make it right in due season and in His own way. He will judge righteously, where we might be prejudiced. We might be too severe; He will be fair. The way to deal with such situations is by the "coals of fire" method (v. 20). It really works. We ought to use it more frequently.

Verse 21 sums up the whole matter. Instead of letting the evil of this world get the best of him, the Christian will "overcome evil with good." It seems just now that such a plan does not work, that evil has taken the upper hand, but let us wait a bit. The final accounting has not yet been made.



HOUSEHOLD MEMOS
by Lynn Chambers

Toast the New Year With Gay Pineapple-Cranberry Duff!
(See Recipes Below)

Welcome, 1943

Ring in the New Year with a resolve to keep your chins up, your budgets balanced and your meals victory and vitamin minded. Never mind trivial resolutions, just keep the important ones, and you'll be doing your part in the way you can best—and that's the best job, you, Mrs. America, are qualified to do.

Plan every meal so carefully that you will make use of every bit of food you have. That means doing the most by your leftovers and fitting them into your meal program. Economy is the watchword—elaborate food is out for the duration. Vitamins, minerals and proteins are your cue to balanced meals.

By way of initiating this program you will note that even the New Year buffet supper I've planned fits into the guide outlined above: the chicken may be leftover from your holiday dinner as may be your spinach and beets for vegetable and salad.

Scalloped Chicken.
(Serves 6)

1 cup cooked, cubed chicken
1¼ cups buttered crumbs
3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1½ cups medium white sauce

Cover bottom of baking dish with crumbs. Add chicken, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Pour sauce over all, cover with remaining crumbs. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes.

The casserole of chicken is simplicity itself and is especially fine with the spinach timbales because it provides a bit of sauce that goes well with them:

Spinach Timbales.
(Serves 6)

3 cups cooked, chopped spinach
2 tablespoons butter, melted
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1¼ cups milk
¾ cup soft bread crumbs
Salt and pepper
Dash of nutmeg

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: More foods have come in under the ceiling price list. Foods exempt from March ceilings but under the new ceilings are poultry, mutton, butter, eggs, cheese, canned milk, onions, white potatoes, dry beans, corn meal, fresh citrus fruits and canned citrus fruits and juices. Take this list to the market with you and make sure you do not pay any more for these items than you paid for them between September 28 through October 2.

The 2½-pound meat allowance must include meat for you, your dogs, cats and other pets. It includes meat eaten in your house by guests, meat eaten by you in restaurants, and bone gristle and waste that comes with edible meat. It includes bacon, sausage and canned meat.

It does not include scrapple, or the variety meats like liver, heart, kidneys, tripe, and brains. The allowance includes beef, lamb, veal, mutton and pork—but excludes poultry, eggs and fish. Stretch your meat allowance with these and meat extenders like oatmeal, cereal and bread crumbs.

Coffee rationing will mean that you have to consider other sources for hot drinks these cold days. First, you can probably stretch your coffee by using a "coffee stretcher" — using half coffee and half stretcher. You'll like fruit juices, hot and cold, milk for drinking, hot soups, bouillon and consomme.

New Year's Eve Buffet

*Scalloped Chicken
*Spinach Timbales
*Victory Bread
*Beet-Horseradish Salad
Olives and Pickles
*Pineapple-Cranberry Duff
Fruit Cake Mints Nuts
*Recipes Given

Combine all ingredients in order given. Pack in 6 well-buttered custard cups, set in a pan of hot water, in a moderate (350-degree) oven 45 minutes. Unmold and serve with casserole.

A crisp gelatin salad that carries out the colors of the season and that is packed with vitamins and vigor is this:

Beet and Horseradish Salad.
(Serves 8)

1½ tablespoons gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
2 cups boiling water
½ cup lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons horseradish
1 tablespoon vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¾ cup chopped cabbage
¾ cup chopped beets

Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add lemon juice, horseradish, vinegar, salt and Worcestershire sauce. Cool until slightly thickened. Add chopped cabbage and beets. Pour into mold and chill until firm. Serve with watercress or lettuce and mayonnaise.

One of the vitamins in great demand is vitamin B1—the vitamin required for healthy nerves and stamina. Here is a bread which draws its vitamin B1 from the whole grain cereals—wheat flour and wheat germ, and is delicious because of its sour milk, molasses and raisins:

Victory Bread.

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup wheat germ
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup seedless raisins
½ cup molasses
½ cup sour milk
¼ cup melted butter

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Add whole wheat flour, wheat germ, sugar and raisins. Combine molasses, sour milk and melted butter and stir quickly into flour mixture. Pour into a greased oblong pan or two loaf pans. Bake in a moderate to slow (300-degree) oven for 1 hour.

Easy does it! That's what you'll say when you whip together the fascinating cranberry and pineapple drink that looks so-o pretty with its swirls of pink fluff atop each glassful. Serve it as the dessert with paper thin slices of that fruit cake you put up before Christmas. The drink is a grand one to substitute for coffee, and requires no sugar either:

Pineapple-Cranberry Duff.
(Makes 6 small glasses)

1 1-pint, 2-ounce can of unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
½ of 1 1-pound can cranberry sauce

Chill both juice and sauce thoroughly in the can before opening. Beat sauce with rotary beater until fluffy, add pineapple juice gradually, beating all the while. Pour into glasses and serve at once.

WHO'S NEWS This Week

By
Lemuel F. Parton

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—Critics of Maxwell Anderson, the playwright, have sometimes suggested that he has his head in the clouds. That might account for his persistence in saving High Tor, the highest eminence of the Palisades—making the world safe for cloud-fanciers and rainbow fans. However, he doesn't make the mistake of Ibsen's brand, which led his people up so high they froze to death. High Tor is to Mr. Anderson the symbol of resistance against totalitarian quarry companies which would grind the cosmos through their rock-crushers, and also the symbol of certain ideas with which he garlanded it in his play, "High Tor," of 1937. It has high visibility and has rallied behind Mr. Anderson citizens far up and down the Hudson, and we know that remotely heard thunder is not Rip Van Winkle's elfin bowling team.

Cluster About Peak With a Faith That Saves Mountains

As head of the committee to save High Tor, Mr. Anderson is engaged in an effort to prove himself a poor prophet. In his play, he prophesied that the man who owned it ultimately would sell it to the quarry company, to be hacked down. Old Elmer Orden, the owner, died last April and High Tor was thrown on the market. Mr. Anderson's neighboring poets, artists and playwrights are swarming out of their remote hideouts to save the mountain.

Among them are Amy Murray, much beloved poet, who two years ago published a book of verse, poignantly beautiful, much of it about the mountain, and worthy of more attention than it received, and Henry Poor, the artist. Mr. Poor's painting of the mountain hangs in the Metropolitan museum. He and Miss Murray head the fund-raising subcommittee to buy the mountain and turn it over to the Palisades Interstate Park commission as a permanent bird and game sanctuary and a high hurdle for hikers—for Pegasus, too, it would seem as many a chaplet of verse has been hung on the mountain.

Somewhat farther downtoward sea level, Mr. Anderson is promoting a prizefight for the Fighting French Relief committee. He seems always to be asking himself "What price glory?" Just now he is gathering in slathers of money from his hit play, "Eve of St. Mark," ringing up $300,000 for the movie rights alone, and such glory always drives him to unforeseen endeavors. When he hits a jackpot he is apt to summon relatives and friends and say: "Have a farm or an education on me."

Mr. Anderson and his fellow craftsmen of the arts have led the old-timers up our way to conclude that poets and artists are all right if they behave themselves. The latter meet them halfway. There has been a new community solidarity in Rockland county, New York, which has stirred it to more than its population share of war-winning activities. Mr. Anderson has made High Tor a symbol of a common endeavor.

Shakespeare's 7 Ages Fall Into a New Sequence

WITH college boys being pulled out of school, business men are sent back in. It is Dean Donald K. David of the Harvard university business school who opens Harvard to 150 business executives, between the ages of 35 and 40, for a tuition-free course to retrain business executives for war work. He says the aim is to aid in the "production of goods necessary to win the war."

In 1922, Harvard university set up a consulting staff in Europe, which included Sir William Beveridge of London, for guidance of business in the reconstruction years. Sir William has been working in this field ever since, and is just now out with a ten-pound report and recommendation which is mainly a conclusion that there won't be any business after this war—all will be socialized.

Nothing like that for Harvard university this time. Dean David, who was named head of the business school last May, has staked out his curriculum on the old ground rules and the tradition that the pursuit of an honest dollar still will be a stimulus to enterprise.

From Moscow, Idaho, where Mr. David was born in 1896, he went to the University of Idaho and was graduated from the Harvard business school in 1919. He was on the school faculty, in various posts until 1927, when he stepped into business, chiefly in large-scale food merchandising, and made a brilliant success of it. His new pupils will soon get to know that he is no mere academician.

His main prospectus of management, salesmanship and administration carries over into the post-war world.

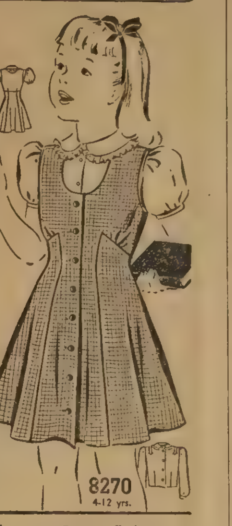
Pattern No. 8254 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 2⅛ yards 35-inch material, 7 yards braid trim.



Jumper Costume.

YOU'RE reminded of little Lord Fauntleroy by this picturesque jumper outfit . . . especially if you will make the slim fitting jumper of velveteen or light wool crepe and the blouse with its ruffled collar of sheer white cotton. It is easy to hop into this outfit, too. Both blouse and jumper button down the front.

* * *

Pattern No. 8270 is in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 6 years jumper requires 2⅛ yards 39-inch material, blouse 1½ yards.

Perhaps Dud Should Have Impersonated Himself!

The dud actor walked proudly to the center of the stage, beaming.

"Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen," he said. "I sincerely trust that you will all enjoy my performance. For my opening number I'd like to do an impersonation of that famous chap, Rudy Vallee."

The orchestra swung into an introduction and the dud began to croon. The audience soon grew restless. And by the time the song was over, boos were heard from all parts of the theater.

The performer looked around in bewilderment.

"Gee," he mumbled. "That Vallee must be terrible!"

AMERICAN RED CROSS

THE Junior Red Cross is the American Red Cross in the schools of the nation. It is also the world's largest youth organization, with more than 14,000,000 members in the United States.

The principal duty of the Junior Red Cross in war time is the making of comfort and recreational articles for our service men everywhere. During the past year, Junior Red Cross members made more than 3,000,000 such articles, such as games, recreation room furniture and writing kits.

The Junior Red Cross has also taken a very active part in the making of many essential articles for Civilian Defense organizations throughout the nation. These items included splints, stretchers, and first aid cabinets.

"Earn, buy, make, give." are the four steps all Junior Red Cross members take in raising and using the money they get in their national enrollment drive. They must earn the money to buy the materials to make the articles to give to the hospital, army camp or Civilian Defense organization.

Junior Red Cross members have also been very active in salvage campaigns of all kinds throughout the nation, contributing more than half of the salvage gathered by children of school age throughout the country.

In addition to furnishing opportunity to learn by making these articles for service men and others, the Junior Red Cross affords children of school age basic training in civilian preparedness so that they may take their places later on in the volunteer activities of the Red Cross or the Office of Civilian Defense.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Fruit and berry pies with lattice-style tops require less baking time than two-crust pies.

Vaseline will prevent patent leather from cracking. Rub a little on your shoes before venturing out in the cold.

* * *

Fish and seafood should be used as soon after purchasing as possible. To store fish, wrap it in wax paper and place just under the frozen food compartment.

* * *

When washed woolen sweaters should be put in a pillowcase, and the case hung up, open, on the line. This allows the wind to blow through and avoids any chance of the garment shrinking or stretching.

* * *

Lipstick stained napkins and towels should be cleaned before laundering with a spot remover.

* * *

When cream will not whip, add the white of an egg and stand the bowl for one hour in a vessel of cold salt water. It will then whip easily, and the white of egg will add considerably to the bulk of the cream without affecting the flavor.

Equip the guest room closet with plenty of hooks and clothes hangers. Add a shopping bag to hold soiled clothing. If a private bath is not connected with the guest room, towel racks on the back of the closet door will prove convenient. A waste basket, clock, ash trays and good lighting equipment for reading and dressing should be included.

If a tablecloth is badly tea-stained, rub the stains with ordinary washing blue some time before the cloth is to be washed. Then boil as usual and both blue and stains will disappear.

When painting a room the following hints may be found useful: Don't be in a hurry to finish; put down old newspapers, before work and remove all curtains and hangings; keep handy a rag soaked in turps to wipe off "mistakes"; start painting in the darkest corner of the room and work towards the light; don't drown your brush—immerse it about half an inch; use a piece of stout cardboard with a straight edge to protect woodwork or wall that it is not desired to splash.

An oven meal is often a fuel saver if foods are selected which require the same temperature in cooking. Although such a meal necessitates a longer cooking period, not only may the whole meal be cooked at the same time but a number of foods may also be prepared for meals to follow. It is a good idea to list such menus in a notebook and refer to it from time to time.

THIS good looking davenport gives no hint that its early life was spent as an iron cot with a thin cotton pad. The sketch shows how the frame is made. It is covered with rather heavy green cotton material. The pad of the cot is also covered with this goods and the ruffle across the front is attached to it.

The separate cushions are covered with rose and green chintz and all seams are finished with deep rose cord welting. For the covering 12¼ yards of 36-inch wide plain material and six yards of flowered were used and 52 yards of welting at a few cents a yard.

Golf vs. Bowling

The odds against making a hole-in-one in golf are about 30,000 to one, while the odds against making a perfect score of 300 in bowling on new alleys with new pins is about 290,000 to one. In other words, it is far easier to shoot a hole-in-one than it is to make 12 consecutive strikes.

Fit Description

A teacher was explaining to her class the meaning of the word "collision."

"A collision," she said, "occurs when two bodies come together unexpectedly." She pointed at one child. "Now, then, give me an example of a 'collision.'"

"Please, miss—twins."

Time Out

An aspiring politician had a speech written for him by a friend, who included instructions in the manuscript for the speaker.

The would-be politician duly delivered himself of the oration and, when loud applause was accorded a statement he read out, he turned over a page and immediately convulsed the audience by adding: "Here blow your nose and take a drink of water."

Proof

"They say that paper can be used to keep a person warm."

"Yes, I had a mortgage that kept me sweating for 20 years."

Untouchable

"What kind of a fellow is Smythe?"

"Well, if you ever see a man trying to borrow money from another, the fellow shaking his head is Smythe."

"Vision and sight ain't the same thing," explained young Bjones to his pal. "Take last Saturday night. The girl I was with was a vision. The girl with you was a sight."

Or Manned

"So you were at Louise and the Lieutenant's wedding? How did the bride look?"

"Remarkably well groomed."

Earned It

Last night I met a chap with a black eye, so I said: "That's a beauty! Who gave it to you?"

"Nobody gave it to me," he said. "I had to fight for it."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A single bicycle tire and tube gives rubber enough for the insulation of six Army radio sets.

Just because the synthetic rubber program has been upped to 1,100,000 tons production capacity by the end of 1943, the chances of car owners getting synthetic tires before 1944 have not been increased. War needs will take the bulk of the synthetic.

In normal times, say 1940, the average car owner expended only $15 a year for tire and tube replacements. He spent $117 for gasoline and $10 for oil out of his annual $159 expenditure for car maintenance, exclusive of heavy repairs.

Picture 16,000 automobile tires and you have an idea of the amount of rubber used in the construction of a battleship—75 tons.

Sunday we preach at Shady Grove at 11 a.m.— Rev. Reese Farnell.

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA

The Alpha Beta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. Curry Thomas for the initiation of two new members, Mrs. Miriam Gerald, and Miss Evelyn Cooper, after the initiation services, Mrs. Thomas served Coca Cola to the entire chapter.

The Chapter reconvened at the Exchange Hotel, after the meeting at Mrs. Thomas, adjourned, for the annual luncheon of the chapter. Several visitors attended the luncheon, among those were Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Culp, Mr. R. Ekblad, Mrs. Louise Obienchain, Dean of Women and teachers of Sociology of Howard College, were the luncheon speaker.

The meeting was closed by the group singing the National Delta Kappa Gamma song.

KIWANIS CLUB INDUCTS NEW OFFICERS

On Thursday night December 17, at the Thomason Hotel, the Clanton Kiwanis club installed the new state and local officers for the coming year. Key Foster, the outgoing governor, conducted the installation program The new state officers are: Alabama District Governor—Fletcher Farrington from Dadeville; Lieutenant Governor of third division—Luther Little; District Secretary-Treasurer—Clyde Pruett. The new district governor—Fletcher Farrington, then proceeded to install the local officers. They were: Hollis Jackson, president; R W. Williams, vice-president; Dan Waite, secretary-treasurer.

As it was ladies night, when the wives of the local members and guests were invited, the attendance was sixty-three. There were attendance prizes donated by the local merchants for the ladies. Out-of-town guests were: Colonel Dick Stockeman and Key Foster from Birmingham; Roy Oliver, Oram Willis, Fletcher Farrington from Dadeville; L. C. Henley, and Frank Boyd from Montgomery.

The Kiwanis club holds its meetings every Thursday night at 7:30 at the Thomason Hotel.

THUMBNAIL OUTLOOK FOR 1943

1. TOTAL BUSINESS: Defense production will be up sharply (plus 50%); non-defense down sharply (minus 33%), accompanied by a drastic standardization of products.
2. EMPLOYMENT: The above also applies to employment, if we do not include the armed forces.
3. FARM INCOME: Will be up 5% in 1943 over 1942.
4. DIVIDENDS & BUSINESS EARNINGS: Have passed their peaks and will be lower in 1943 than in 1942.
5. LABOR: There will be practically no strikes until the end of the war and wages will gradually become stabilized.
6. COMMODITY PRICES: Will strengthen somewhat, especiolly the prices of manufactured goods. Commodity prices indexes will indicate far less than the actual advance.
7. TAXES: Will be felt severely, especially by the white collar group who can expect no pay increoses.
8. RETAIL TRADE: Will be 12% off in physical volume in 1943 compared with 1942.
9. HIGH GRADE BONDS: Should decline, but good Stocks should sell higher.
10. CREEPING INFLATION: Will continue throughout 1943.

MORE FOOD TO BE RATIONED IN FEBRUARY

Government officials, having announced that all canned, dried and frozen fruits and vegetables will be rationed in February, began a concerted drive to prevent run on available supplies of foodstuffs.

They appealed to the patriotism of all Americans warning that hoarding would jeopardize the war effort and aid the Axis. They said there would be one-third less of the foods to be rationed next year, but enough for a healthful diet.

The policy of announcing rationing programs in in advance of their effective date has been widely criticized. But three high officials answered that only confusion would result if the new program under the "points" system were started without time for explanation.

CHILTON COUNTY 4-H CLUB MEMBERS RECEIVE TEN REGISTERED DUROC PIGS THROUGH SEARS' COW - HOG HEN PROGRAM

By: M. R. Glasscock, Asst. Co. Agent.

Ten fortunate Chilton County 4-H Club members will start the New Year off right by beginning additional swine breeding projects on their farms. These projects will not only increase Chilton County's contribution to the nations food supply, but will also help to raise the quantity of the "pokers" that will be produced in the County in future years: for these industrious farm boys are all starting off with high quality registered breeding stock.

These new swine breeding projects are being made possible through the courtesy of Sears Roebuck and Company's Montgomery store. Chilton County 4-H Club members are being included in Sears' National Cow-Hog-Hen Program. This program is sponsored as part of their effort to help farmers produce food for Victory and for the creation and promotion of a more diversified system of farming on every farm that their projects reach. By donating these registered gilt pigs to the ten Chilton County 4-H Club members, that were selected as winners of an Essay Contest, and encouraging them to do an efficient job of feeding, breeding, and handling them by sponsoring a show for which they are offering additional high quality livestock and poultry—registered Jersey heifers and high quality baby chickens—they are effectively encouraging our farm boys to become more efficient farmers. This project will not stop this year, for each boy is required to breed his gilt to a registered sire and to give inreturn another registered gilt for a new 4-H Club member. In this manner a chain is formed and Chilton County's dairy, hog and poultry blood lines will be greatly improved.

The fortunate 4-H Club members that are to receive pigs through this project this year are:

Jessie A. Culp, Mt. Nebo, Club; Bobby Marcus, Baker Club; Samuel Hudson, Verbena Club; Watson Hall, Verbena Club; Miles Aldridge, Chilton County High School Club; Hoyt Thrash, Union Grove Club; Harold Morris, Enterprise Club; Clyde Henderson, Enterprise Club; B. F. Klinner, Baker Club; and Cecil Smitherman, Concord Club.

The Chilton County 4-H Club Council wishes them lots of luck and a good price for those high quality animals that they will produce.

MISS PEGGY RAMSEY NAMED LION QUEEN

Miss Peggy Ramsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ramsey, was named Queen of the Clanton Lions Club at their Annual Raffle last Tuesday night at the New Wadesonian Theatre.

Several hundreds of dollars was realized in the raffle this year and the Club Officials want to thank the many who helped make it a big success.

The money raised each year in this manner is usel by the Club throughout the year to purchase glasses for the children in Chilton County who are underprivileged and need glasses so as to attend school. Miss Lillian McKee aids the Club in their selection as those worthy of help by the Club.

The 1943 Queen selected as her prize a leather jacket from a number of gifts offered each year by the Club to the young lady selling the most tickets. Miss Ramsey sold seven hundred and seventy-six. The first prize in the drawing went to Joe Smith and was a $25 War Bond.

COTTON GINNING REPORT

Census report shows that 8,366 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1942 prior to Dec. 13 compared with 4,877 bales for the crop of 1941.

P. H. RAYBON PROMOTED TO 2ND LIEUTENANT

Phares Henderson Raybon, of Thorsby, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army of the United States recently upon completion of the Officer Candidate Course at the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., Lt. Raybon is the son of Mr. and Mrs W. H. Raybon, of Thorsby.

Hale County has purchased $25,000 worth of War Bonds, to be kept in a sinking fund for road work, following the war.

War Bond News

During the past few months we have had much experience in the development of the War Savings Program in the three thousand and seventy counties through-out the United States. We have learned that many of our ideas of promoting the program have failed and many have succeeded. However, the prominent and outstanding point that has been established is the marked difference in the success of the program in those counties where they have an established headquarters with a paid executive secretary, as compared with the counties that have not had the program nearly so well developed.

Our experience in this respect has been so conclusive that we are compelled to adopt the definite policy of making it mandatory for every county to determine a budget for the coming year and to raise the funds to finance the budget during the first part of the month of January. It matters not what plan you use to raise the funds, but we cannot concede to a single exception. This policy must apply to every county in the state.

Your District Administrator will be prepared to come to your county and assist you in any way you desire in the organization of a campaign to raise these funds. You may decide to develop the same type of campaign used to raise funds for the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Red Cross, etc. You may decide to call upon your city or county, or both, and request that they provide the funds for your operation. You may decide to raise the funds through a Victory Club by charging a membership fee. Most of the counties have used this plan during the past year. However, in the event you continue your Victory Club or decide to raise the funds through a Victory Club by charging its members an annual membership fee, it will be necessary that you collect these funds available before February 1, and we must know that you are going to have a capable and efficient paid secretary with headquarters, telephone and the necessary [illegible] equipment and [illegible] to run this program as [illegible] business.

We cannot lose sight of the fact that there are three things which we must do and do successfully if we are to win this war. These three things are fight, produce and finance. If we fail in either of these endeavors, we lose the war. Unless the war is properly financed, we shall have inflation. This brings about a demoralization of our people and a breakdown from within. Most wars have been lost by a breakdown from within and have not been lost on the battlefronts. We did not whip Germany's army in the last war. Our victory over Germany came as a result of a breakdown on the home front and not on the battle front. History proves that statement.

It is our responsibility to sell War Bonds to the masses. I am confident that you will agree with me that you are far from the point of reaching the majority of the people in your county. Just remember that we must get down to business. We must develop systematic plans. To do this will require an untold amount of detailed work. We must have an executive secretary to do the detailed work, arrange meetings, see that all materials are properly distributed, and to do a number of

COULD BE

Into the cozy cottage of the dear old lady came two billeted soldiers. She greeted them with a friendly smile, showed them to their room, watched them dump their belongings—tin helmets, gas respirators, packs, kitbags, and so on.

Then a worried look came into her faded eyes as she asked:

"Young men, are you sure you came by all those things honestly?"

Reason Enough

"What I like about Frank's articles is his wonderful power of condensation."

"He can't help it. All of his work is done in an uptown flat, where there isn't room to spread out."

Difficult Situation

Neighbor—Why don't the children make up?

Mother—Oh, they'd like to, but unfortunately they can't remember what they quarreled about!

COLLECTOR'S ITEM

"Riggs is the slowest pay in town."

"Is he?"

"Yep. If he owed a man an apology he'd pay it by installments."

Scene Change

Hubby—Sometimes I feel that I once sat on a throne and waved a scepter.

Wifey—And now, you are going to stand on the back porch and wave a rug beater.

Confoosing

"Why did Gills give his wife a clock that strikes the quarter?"

"It keeps her so confused she doesn't know what time he comes home."

CO-OPERATIVE

Who says husbands and wives can't agree—to disagree?

Wifey—I dreamed last night that you were the most generous man in the world and had given me a $100 bill to buy some new dresses. Surely, you wouldn't do anything to alter that opinion?

Hubby—Certainly not; just to show you I am as generous as you dreamed I'm going to let you keep that hundred.

Where's the Hook?

Smart—People are carried away with the things I make.

Smarty—You must turn out some artistic stuff.

Smart—No, I just make stretchers.

Maybe Right

Dad—Do you know, Tom, you'll never be President if you're naughty.

Son—That's all right. We're Republicans anyway

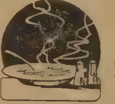
Savory Soups



Soup makes the meal! It used to mean that soup set tone to what was to come during the meal, but I'm willing to wager that soup will be the meal on many of these wintry days. It can be quick and easy to fix, yet nourishing and full-bodied in flavor.

Serve substantial soup as a main course for a luncheon or dinner with a salad crammed with vitamins and minerals, and a dessert.

Green split peas have long been a favorite ingredient of soup. Here they are combined with salami. Other kinds of substitutes of meats or left-over ham may be effectively substituted if you so desire.

Split Pea and Salami Soup.
(Serves 6)

- 1½ cups green split peas
- 4½ cups cold water
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ pound salami
- 3 cups milk
- Salt to suit taste
- Dash black pepper

Soak peas in cold water for 2 hours, in large kettle; add onions, celery, and 1½ teaspoons of salt. Bring to boiling point, cover, and simmer 2½ hours, stirring occasionally. Remove outer covering from salami and cut in small cubes or strips; add to soup (saving a few pieces for garnish). Simmer 30 minutes longer. Add milk and pepper and additional salt to suit taste. Bring to boiling point. Serve with melba toast or crisp crackers.

It's a nice custom to serve just an old-fashioned Brown Onion Soup with its garnish of toasted rye bread and cheese.

Onion Soup.
(Serves 8)

- 6 (1 pound) onions
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 quart soup stock
- 6 slices bread
- 3 tablespoons grated cheese

Cut onions into ⅛-inch slices. Cook slowly in butter until tender and slightly browned, stirring constantly. Add soup stock, heat to boiling point, boil 2 or 3 minutes. Toast bread, put toasted cubes in each soup plate, cover with 2 tablespoons cheese. Pour the hot soup over all and serve with additional cheese if desired.

Another soup that can take the place of a main dish is a real Fish Chowder. This Chowder makes use of haddock or cod and salt pork.

Fish Chowder.
(Serves 6)

- 3 pounds haddock or cod cut in a solid piece
- 4 cups boiling water
- 2 ounces fat salt pork
- 3 medium-sized onions, peeled and sliced
- 4 medium-sized potatoes, peeled and sliced
- 1 quart milk, scalded
- 1 tablespoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Simmer fish in 2 cups water until tender; strain, reserving liquid. Discard bones, skin, etc., cut pork fine and brown slightly. Add onions, potatoes and remaining water and cook until potatoes are tender. Combine with fish mixture. Add scalded milk, salt and pepper.

Beans are a good source of protein and can therefore be used as a meat substitute. Here is a nutritious soup with an attractive garnish of hard-cooked egg and lemon.

Black Bean Soup.
(Serves 8)

- 1 pint black beans
- 2 quarts cold water
- 1 small onion, sliced
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 stalks celery, broken in pieces
- ½ tablespoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon mustard
- Few grains cayenne
- 1½ tablespoons flour
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- Juice 2 lemons
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced

Soak beans overnight. Drain and add cold water. Cook onion 5 minutes with half the butter and add to beans. Add celery, simmer 3 or 4 hours or until beans are soft, adding more water as water boils away. Rub through sieve. Reheat to boiling point. Add lemon juice and well-mixed seasonings. Bind with remaining butter and flour mixed together. Garnish with lemon and eggs.

A piquant and colorful salad to serve with a soup combines winter vegetables with a sharp french dressing and goes well with soup.

Celery Slaw.
(Serves 4)

- 1 cup celery, diced
- 1 cup cooked beets, diced
- 1½ cups cabbage, shredded
- 2 tablespoons onion, minced
- ¼ cup french dressing
- Salt and pepper to taste

Combine celery, beets, cabbage, onion, french dressing, salt and pepper. Chill. Serve in lettuce cups. Garnish with hard-cooked egg.

If you're too busy to make meat stock out of a meat bone and vegetables, called for in some of the soups, make a bouillon, by dissolving one of the concentrated cubes in boiling water.

For quicky soups combine some of your favorite canned soups like tomato and green pea, mushroom and chicken, bean and tomato, mushroom and celery, etc.

Try topping soups with a dash of paprika, chopped parsley, popcorn, grated cheese, toasted bread cubes, and swirls of whipped cream.

Lynn Says:

Spots and Stains: Holidays bring with them the inevitable stains on your linens. Since you can't avoid stains, be prepared to know what to do about them.

The American Institute of Laundering releases the information that the best way to take care of cranberry stains is to spread the cloth over a bowl and pour hot water on the stain from a height sufficient to allow the water to strike the cloth forcefully. It may interest you to know that raw cranberries weaken the strength of the cloth 25 per cent, whereas cooked cranberries only weaken it 21.1 per cent to 22.4 per cent.

Coffee stains, cocoa, and fruit juice stains wash out if the cloth is allowed to stand in a solution of cold dilute potassium permanganate for a minute or two. If the stain remains, reduce it further with an application of warm solution of sodium hydrosulfite.

Milk, cream and ice cream stains are best treated by being soaked in cool suds before washing in hot water. For candle grease stains, use a solvent such as carbon tetrachloride, sponging it on with a small pad of cotton on the cloth under which a blotter has been placed. Pat lightly but do not rub solvent.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Why wheel alignment is a [illegible] in rubber conservation. When a wheel is only ½-inch out of alignment the car is being dragged sideways 87 feet in every mile. That's tire scuffing at its worst.

Transportation in private automobiles in 1941 totaled 501 billion passenger miles, compared with about 29½ billion in railroads, about 27½ billion in electric railways, 25½ billion in buses and 1,370,000 passenger miles on domestic airlines. Big numbers, all, but they show motor transportation to be six times greater than all other forms combined.

It has been estimated that the United States military service will require 325,000 long tons of crude rubber in 1943.

Overloading a truck tire 10 per cent will cause a decrease of 18 per cent in the mileage; 50 per cent overload cuts mileage 60 per cent.

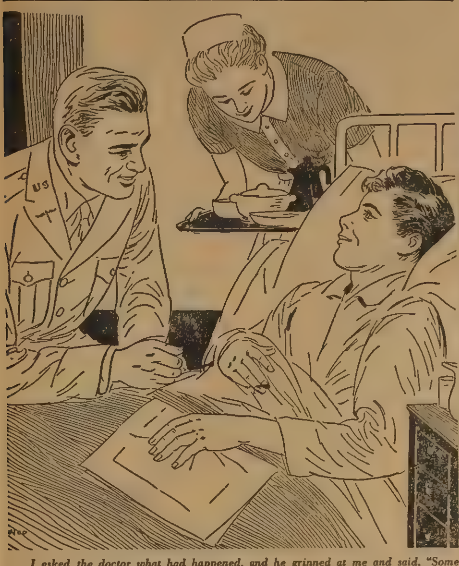
YOUR GOOD WILL

The manufacturer or merchant who advertises, makes public the fact that he wants your good will. And he realizes that the only way that he can keep it is by giving good values and services.

Kathleen Norris Says:

You Can Win a Decoration, Too

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.



I asked the doctor what had happened, and he grinned at me and said, "Some of your friends at home, Bud, stopped talking about what they'd LIKE to do, and gave you back your life."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

DID you know that thousands of our fighting men are being saved by transfusions of the blood sent out to the battle fronts by their friends at home?

In the horror of this war could there be a more wonderful note of sympathy and comradeship than this, that the life that runs so secure and safe and warm in your veins should be shared with some great fallen giant of a boy, who lies white and unconscious in a faraway hospital, breathing quietly lower and lower toward death, until the help that YOU send him, from your quiet home town, begins to flow in his veins again?

Surely all modern science has given us no greater miracle; that those of us who cannot wear uniforms and sail away on the great ships can have our actual living part in the great struggle, through the plasma—the technical name of the fluid part of the blood—which is dried and sent to our sons.

But you haven't contributed yet? Why, what do you mean? You have been hearing about it and reading about it, but somehow you didn't ever clearly get it into your head what it was all about, you didn't get 'round to it?

Well, then, put this paper down and go telephone Mary Brown, who is one of the higher-ups in the Red Cross. Ask her where the Blood Bank is. And go there tomorrow.

Go there, by appointment, of course, four hours after you've eaten a hearty, normal meal. Drink all you want of water and fruit juice in between the meal and going to the Blood Bank, no rich drinks or milk.

A Pint of Blood.

They prick your arm, at the Blood Bank, and draw off a pint of the blood that means life for some mother's son. Perhaps yours. And that initial prick is all you pay in pain for this experience, and that hour of going and coming is all you pay in time. After the blood is taken they give you a hot drink and a sandwich, and that's all you do for two or three months, when you do it all over again.

The blood is evaporated, packed off to the far-flung hospitals of the war fronts, and—as a surgeon-doctor told me, when he came back from Australia a few weeks ago, "just the knowledge that it is there, plenty of it, means the difference between life and death to the doctors." They mix this plasma with water, and pour it into the draining veins of the heroes who are brought in white and unconscious; and the color comes back to those ashen cheeks, and the boy opens his eyes and perhaps mutters a surprised "what's cooking?"

Yet I know one eastern city in which three hundred thousand perfectly strong and healthy men and women between the ages of 18 and 60 are going about, placidly unconscious that there are such things as Blood Banks. Many of these good folk are the ones who continually say "My dear, I'd be delighted to do something for our men, God knows, but with two boys in school and Harry working so hard, there doesn't seem to be one thing I can do!"

So They Need Not Die.

Recently a cargo ship sailed with medical supplies from this same city, the invoice of what was required being fully checked except in one particular. Where the item, "so many pounds of plasma" was listed, the check against it said: "short. Sixty-one per cent."

That meant that if that life-giving fluid was destined for the veins of one thousand magnificent boys, lying wounded and faint and bleeding in naval, marine and army hospitals, six hundred and ten would die. Would be condemned to death by you, and your neighbors, and the kids in the nearest college, and the healthy, joyous young things who are flocking to the movies tonight.

Now, if you have any influence with women at all, if you belong to a club or teach in a school or if your daughter goes off every day to work in a factory or office with scores of men and women associates, appoint yourself a committee of one to get this message over to them. For this is the great modern miracle, that thousands of the men who die in base hospitals, NEED NOT DIE, and we can save them.

When you have contributed your pint of blood to the cause, you get a little pin. When you have visited the Blood Bank three times you have a special decoration. And it seems to me that there is no young person in our great country who ought not be ashamed to express ignorance of and indifference to the Blood Bank, and none who will not be proud to wear that decoration.

If I were within those stipulated years I would want to be the first of my group to wear it, and if I were a soldier's wife or a young girl I would want to have that third-time decoration to show to my husband or my sweetheart when he came home from the war.

One quiet, big, heavy man in our little town, a man burdened with the support of a beloved wife, an invalided child, an old mother and a baby son—an unassuming man who goes to an office every day, faces changing times and war taxes and restrictions with a good deal of humor, never complains—has seven times given his blood to men he will never see or know, men from whom he can never receive any thanks.

Back to Life.

This is a real quotation from a real letter by a boy of 22, sent after the Wake Island fight to a mother in our town.

"When they threw me a rope I'd only been in the water about 15 minutes, but I was all mucked-up with heavy black oil and through the oil I could see the blood from my shoulder pulsing out the way a wave would, coming up through a hole in a rock and brimming over, and then sinking back again. It was the darndest thing you ever saw!

"A few days later, when I was sitting up, I asked the doctor what had happened, and he grinned at me and said: 'Some of your friends at home, Bud, stopped talking about what they'd LIKE to do, and gave you back your life.' "

PAST MASTER

You know her. She is a past master at the art of evasion. No one is more eager to do her part—sometime. If nothing interferes, she will even let you pin her down to a definite promise—to help out the next time you need her. And no one is more contrite when she fails to appear. She languishes in appealing weakness when there is blood to be given, then wastes precious energy on alibis when there is work to be done. She smiles, evades the issue, and smiles again. How lucky we are that there are so few women like her!

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCES

A man of 50 consulted his physician for indigestion. He had no appetite, had pain regularly after eating, slept poorly, and had no energy. As one of the symptoms pointed to ulcer (regularity of the pain) and another pointed to cancer (lack of appetite) and the patient was at cancer age, an X-ray examination was made.

Dr. Barton

The X-rays showed that neither ulcer nor cancer was present but the pain was due to rapid and irregular movements of the stomach. This is called nervous or emotional stomach and the patient admitted that he had a serious problem worrying him. As there was no organic trouble and the problem was solved shortly afterwards, the digestive symptoms disappeared and the patient returned to normal weight. This is called functional disease or disturbance of the stomach.

About 20 years ago, some physicians believed that just as emotional disturbances caused these functional symptoms in the stomach, so also could they cause functional symptoms in the liver and gall bladder by interfering with the manufacture of bile in the liver and the outflow of bile from the gall bladder.

More recently, however, interference with the flow of bile from gall bladder was thought to be due to "stones, kinks and bands" which "slowed up" the natural flow of bile from gall bladder. However, when the surgeon operated for removal of these obstructions, none of these conditions were found to be causing the slowness or stoppage of the bile flow. What was found was evidence that the gall bladder had great difficulty in emptying itself because emotional disturbances were closing or tightening the ring or opening through which the bile passed out of the gall bladder.

Just as emotional disturbances cause spasm of the ring of muscle surrounding opening from stomach to small intestine, so can emotional disturbances cause a spasm or partial closure of the ring of muscle in opening carrying bile to the tube which, in turn, carries bile to small intestine.

Stammering And Allergy

While there was no such word as allergy known to us until a few years ago, we all remember foods or surroundings that upset the stomach, caused head colds and brought out hives on the skin. By recognizing this fact and gradually losing some of this allergic tendency by use of vaccines or taking small amounts of the substances, many are kept free or nearly free of the symptoms.

Physicians now believe that many cases of asthma and some cases of migraine—one-sided headache—are due to allergy or are at least associated with allergy in some way.

A more recent and most interesting finding is that many cases of enuresis (bed-wetting) and stammering are due to allergy or are a part of the makeup of the allergic individual.

In the British Medical Journal, Dr. O. Gordon reports a history of allergy in the child or his family in 85 (65 per cent) out of 128 bed-wetters as compared to 28 in 200 children without a personal or family history of allergy. There were 70 children who stammered and of these 46 (66 per cent) had a personal or family history of allergy and of the 200 children who had no personal or family history of allergy, only 28 per cent were stammerers.

As migraine is often present in bed-wetters and stammerers, it is suggested that migraine and other forms of headache may be a factor in causing bed-wetting and stammering. In other words, it is not allergy that causes the bed-wetting and stammering, but there is something in the makeup of certain individuals that causes allergic symptoms and this same something causes the bed-wetting and the stammering. Dr. Gordon puts it thus: "Bed-wetting and stammering are not themselves direct symptoms of allergy but result from the abnormal psychological traits (characteristics) commonly found in allergic persons. The outstanding trait or characteristic may be called self-consciousness, looking inward too much."

THE GLORY OF THE SON OF GOD

LESSON TEXT—John 1:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth. John 1:14.

A New Year! It brings a thrill to our hearts, for even in this year of our Lord 1943 we may look forward with expectancy to God's blessing upon us and be hopeful that better things are ahead. Yet we do so with a sense of sadness as we realize that our world is so far from God, and with a deep feeling of responsibility for our life and testimony in the coming months.

There could be no better way to begin any year—and certainly not this year—than by the study of God's Word. This should be done in the home and in the church, but may we suggest that this is an especially good time to enter into the fellowship of your local Sunday school.

Were we to select a Scripture portion with which to start the year we could not find a finer one than the Gospel according to John.

The purpose of the Gospel is stated in 20:31 as being "that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through His name." This first lesson of the series reveals the glory of Christ.

I. In the Beginning—the Living Word (vv. 1-3).

God reveals Himself to man. As the word is the express image of the thought, so in an infinitely greater sense Christ, the Living Word, is the express image of God (see Heb. 1:1-3).

In "the beginning," spoken of in Genesis 1:1, Jesus Christ already "was" (v. 1); and He not only "was with God," but He Himself "was God." He, the Living Word, the complete and final revelation of God as both Creator and Redeemer, was the infinite and eternal God. He came to bring to man the reassuring message of God's redeeming love.

The profound depth of these verses is beyond the deepest thinker, but their glorious message of redemption is simple enough for the understanding of the youngest child. We may receive truth which we cannot fully understand and be blessed by it.

II. In the World—the True Light (vv. 4-11).

He is both the life and the light of men. In fact, His life was the light that shined (yes, and still shines) in the darkness of this world, revealing God's love.

But the world did not receive the light. His own world knew Him not (v. 10). How tragic! Yet even deeper is the hurt of verse 11—His own people received Him not.

And it is so today. Nations refuse His light upon world problems and try to fight them out. Class hatred; capital against labor; the "have" against the "have not"; yes, even the bitter fightings between professed Christians, all bespeak the fact that the shining of the "true light which lighteth every man" has not been permitted to penetrate very far into this dark world.

However, it has reached, by God's grace, into the hearts of believers, and there it has brought forth glorious results.

III. In the Believer—Power and Glory (vv. 12-14).

Those who receive Christ are born again. It is not a matter of "blood," that is, of family or heredity. Nor is it "by the will of the flesh," that is, by natural instinct or development of an inherent divine spark. And it is not by "the will of man," for it does not come by human will power.

It is "of God," a divine rebirth which gives power in the life, and authority to declare one's self to be the child of God (v. 12). This is all so clear and so altogether desirable for both time and eternity that one wonders why all do not at once turn to Christ as Saviour. Have you?

The believer also sees in the Word which "was made flesh and dwelt among us," the glory of "the only begotten of the Father." All that such an expression means we shall not know until we reach eternity, but that does not prevent the believer from beholding, by the eye of faith, his glorious Saviour, the One who is "full of grace and truth."

John, the "man sent from God" (v. 6), was a witness to the Light to the intent that men "might believe." We, too, are to be witnesses, and that includes every one of us who knows Jesus Christ as Redeemer and Lord.

If we will all thus fulfill the responsibility and privilege which is ours, we may see in 1943 a real revival of spiritual life and power. No need is greater than that, and we could render God and our fellow men no greater service. This New Year's Sunday is the right time to make a start. Shall we do it?

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

By BEN

RESOLVED: That during 1943 I will think more of the Boys at the Front—and less of putting up a big front, here. That is a Resolution that a lot of us could make upon entering the New Year.

Fewer people were killed this Christmas than on other years. Looks like if there were no War, tire rationing and gasoline rationing would still be justified.

One of the quietest, if not the quietest Christmas in many a year was enjoyed here this year. Due to tire, gasoline and other rationing traffic was light and many of the residents spent their Christmas at home.

Hundreds of the homes over the county just couldn't get the Christmas [illegible] due to the empty chair at the table, representing the one at the front or at some army camp. We believe that the majority of the grown-ups were glad when it was over and we could get the winning of the war back [illegible] first in our minds. Of course not forgetting what the day commemorates but it has been so commercialized that many have forgotten, that it was the birthdate of Christ.

We hope the Lions learned this year that it isn't best for the members of the club or their wives to buy the Raffle tickets. Heretofore the members and wives have been barred from buying tickets and it should have been done this year. The Clanton Lions are doing a worthwhile job. Their Raffle has grown into an annual affair that furnishes hundreds of dollars worth of glasses to children who could not even attend school if it were not for the money raised in this way. Let's not let anything stop the Lions in this wonderful work that they are doing.

And while we are editorializing—Why do not the City Fathers stop the traffic lights except when they are necessary. Many, many gallons of gasoline could be saved each day in Clanton by motorists. Traffic is now very light. Except for Saturday or times like last week when the Christ-crowds were on the highways, the traffic lights are unnecessary. Of course motorists would have to be more careful and drive slower, but think of the gas that would be saved in eliminating that stopping every block for a traffic light. And after all, we believe, what Mr. Motorist and the rest of us are trying to save is gasoline.

And some more of the same—We wish that folks walking along the highway who wish to ride to town would tie a white handkerchief around their right arm. Any number of times we have come to town with no one in the car but us and we would have been glad to pick up pedestrians but we were afraid too. Now so far as gentlemen are concerned we will stop for them when we can, but the ladies are the ones that worry us. Suppose you stop for the lady and she turns up her nose and says no, in amanner that makes you sore for the rest of the day? Well your good intentions have been misunderstood and your whole day ruined. While if they would just tie the handkerchief around their arm, saying I am going to town and would appreciate a lift, it would make things so easy and cause no one any embarrasment.

So many folks in town for the holidays that you hadn't seen in along time. . . Received a most interesting and welcome letter this week from Pvt. Douglas C. Smith, (Billy to you), he is stationed at Keesler Field in Mississippi and says liking it fine. He says he hasn't been away from camp for three weeks. Billy expects to be home for a few days during the holidays . . . Jack Fuque was in to see us for a short few minutes last week. Jack is still at Orlando, Fla., and the picture on the Post was his spit-image . . .Flime ties, doesn't it? The last time you read this column it was only two days until Christmas, now it's three-hundred and sixty one.

WHAT'S DOING AT ISABELLA HIGH

By Jesse Culp

Isabella students came back to school Monday, eager to get going again after a weeks vacation. Everybody was all decorated up with new bracelets, watches, and other Christmas gifts.

On Friday before Christmas, a turkey was given away by the athletic association. Mr. C. M. Williams, a member of the faculty was the lucky ticket holder, so we presume that he got the benefits of a very delicious and inexpensive turkey for Christmas dinner.

The Beta Club at its last meeting discussed various ways of raising money for this year's projects. It was decided that the Beta members would put on a play at school sometime soon They also plan to sponsor a "Miss Isabella" contest. Watch for further announcements along this line.

Incidently, the magazine contest wasn't so successful. However, enough money was made by the club to help pay for a subscription to a daily newspaper for the library.

The F. H. A. and the F. F. A. held a joint Christmas party on Wednesday night of last school week. Refreshments were prepared in the home economics department, where the party was held.

Everyone attending brought a gift, which was placed in "the pile." The gifts were then distributed among those present. Everybody seemed to have a good time.

MT. NEBO NEWS

Regular services were not held at the church Sunday night due to unfavorable weather.

This year brought one of the quietest Christmases in many a year for Mt. Nebo community. The fireworks were reserved for the boys who need them.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Culp and Alee were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Henley.

Mrs. J. D. Culp, Mrs. W. L. Henley, and Alee Culp visited Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Henley and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Vance and baby Sunday afternoon.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mr. Mark Hosey Saturday night honoring Mary and James Hosey A large crowd was present, eveyone reporting a swell time.

The Mt. Nebo 4-H Club gave a Christmas party last Tuesday night at the home of Mr. J. E. Williams, Sr. Most of the members were present. A few games were played, along with some music. Gifts were then given to everyone there.

Miss Naomi Culp, a student at Athens College was at home for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Culp and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Parnell Ratliff and family visited Mr. and Mrs. John M. Culp during the holidays.

Four of her grandchildren are the guests of Mrs. John M. Culp this week.

WHEN THE WAR IS OVER

When the war is over and our victories have been won,
Our soldiers will return to us, the fighting will be done,
There'll be happiness and rejoicing by the mothers of the land,
When on that day they see their sons and get to hold his hand.

But amid the cheers and joy there'll be tears of sorrow shed,
By the mothers, wives and sweethearts for their loved ones that are dead,
Long have they waited for the day the war would end,
For they had got no answers from the letters they would send.

When the war is over, which we hope it soon will be,
Hitler will be beaten and our prisoners shall be free.
We are working and we know that America is sure to win,
We are sending guns and bullets and with them we're sending men.

We will praise our greatest heroes like McArthur and the best,
In years they'll be in History, like Washington and the rest,
Long and hard they worked that America might be free,
We are thankful for such heroes that would die for you and me.

Reds' Middle Don Drive Toward Rostov Perils Huge Nazi Armies in Caucasus; French Pace Allied Tunisia Offensive; Wavell's Burma Campaign Aids Chinese

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

A French soldier (center) chats affably with a British Tommy and two helmeted American troops in Algiers. What are they discussing? How long it will take to drive the Axis out of Tunisia into the Mediterranean. Then the offensive against Europe.

SOVIET SURPRISE:

Offensive Perils Nazis

Two other Soviet offensives had been launched earlier—the first at Stalingrad and the second to the northwest near Rzhev. Both had taken their toll of Nazi men and equipment. Neither had threatened disaster to the German winter occupation of Russia.

But now had come the third Red offensive—this time aimed at the Middle Don area. It had started much the same as the other two, with drives through German communications, the capture of air fields and the cutting off of rail lines and roads. This third offensive, however, had a momentum and continuity the other two had lacked. Its apparent objective: To capture strategic Rostov and cut off all the German troops in the Don-Volga-Caucasus area.

How well this roughshod drive had succeeded over German resistance was indicated by a Red high command communique announcing the capture of Kamensk, rail and communications center only 85 miles from Rostov. The fall of Morozovskaya on the Moscow-Rostov railroad was also reported. In a single week's operations 60,000 Nazis were killed or captured, the Reds announced. So rapid and furious had been the assault that 1,000,000 Axis troops in the Caucasus and Don-Volga area appeared to be in imminent danger of being cut off.

Soviet communiques reported that German armies in the vicinity of Novaya Kalitva and Kazanskaya had "retreated in disorder," abandoning equipment and supplies in their flight. Further confirmation that the Nazis were reeling back before the Soviet sweep came in German high command admissions that the Russians had broken into the Axis defense front on the central Don after attacking "with a strongest concentration of tank formations."

At Stalingrad the Reds were reported continuing to wage offensive battles. To the north at Velikie, Luki which is only 80 miles east of the Latvian border, German counter-attacks were hurled back.

RETAIL PRICES:

To Be Standardized

Starting with meats and soaps, retail prices for foods and other grocery items were scheduled for standardization under a new program announced by the Office of Price Administration.

Under the new plan starting January 15, individual ceiling prices for grocery items based on March, 1942, levels, was to be replaced by a flat dollars and cents price ceiling. Purpose of the new order, officials said, was to establish a simpler method of determining what the top legal price should be. The plan specified that retail stores be grouped as independents, chains, and supermarkets. Each store in the same class would have the same ceiling prices.

Standard prices were to be of two types—either fixed dollar and cents, or percentage markup.

OPA officials declared that the new regulations would eliminate a lot of reports and paper work.

BURMA:

Wavell Marches

The Burma road and China still lay many leagues distant, but Gen. Archibald Wavell's British Imperials had begun the long march from India designed ultimately to sweep the Japs out of Burma and establish direct and effective junction with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's hard-pressed Chinese armies.

Content with methodically taking first things first, the British concentrated on nearby objectives. Striking suddenly between the Bay of Bengal and the Masu river, Wavell drove into Burma with the Japanese coastal air base at Akyab as his initial target. In the first stages of the campaign enemy resistance had been slight. Jap strategists had apparently relied on the dense Burma jungle to impede British progress while they organized in force to hold key objectives.

Air power assumed an important part in the campaign, with British planes bombing Jap-held towns along their route and American planes strafing Lashio, Burmese terminal of the Burma road. In retaliation the Japs bombed Calcutta.

Long-range significance of Wavell's move would be greater than its immediate results, military observers agreed. First, by moving aggressively into Burma, Wavell was safeguarding wavering India. Moreover he was obtaining close-up operating space for his air forces to harry Jap holdings at Rangoon and Mandalay. But most important of all, the Allies were giving China visible proof that they were capable of deeds as well as words.

NORTH AFRICA:

Rommel Marathon

Deeper into Tripolitania the remnants of Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps had plunged. In spite of British General Montgomery's brilliant flanking move hemming in the Nazis' rearguard, the retreating main German body was able to continue its move.

Several alternatives had been open to the now-deflated Rommel. One was to make a stand at Misurata, but since his previous efforts at such tactics proved fruitless, military prognosticators were convinced his destination was non-stop to Tunisia to join Gen. Walthen Nehring.

Further to the west Allied air power had steadily stepped up its tempo and this growing plane strength hinted at an early end to the stalemate which had characterized the Tunisia front in recent weeks. Land fighting was still of a desultory nature, but in the air the United Nations were increasing the intensity of their attacks against Tunis and Bizerte.

That the Allied command had prepared grimly and well for its all-out attack on Tunis and Bizerte was evident in its use of French North African forces to envelop the Axis positions from the south and east. Radio Morocco quoting a French communique said the French had struck toward the east coast southeast of Pont du Fahs, 30 miles south of Tunis, taking numerous prisoners, guns and supplies.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BERN: Reports were current here that Italian military authorities, concerned over United Nations' air raids were evacuating civilians from Nice on the Mediterranean coast of France and from Trieste, Florence and Bologna, Italy. Reports also stated that Albanian patriots had clashed with Italian troops in Tirana during a demonstration against Italian occupation of that country.

ORAN: All merchant ships in North and West Africa have been taken over by the Allies and are being used as transports or to maintain economic stability in North Africa, it was announced by American military authorities. Vessels now in Allied service include those at Dakar, Algiers, Oran and other French Colonial seaports. The number of ships was not disclosed.

AXIS CONFERENCE:

Mediterranean Moves?

Known only to those who were hurriedly summoned to Hitler's headquarters were the subjects discussed when Count Galeazzo Ciano and Chief of Staff Marshal Ugo Cavallero of Italy met with the fuehrer, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and chief of the high command Gen. Wilhelm Keitel. But observers were quick to point out that new Axis moves in Italy, France and Africa were to be expected.

Two immediate facts of significance were noted in the meeting. One was the absence of Mussolini—an absence which strengthened current reports concerning his serious illness. The other was the summoning to the conference of Pierre Laval, Vichy premier of France and arch-collaborationist with the Axis.

With Hitler stubbornly defending his last footholds in Africa and with Italian civilian morale shaken by repeated Allied bombing attacks, moves calculated to bolster both situations faced the Axis chieftains.

Still an ominous question-mark in the Mediterranean-Africa theater was Franco-ruled Spain. While the Spanish dictator had mobilized his army in the south perilously close to Gibraltar and Morocco and had used his radio for brash Axis propaganda, he had not yet violated his neutrality pledge. But the meeting of his foreign minister Count Jordana with Portuguese Premier De Oliveria simultaneously with the Axis conference was regarded by some observers as a cause for misgiving by the Allies.

BUTTER:

Rationed in Canada

Forecasting an action which many experts believe will be inevitable in this country, Canada officially undertook to ration butter by coupon with a weekly allowance of one-half a pound per person.

Butter became the fifth commodity rationed by coupon in the Dominion. The others are gasoline, sugar, tea and coffee. Rubber, particularly for tires, is likewise rationed, but not by coupon. Voluntary rationing exists with a few other commodities, notably meat.

Chairman Donald Gordon of the Wartime Price and Trade board said that butter rationing had been made necessary because of hoarders. "Some greedy and unscrupulous people," he charged, "aggravated local butter shortages and placed a serious strain on the distribution of the commodity. As a result panic buying was in evidence."

RICKENBACKER:

'Shame and Infamy'

"I know that if those of us who are raising cries of objections to being rationed could visit the boys as I did, you would realize the utter shame and infamy of your position."

This was part of the sermon Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker delivered to the American people when he told by radio the story of his miraculous rescue following 23 days in a rubber raft after being forced down in the Pacific with members of a plane's crew on a military mission.

CAPTAIN EDDIE RICKENBACKER

. . . "If you'd seen the boys."

"Speaking as a private citizen," the famous hero added, "I plead for additional effort, an all-out, total effort, to the end that we may increase production of planes, ships, guns, ammunition and all supplies that our fighting men must have in greater abundance."

NEW GUINEA:

3-Ply Offensive

General MacArthur's New Guinea offensive continued with mopping up activities after the significant capture of Buna village—enemy bastion on the northeast coast of the Papuan peninsula.

Two immediate objectives had remained before MacArthur undertook the large task of completely dislodging the Japs from New Guinea. One was to clean up the Buna Mission area, take over its airfields and completely liquidate the remaining Jap defenders. The other was to continue the pressure against enemy positions at Salamaua.

It was significant of the increasingly efficient American service of supply that for the first time since he undertook the offensive that General MacArthur was able to launch attacks with "co-ordinated support of tanks, artillery and aviation."

A communique from Allied headquarters disclosed that 13-ton American-built General Stuart tanks had been in action in the swamps and jungles of New Guinea. The communique also reported the destruction of two medium-sized Japanese cargo vessels in Finschafen harbor, 150 miles north of Buna.

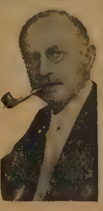
Definite Show-Down Likely On Offensive Against Japan



Chinese Feel That Success of Madame Chiang Kai-shek's Mission to United States Will Determine Future of Their Country.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

In a hospital in an American city one of the great women of the world is lying under treatment for serious but not critical trouble. The doctors have said assuringly that the trouble is not dangerous, that Madame Chiang Kai-shek will soon be well.

Several million Chinese are waiting anxiously for her recovery.

Although the matter has not been formally discussed as yet, it can safely be predicted that when Madame Chiang Kai-shek recovers and she takes the house she has rented in Washington, her mission will not be secret long. According to hints dropped in reliable quarters, this mission is to obtain a definite showdown on immediate aid to China in the form of an all-out Allied offensive against Japan.

The offensive must be made up of a shuddering and shattering air attack on the heart of the Nipponese empire—on Tokyo, on Yokohama, on harbors and cities, on factories and templed hills. At the same time a huge Chinese army, well equipped with supplies from America and India, must be ready to advance for invasion.

It is explained that Japan is preparing for a knockout blow against China. Its objective is not to control the whole of Chinese territory, but to strike northward from Thailand and Burma; to take Chungking and isolate the Chinese armies which are not destroyed; or permanently to cut these armies off from all aid from the Allies by blocking off the approach from the Indian border, along the frontiers of Burma and Thailand and the eastern coast, which they already hold.

The Japanese would also encourage and aid the formation of a large communist state in China in order to further add to the confusion of the political situation which the invasion would serve to bring about. This the Chinese believe Japan could do unless aid from the Allies comes first. Military observers here agree that it would not be impossible for Japan to accomplish this.

As nearly as I am able to gauge opinion here, the course that the United Nations strategy will probably follow is this: A real offensive against Japan by the spring at least; the strong probability of another front to be opened somewhere else before then. The United States has a million men in its armed forces outside the borders of the United States now. It will have more before long.

Russia's Role In War and Peace

Recently I heard an American who had spent a long time in Russia and not long since returned to America give a vest-pocket version of Russia's role in the war and her possible role in the post-war settlements. It may be a picture colored over-brightly with the tints of wishful thought, but I present it for what it is worth.

The Russians will not quit until the last dog (their version of the invader) is hung. After the peace they will co-operate in establishing the kind of a peace which the United States would like to see established.

Several reasons are offered as to why many experts utterly misjudged the power of the Red armies.

One explanation is that the offensive strength of the Germans was over-estimated.

The next explanation is that the Russian, traditionally, will fight an invader with fatalistic fury, provided he is armed.

Although both of these statements are accepted as sound, another explanation is offered. It has to do with the reason why the Russian army was able to put up its remarkable resistance and develop a powerful striking power—how the "traditional" fury was stimulated.

This is my informant's interpretation, a part of which is not new, but which offers the basis of his prediction as to the future conduct of Russia.

He says that under the present regime, especially since the various long-time plans under Stalin have been inaugurated, the younger Russian generation, deprived of the church, has sought an outlet for a human being's natural desire for hope and faith. Stalin was able to create a faith in his regime, not so much in the theory of communism, but in the government which had shorn off considerable socialistic attributes and borrowed where it had to from capitalism. And the various plans had awakened a hope in the people that this regime would give them a lot of the things that they began to find out other nations had.

They were, therefore, fighting to realize the hope that they would get the things which the regime, in which they had faith, had promised them and a part of which they had already realized.

Now comes the next step. There has grown up, with the blessing of the Stalin regime, a great respect for many things about America as a country with whose help the Russian can obtain the things which he hopes for and which he knows the Americans possess.

Therefore, Russia's aim is to help the Allies win the war and also help with the peace with the expectancy that in return America will help Russia to realize its hopes.

That is the way my informant tells the story—and, I might add, that is the way America "hopes" history will one day record it.

Questionnaires

The other day I was sitting beside a man who has a great deal to do with whether you and I will be running our automobiles next year. Somebody asked him what he thought about these questionnaires which farmers who want gasoline or tires have to fill out.

This gentleman paused quite awhile.

"I can't tell you what I think of them," he replied sadly, "while there are ladies present."

I would like to tell you that man's name, but it was a strictly private gathering. In any case, I hope it will show you that all Washington officials are not bureaucrats and since this man is a man of action, you can count on his help to carry out some of the recommendations of the Truman committee on gasoline and fuel rationing.

"The farmer with a small truck operating 12 hours a day," says an informal report of the committee, "working 12 hours a day to keep body and soul together and to contribute in some small measure to the war effort finds himself suddenly obliged to digest a 32-page pamphlet of instructions and fill out an elaborate questionnaire requiring detailed data on activities long past from entirely nonexistent records."

This is the thing Washington is now fighting against. All that is needed is to get someone who is "familiar with the problem of the small farmer and truck operator" to make up the questions. And that is the prescription that will have to be applied in the writing of all questionnaires in the future. Perhaps it will be.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS OF A COLUMNIST-COMMENTATOR

I will try to write and talk as much like a human being as possible.

I won't use any words on paper or on the air I don't use on the street car and I will be sure I know what the words I do use mean.

I will not talk or write down to my audience or up to my news sources.

I will swallow my snorts and coughs and wheezes until I can signal the engineer to cut off the mike.

I will try to keep personal prejudices out of my manuscript if I can't always keep it out of my voice.

I will not threaten to murder the people who write in and accuse me of saying the opposite of what I did say.

I will read all my mail and answer it in person if a stamp is enclosed, or on the air, or, if there is no other way, in spirit.

I will be grateful for the two miraculous inventions, the printing press and the radio, which permit me to have my say without being interrupted or talked back to.

Kidneys Must Work Well-

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Tough Going for Planes on Captured Field

The airport at Safi, French Morocco, offered hard going for navy planes which landed as the field was captured from the French. In picture at top, men are laying a metal strip for takeoff of the torpedo bomber before which they are working. These metal strips have since played an important part in Allied air operations in Tunisia. Below: A navy dive bomber lies nose-down in a ditch near the Safi airport. Another takes off, using the roadway for a runway.

Captain Moran's light cruiser settled for six Jap warships in the Solomon waters.

Russia's Ace Sniper

In the foreground, setting out for the advanced line is Soviet sniper Vassily Faronov, who has already shot 136 German officers and men, taken seven prisoners and destroyed one Nazi tank. Faronov has been decorated with the Order of the Red Star and the Medal of Valour. Take note of the telescopic sight on his gun. Crack shots like Faronov, to say nothing of bravery, have helped to make the defense of Stalingrad one of the epics of the war.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

BY VIRGINIA VALE

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

WHAT'S been happening to that feminine lead in Metro's version of the stage success, "Best Foot Forward," is like the old game of "Button, Button." Lana Turner was announced for the role, then she was out and Lucille Ball was assigned to it. Then Miss Turner got it, and Miss Ball was out. After which there was another shuffle, and now—this seems final—it's Lucille's.

The role of "Smitty" in "Cry Havoc," that story of the nurses on Bataan, is another one that's been in doubt. Merle Oberon, Greer Garson—one top notcher after another was suggested for it. The beautiful Greer couldn't do it and really didn't care. She's to be co-starred with Walter Pidgeon again, which makes the third time, in "Madame Curie," based on the lives of the famous scientists. Merle Oberon and Joan Crawford head the cast of "Cry Havoc," with Mervyn Leroy directing.

MERLE OBERON

Samuel Goldwyn's had to borrow a "Gone With the Wind" flag. A Confederate banner was needed for "They Got Me Covered," the Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour picture, but the flag-makers said that all bunting and material were going into modern emblems and nothing could be done about making one.

Melvyn Douglas has got what he wanted—he's a private in the army now. Which means that a new leading man had to be rounded up for "Gaslight," starring Irene Dunne. And Columbia's "Port Said," it's said, has had to be put on the shelf, unless someone else can be found to take the Douglas role. Gone are the days when leading men were a dime a dozen in Hollywood!

It's a long jump from tent shows to the role of "St. Bernadette" in "The Song of Bernadette," but Jennifer Jones, a newcomer to the screen, has made it. She's been in Hollywood just since last February; David O. Selznick is responsible for her discovery.

It's announced that Orson Welles is going to do a spot of acting again, this time in 20th Century-Fox's "Jane Eyre," as "Rochester"—and it's to be hoped that audiences won't giggle in remembrance of Jack Benny's valet whenever the name is spoken. Joan Fontaine has the title role. That picture Welles worked on in Brazil, "It's All True," is still unfinished.

"Der Fuehrer's Face," the song hit that has made so many of us laugh, was written specially for Walt Disney's picture of that name in just one hour and a half—the composer, Oliver Wallace, says so. Disney had outlined his idea for a picture, and Wallace remembered a few arrogant phrases from Hitler, Goebbels and Goering, sat himself down and dashed off the song.

Sammy Kaye recently celebrated the first year's anniversary of his song, "Remember Pearl Harbor," by donating another $1,000 royalty check to the Navy Relief society. That makes the tidy little sum of $4,000 that the song has brought them.

Joan Davis' first song, written with Dick Mack, producer of the Rudy Vallee program on which she is featured, has been recorded by Donald Dickson and a full orchestra, and may soon be spotted in a motion picture; it's titled "A Day Closer to Victory."

ODDS AND ENDS—The "Star-Spangled Banner" film short by Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians is now being shown by Fox Movietone . . . Cleo Manning, younger sister of Lucille Ball, starts her picture career in "The More the Merrier," which stars Jean Arthur and Joel McCrea . . . Jerry Hauser, who a few months ago was the voice of Lum and Abner's foundling baby on the air, is now an aerial photographer in the army . . . Ann Sheridan's gardener, Arne Lindstrom, makes his movie debut in Ann's picture, "Edge of Darkness." The handyman has never seen any movies but the ones in which she has appeared.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK.—A corporation may get an "E" pennant now and then, but there's no Ebbets field and no cheering mob for the incorporeal home run. Similarly the man behind the corporation may bat a steady stream of steel ingots all the way to Tunis and still the bands aren't playing. A steel mill and its master don't fit easily into any pattern of high romance, but it may win a war.

A Topnotcher but Lightly Touched By the Spotlight

Witness the bulky and baldish Robert W. Wolcott, president of the Luken's Steel company, who, since the war started has released more steel and less publicity than probably any man in America. His ingots and armor plate output increased more than 400 per cent in the last fiscal year, while his column-inches in the newspapers have slumped off, if anything.

At its Coatesville, Pa., plant, his company rolls individual armor plates weighing more than 100,000 pounds each. In addition to rolling, instead of traditionally forging the plates, it turns out plates 195 inches wide as against the previous 155-inch limit. The 1942 output has yielded enough armor plate for a dozen big warships and hundreds of army tanks, and large tonnages for lighter-gauge armor plate. The company reports, for the 1942 fiscal year, which ended October 10, [illegible] all-high, all-time record not only [illegible] the production of the rolled armor plate but in all other types of steel for this plant.

If he could somehow work Joe Di Maggio and Rita Hayworth into his report Mr. Wolcott might get a big cheer, east and west. He is a man of management rather than finance, steadily moving up with the Luken's company since 1922, elected president of the 131-year-old outfit in 1925.

The First World war interrupted his college term at Lehigh university and sent him to Boston where he was a lieutenant in naval aviation. With the end of the war, he apprenticed himself in the steel business with the Bethlehem Fabrication company of Bethlehem, Pa. He joined Luken's as manager of its warehouse and fabricating department. When he became president, at the age of 32, he was one of the youngest top executives in the history of the industry. He has kept his mind on his work.

IN APRIL, 1932, the depression began gnawing at the vitals of the United States congress. Congressmen suffered illness to an almost unprecedented degree, frequently diagnosed by Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician, as worry ailments. While these afflictions were varied, frequently marked by a cold developing into something worse, they were in the general field of fatigue and frustration, and frequently led to coronary occlusion, or heart trouble, the menace of men who fret too much and exercise too little—a common disease of the "intelligentsia," said Dr. Calver, although that is a fighting word to many congressmen.

Dr. Calver Keeps Health of Solons On the Upgrade

Ten years later, after a year of war, burdened with perhaps greater responsibility than any other, this congress is as fit as quarter horses. Only three members died this year, against an average of 12 during the 28 years in which Dr. Calver has been attending physician. Troublesome, but not fatal illness, is similarly away down. Dr. Calver attributes this, in part, to the lowered imminence of high blood pressure, as incidental to heated debates and congressional milling in general. There is much less of this now, as the solons get together easier on war issues.

Dr. Calver also says the good showing is attributable to steadily improving health education in congress, with more careful attention to diet, exercise, rest and healthful mental attitudes. All this, he has pioneered diligently, coaching congressmen on how to take care of themselves.

The tall, genial Dr. Calver is a captain of the navy medical corps. Congressmen like him immensely, but for some reason of their own they turned down a bill, in 1936, which would have given him the rank and pay of a rear admiral. He is not allowed to charge a fee for his services, but gets it in his own way in the form of the autograph of each congressman whom he treats. His office is fully equipped and staffed to take care of anything that might happen to our congressmen, even the laryngal casualties of a prolonged filibuster.

ON THE HOME FRONT

SPRINGS in need of repair should be removed and new webbing stretched across the bottom of the chair seat. The springs are then replaced and the bottoms sewn to the webbing.

Next comes the tying. Cut a generous length of cord and tack it to the back of the seat frame. Using the knot sketched, tie to the back and then the front of the first spring. Continue across the row, finishing at the front, as shown. In the best furniture, springs are tied in this manner from back to front; side to side and diagonally across rows. About four ounces of the sewing twine and eight of tying twine will do an average chair.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

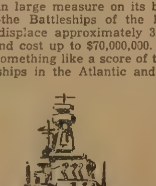
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Wishful thinking will not halt Hitler's tyranny, nor will "spare-change" financing give us the money necessary to win this war. So start today investing in your country's War Bonds with ten percent or more of your earnings.

Wishful thinking will not help you to buy that new furniture when the war is won. But your money saved in War Bonds will. Join the Payroll Savings Plan at your office or factory. Let's "Top that Ten Percent."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The power of the greatest Navy in the world, our own two-ocean fleet, rests in large measure on its backbone—the Battleships of the Line. They displace approximately 35,000 tons and cost up to $70,000,000. We have something like a score of these huge ships in the Atlantic and Pacific.



Eight huge battleships are under construction and more are contemplated. To finance these modern goliaths of the sea it is necessary for every American everywhere to buy more and more War Bonds. We can do it if everybody does his share. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day to help your county go over its Bond Quota.

WAR BOND NEWS

things that must be done in connection with an operation of the importance and size of the War Bond activity in your respective counties. No county should have a budget of less than twelve to fifteen hundred dollars. County budgets would range from that figure to nine thousand dollars for Jefferson County. Most of you know that as many as forty of our counties have had a program similar to this during most of the past year.

All funds raised for the War Savings Committee must be placed in the bank in the name of the War Savings Committee of your respective counties. A committee must be appointed to approve your budget and every item of expense in connection with the disbursement of these funds. This committee must be made up of successful businessmen.

I know that the people of your county are just as patriotic and eager to do their part as the people in other counties. If the program fails in a county and succeeds in another, it is due entirely to the leadership of the county and not to the people of the county. I have little doubt but that the leaders in your county will provide for you the very things which I have suggested in this letter if you will only give them the chance.

Cordially and sincerely,
